ADMIRAL IN SHIP PLEA

Opposes Unified Air Service

McKean Says Seaplanes Are Secondary to Vessels as War Machine

Asks Country to Trust Men Who Have Made Study of Arms Problem

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE]

OAKLAND, April 7.—"The United States Navy does not need any succor from the outside," Vice-Admiral Josiah S. McKean, commander of the scouting fleet, told an audience of 500 persons here today in an address on "The Fleet of Aviation," at a luncheon tendered by the Oakland Chamber of Commerce to the senior officers of the squadrons which are lying in San Francisco Bay preparatory to sailing to the Hawaiian Islands for maneuvers in conjunction with the Army.

"Aviation has taken its proper place as an important element in the operations of the fleet and it cannot be ignored, but as for establishing a separate aviation branch of the government, combining the air services of the Army and Navy—that is another matter," he continued.

Referring to the recent report of the Navy General Board on the relative value of aircraft, surface and submersible vessels, Admiral McKean made a strong plea that the people and Congress heed the board's advice, for it is an able body and reached its conclusions after a thorough study of the subject and after all witnesses had been heard.

EXPERT OPINION

"We should be wise enough not to take the advice of persons who have a personal interest in the matter in question," he continued. "For legal advice you go to a lawyer—for medical advice you go to a doctor. Why, then, should you want naval advice, should you take the advice of a farmer?"

"The nation must have a navy to keep open the trade lines," he said in support of his contention that the battleship remains the backbone of the fleet. He said that the three elements that go to comprise sea power as a powerful and efficient navy—adequate and properly situated bases—and a good merchant marine.

He reiterated the need of the San Francisco Bay region for a naval base, which had been mentioned in a previous talk by Admiral Robert E. Coontz, commander-in-chief of the United States fleet. He pointed out that San Francisco is the key to the situation in the Pacific and that "we have about 150 ships in the harbor where there is room for only fifteen."

He added that an additional pur-

U.S.S. Saratoga is Launched

Brood of Seventy-two Craft Will be Mothered by Largest Carrier

Wilbur Says Vessel Embodies Last Word in Fund of Human Knowledge

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE]

CAMDEN (N. J.) April 7.—An experiment, as significant of the ultimate evolution of naval warfare, perhaps, as was the first trial of iron armor plating on battleships, was initiated today by the United States Navy in the launching of the U.S.S. Saratoga which will be commissioned the world's largest airplane carrier.

In the words of Secretary of the Navy Wilbur, Rear-Admiral William A. Moffett, chief of the Bureau of Aeronautics, and other high naval officials, the Saratoga, being the pioneer of her type, is an unknown quantity in a new field of military combat—the air. Heretofore the United States Navy has not possessed airplane launching vessels, and carriers of more than small auxiliary size. Therefore, the possibilities of this 33,000-ton steel monster, with its awkward appearing flat deck and its giant electric motors, which will drive it at a thirty-three-knot speed, will be critically tested.

The Saratoga will be mother to a brood of seventy-two planes, thirty-one of which will be bombers. Besides these planes, stores of explosives and aircraft parts, with repair shops, will constitute part of her equipment. Her great speed will enable the air force to range far ahead of the battleship, transporting a veritable nest of hornets to the enemy wherever located. It is a new phase of naval maneuvers, naval officers agree.

POWERFUL MOTORS

The U.S.S. Lexington, sister ship of the Saratoga, will be launched at Quincy, Mass. next fall. Both vessels were originally planned to be battle cruisers, but under the Washington disarmament treaty were redesigned for aircraft transports. The vessels will measure 850 feet at the waterline.

The turbine generation installed by the General Electric Company will harness 45,000 horsepower to each of the four screws, which surpasses the total man-power of a city the size of Philadelphia.

With the jocular instructions from her husband "to give her a good swipe, now," Mrs. Curtis D. Wilbur, wife of the Secretary of the Navy, broke the bottle of mineral water over the ship's bow, watched by thousands of spectators. Whistles from craft on the

SHIPS SALE FIGHT CASE POSTPONED

Pacific Mail Injunction Hearings Set for Later Date

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE]

WASHINGTON, April 7.—Hearings in the District of Columbia Supreme Court on the injunction obtained by the Pacific Mail Steamship Company against the Shipping Board to prevent consummation of the sale of five vessels to the Dollar interests has been postponed from the 13th inst. to the 20th inst.

The action was taken by mutual agreement in view of the necessary absence from the city next week of Justice Hitz, who is to hear the case.

R. Stanley Dollar, vice-president of the Dollar lines, who has been in Washington for several weeks in connection with the sale, will leave for San Francisco today.

The Shipping Board met today with its counsel, Chauncey G. Parker, and although no formal announcement was made, there are indications that among the defenses would be a challenge of the jurisdiction of the court.

ARMY COURT SENTENCES COMMUNIST

Young Soldier is Given Twenty-six Years at Hard Labor

[BY CABLE—EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

HONOLULU, April 7.—The second drastic sentence handed out to a young soldier alleged to be under the influence of Communist propaganda at Schofield barracks here was given today by a general court-martial when Private Walter Trumbull of the Twenty-first Infantry Band was dishonorably discharged from the Army and sentenced to twenty-six years at hard labor on five charges centering about efforts to establish a branch of the Third International.

Private Crouch, who is under forty years' sentence, attempted to assume the entire responsibility for the affair by testifying that he did not believe Private Trumbull was familiar enough with Communist phraseology to understand the meaning of the documents which he signed. Crouch, who is only 24 years of age, is a graduate of the University of Delaware. He formerly was a reporter for the New York Call. He informed the court that he still upholds Communist teachings.

Witnesses for both sides agreed that Crouch is a brainy man, exerting influence over his comrades. Trumbull admitted Communist beliefs but insisted that he believed the change should be made peaceably. He is also 24.

GARY PREDICTS GOOD YEAR

Steel Man Says Business Conditions Are Best They Have Ever Seen in Country's History

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE]

NEW YORK, April 7.—Elbert H. Gary, chairman of the United States Steel Corporation, said today that there had been a considerable recession in the steel business during the last thirty days, but that some improvement in business had been noted since the 1st inst. Bookings of the corporation's subsidiaries, he announced, now have reached about three-fifths of producing capacity with shipments running at the rate of 50,000 tons a day.

Fundamental conditions, Mr. Gary asserted, were the best they had ever been in the business history of the country and offered promise of good business over the next few months. If the steel industry is any barometer of trade, he added, this country has a good business future which cannot be impaired by political, congressional or any other kind of agitation.

In explaining the reasons for the recent reaction in trade which was most pronounced during the month of March, Mr. Gary said that the progression in business activities, which followed the election last fall was very enthusiastic and somewhat impulsive.

"Consequently," he stated, "in some lines the speed was too rapid. Some of us uttered words of caution during the late fall and early winter against inflation, with the statement that it might result in a sudden and unreasonable check. I think that has happened. I think also that the present depression, although not great, is more than it need to have been if we consider fundamental conditions of the country.

"In some lines of industry, because of very prosperous conditions, industrials indulged in rapid increases in producing capacity so that the purchasing public found by experience, however imperative the demand for products, it could be promptly supplied and that it was not necessary to buy a long time in advance of proposed usage."

These circumstances, Mr. Gary explained, had combined to produce what he hoped was merely a temporary modification of the disposition to develop, extend and utilize the producing facilities of the country.

The latest weekly reports from presidents of the corporation's subsidiaries revealed a moderate improvement in business in the South and Middle West for the week ended the 4th inst. Conditions elsewhere continued spotty, with keen competition reported in all centers and a general unsettlement of prices.

Mr. Gary intimated that the steel corporation was not likely to reduce wages in the near future and certainly not unless compelled by necessity.

"It takes more than a little depression," he said, "to induce us to lower wages."

Until recently The Argonaut has been published by Samuel Clover, editor of the Los Angeles Saturday Night.

"CZARINA" ASKED TO DIVIDE

German Sues for Part of $40,000 Grand Duchess Collected from American Club Women

BY JOHN CLAYTON

[BY CABLE—EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

BERLIN, April 7.—The Grand Duke Cyril and the Grand Duchess Victoria Feodorova, the self-crowned "czar and czarina" of Russia, burst into unpleasant print again today. This time they were sued to give up $40,000 collected by Victoria from American women's clubs during their American tour.

Grand Duchess Victoria went to America to collect millions for the restoration of monarchist Russia. While she did not get this, she did receive a tidy sum in small change, chiefly from American millionaires, it is stated.

ROYALIST MORTIFIED

M. Snessarew, a newspaper editor, who furnished the inspiration and plans for Victoria's trip, now demands a part of the $40,000 which he says the Grand Duchess received.

Bavarian monarchists, including supporters of former Crown Prince Rupprecht, are embarrassed over the publicity which the trial is being given on account of his association with the self-styled king.

Herr Snessarew's plan, according to dispatches from Coburg, where the case is being tried, was to declare Cyril's 6-year-old son Vladimir the successor to the Russian throne, but Victoria refused because she wanted the glory of the position as Czarina. M. Snessarew then conceived the idea of Victoria's American trip when she was expected to get millions from Ford, the Vanderbilts, Morgan and others who would be interested in the overthrow of bolshevism.

LIVES IN LUXURY

The expenses of her trip were paid by exiled Russians who as the most poorly paid workers in Middle Europe, could ill afford the small tax levied on them.

Victoria declared on her return to Germany that she was penniless but she and Cyril are living in a beautiful villa at Coburg surrounded by a retinue of servants and carrying on their life the same as at the Russian court.

There in the birthplace of so many kings and the home of others in exile their existence was forgotten until M. Snessarew started suit to share the proceeds of Victoria's "trip to the American gold fields."

ROAD DEAL ATTACKED

Senator Chamberlin Asserts Scheme to Gain Support for Bill is Futile

Charges Back-Room Parleys Are Conducted in Hope of Reviving Measure

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

SACRAMENTO, April 7.—Eleventh-hour back-room conferences designed to placate and win the votes of a few Senators who are demanding a budgeting of the highway construction funds, will not cause the Southern California delegation in the Senate to abandon their opposition to the proposed increase of 1 cent a gallon in the motor vehicle gasoline tax, Senator Harry Chamberlin, leader of the Los Angeles Senate representation, declared today.

Proponents of the gasoline tax bill had announced that practically all opposition to the Breed gasoline tax measure had been eliminated as the result of the compromise reached last night between a group of Senators and members of the State Highway Commission. The compromise was based on the commission's willingness to allocate present funds on hand for 1925 and to submit annually to the State Board of Control a budget of its proposed expenditures for each year.

PRINCIPLE UNCHANGED

"Any plan entered into by the proponents of the gasoline tax as a means of garnering the necessary votes to secure its passage," declared Senator Chamberlin, "will be strenuously opposed by the Southern California delegation. The reported compromise respecting the allocation of funds does not change the fundamental principle involved in the measure and upon which the opposition of Southern California is based.

"The purported budgeting of funds now available to the Highway Commission is being used to secure a few votes for the gasoline tax increase in the north and is the result of back-room conferences in an eleventh-hour attempt to revive the bill."

Senator Will R. Sharkey of Martinez, leader of the opposition to the Breed bill, issued a statement charging that the allocation of highway construction money for 1925, as presented to the Senate Revenue and Taxation Committee last night by the State Highway Commission, is a "smoke screen" to fool the Legislature and the public.

PROGRAM LAID OUT

The allocation for 1925 of the $2,690,000 now available to the Highway Commission, consisting mostly of Federal-aid road money, as tentatively agreed upon by the Highway Commission and as presented to the Senate Revenue and Taxation Committee, follows:

San Bernardino county—Victorville to Helendale, grading and resurfacing twenty miles, $200,000.

Riverside county—Mecca-Blythe road, grading and surfacing ten miles, $100,000.

Imperial county — Brawley to Imperial, grading and surfacing eight miles, $125,000; Holtville to high-line canal, grading and surfacing seven miles, $100,000; El Centro to Holtville, grading and surfacing nine miles, $125,000; Sanhilla improvement, six and one-half miles, $300,000.

Riverside county — Coachella storm-water bridge, $20,000.

Los Angeles and Ventura counties—From eight miles north of Santa Monica to Oxnard, surfacing graded sections and grading and paving Hueneme road to Oxnard, thirty-five miles, $535,000.

Orange county—Corona Del Mar to Serra, grading and surfacing, fourteen and one-half miles, $435,000.

San Diego county—Mountain Springs, grading and surfacing seven miles, $75,000; San Onofre and San Mateo Creek bridges, to be repaired in full by San Diego county, $230,000.

Sierra county — Floriston to State line, six miles, $200,000; three bridges and railroad separation, $150,000.

Tehama county — Co-operative paving in Corning, one mile, $40,000.

Yolo county—Co-operative subway $20,000; grading and paving West Sacramento entrance, sixty-five-hundredths mile, $25,000.

AGREEMENT FOLLOWED

This plan, according to Harvey Toy, chairman of the Highway Commission, follows up the agreement of 64 per cent to the south and 36 per cent to the north.

State Controller Ray L. Riley issued the following statement:

"If I were a member of the Senate Revenue and Finance Committee I would not be a bit satisfied with the information regarding the budgeting of highway funds submitted by the Highway

HERRIOT DELAYS CRUCIAL FIGHT ON CAPITAL LEVY

Premier's Fate to be Decided in Debate on 10 Per Cent Tax Plan Scheduled for Thursday

BY HENRY WALES

[BY CABLE—EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

PARIS, April 7.—The government's capital levy plan was submitted to the Chamber of Deputies Finance Committee today, Premier Herriott refusing to permit a debate on the scheme until it is officially adopted by Chairman Auriol and his assistant, M. Violotte.

Since the majority of the Finance committee is composed of government supporters they will automatically indorse the plan and the project will come up for debate, probably Thursday, when the opposition will launch a violent attack to overthrow the Cabinet.

It is reported that Premier Herriot seeks a delay to learn the reaction in the United States, England and other countries to the capital-levy proposal and ascertain whether it will result in the immediate weakening of the franc as the people try to send their wealth from the country of invest heavily in foreign securities.

Thus far the franc has been pretty well maintained, about 19.50 to a dollar, but the Morgan $100,000,000 loan was used to support the French unit.

LIMIT EXCEEDED

It is also learned that the Bank of France already has exceeded the legal limit of emission of bank notes—91,000,000,000 francs ($4,550,000,000) — by 1,500,000,000 francs ($750,000,000) and nearly 43,000,000,000 francs ($1,500,000,000) is now in circulation.

When the debate on the De Monzie project is opened the Socialists will move the adoption of a plan for simple levy on all capital, thus enunciating their principle. When that is defeated they will rally to the support of the government's camouflaged levy—"compulsory enthusiasm," it is called by its opponents.

Under the Herriot-De Menzie plan, the subscriptions of everybody will be "controlled" conforming with the demands of the Socialists and those subscribing less than 10 per cent of their wealth will be forced to make up the balance and pay the costs of investigations and a revision. Payments will be divided into twenty parts, each maturing at three-month intervals. Contributors may base their wealth on income tax receipts, but this is a misnomer, as in France the income tax is based on seven times the rental of the homes. That is, a person who does not desire to fill in forms showing his income, lets the state fix the revenues by default and they approximate the sum by multiplying the rental of his house or apartment seven times. This is highly misleading where persons enjoy prewar rentals through long leases or through connivance with the landlords to show fictitious, reduced rent receipts.

WAGE EARNERS EXEMPT

Wage earners employed at physical labor and those drawing salaries below a certain fixed sum will be exempt.

Most of those engaged in agricultural pursuits—which comprises the largest part of the French population—escape the control as they have heretofore escaped income and other taxes and probably will pay nothing except in cases of a few of the large estates.

The second part of the De Menzie project authorizes the Bank of France to increase its collection by 4,000,000,000 francs ($200,000,000) to 45,000,000,000 francs ($2,250,000,000) and lend an additional 4,000,000,000 francs to the state, making a total indebtedness of 26,000,000,000 francs, which is about 5 per cent of the national wealth.

The extremely rich are silently redoubling their efforts to send their wealth abroad—persons of average circumstances are seeking means of escaping or reducing their contributions and the great mass who are not affected are visibly pleased that the well-to-do are getting a shock.

RICHARDSON WINS FIRST VETO FIGHT

Governor Sustained on His Disapproval of Change in Building and Loan Law

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE]

SACRAMENTO, April 7.—In the first real attempt of the session to pass a bill over the Governor's veto, the chief executive was sustained today on his veto of the Dennett building and loan bill.

The vote followed a vigorous appeal by Senator Dennett for the lawmakers, if they believed the bill a meritorious one not to "stultify" themselves "by cringing before the administration."

In his veto message, the Governor said that the proposed act would permit building and loan associations to invest or lend 25 per cent of their assets upon full paid investment certificates of other building and loan associations, which would tend to break down the conservative character of associations and "prove a menace to thousands of small investors." He declared that the bill would remove a valuable safeguard now given stockholders of these associations.

The vote on overriding the Governor's veto was 19 for and 14 against. Twenty-seven votes would be required to pass the bill over the objections of the chief executive.

Countess' Plea Fails to Change Karolyi Order

After leaving the State Department she said that she would confer with her attorney in New York and that a statement might then be expected.

He has found that the present low stage of water in the reservoir has caused congregation at its shores of great schools of suckers, carp and humpbacks. MAY DRAFT HINDENBURG

Bourgeois Bloc to Announce Choice on Monday; Dark Horse Hinted by Spokesman

[BY CABLE AND ASSOCIATED PRESS]

BERLIN, April 7.—Up to a late hour tonight the national conservative bourgeois bloc still was undecided whether it will run Field Marshal Von Hindenburg or former Vice-Chancellor Dr. Karl Jarres as the opposition candidate to Dr. William Marx in the second and final election for president on the 26th inst.

If previously had been reported Field Marshal Von Hindenburg had been offered the nomination but had declined.

Despite the confusion prevailing in the united party of the Right, it was positively asserted the opponents of the Socialist, Center and Democratic parties, which nominated Dr. Marx still were united in their determination to pick a candidate who will make a strong appeal to the voters and that his identity and platform will be announced Wednesday.

"The situation has been thoroughly discussed the past few days and now is sufficiently clarified so that neither Dr. Jarres nor Field Marshal Von Hindenburg will have occasion to be disappointed or offended if the choice falls on a third man," said the official spokesman for the bourgeois bloc.

The executive committee of the Bavarian Peoples' party is urging its members to support Von Hindenburg in the event he is nominated, failing which they are free to vote for whom they choose.

Numerous organs which supported the united right in the first election, March 29, when the voters failed to make a choice because no candidate was given a majority, are in open revolt because of the dilatory tactics of the bourgeois bloc managers.

HAYDEN TO SEEK SEAT IN SENATE

Hunt Virtually Forced to Run for Governor Again

Cameron Faces Bitter Fight to Retain Toga

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

PHOENIX, April 7. — Political war medicine now is being mixed in large quantity in Arizona. For the first time definite determination to run for the United States Senate has been admitted by Maj. Carl Hayden, who since Statehood has represented the State in the House of Representatives. Hayden and Gov. Hunt have never slept in the same political bed, and are at broad variance concerning the Colorado River compact, which Hayden has favored and which Hunt opposed. But in the recurring elections they have kept out of each other's way.

For years there has been understanding that Hunt wished to round out his political career in the Senate, and latterly that he will make the race in 1926 if he can find some one for the gubernatorial place who will be acceptable to himself. But there is assertion that he will not oppose Hayden for the nomination, and that he will start work at once for a sixth nomination for the Governorship, a position in which he is of the greatest benefit to a thousand or more immediate followers.

FIGHT FOR CAMERON

All of this puts a very different face on the political landscape. Ralph H. Cameron, Republican, is campaigning vigorously for renomination as Senator, and is known to have expected that Hunt will be the Democratic nominee. That Hayden is much stronger than Hunt generally is conceded, though Hayden never has had a real race for Congress. There had been some expectation that Dwight B. Heard of Phoenix, who lost the race against Hunt in the November election, though by a small margin, will oppose Cameron. Now there is expectation that he will make another try for the Governorship against his old opponent.

All of this opens the Congressional nomination to the field. On the Democratic side are understood to be many receptive individuals, possibly led by President Mulford Winsor of the State Senate. But Winsor is not acceptable to Hunt, who is expected to favor Fred T. Colter of Apache county, or Don C. Babbitt of the land department.

On the Republican side is mentioned Tom Maddock, former State Engineer, who lost the gubernatorial nomination to Heard last fall. He was expected to try again in 1926, rather as a running mate for Cameron, with whom he has been training of late. For years the Republicans have made no strong effort to fill the Congressional nomination, this possibly due to the demonstrated Hayden strength. Hayden now is in Phoenix. Cameron was in Yuma a few days ago and is understood to be in California at present.

TO ABOLISH OFFICES

Two important local bits of political patronage are to be lost on July 1 in the abolition of the Federal offices of surveyor-general and receiver of the Phoenix land office. The former place now is filled by Charles M. Donohoe and the latter by L. L. Ferrall, both appointees of Senator Cameron.

According to Register John R. Towles, who will take over the receiver's duties, there is likely to be little change in the strength or personnel of the surveyor-general's office, save the loss of its head. It will pass under the control of the district supervisor of surveys at Denver, probably locally represented by Supervisor A. C. Horton. Much work remains to be done in Arizona by both offices.

COMPROMISE ON ROAD ROW HIT

Commission. In my opinion the failure of the commission to present a detailed budget for the ensuing biennium paves the way for Gov. Richardson to take a hand in the gas tax and highway budget controversy. The administration could very easily have a bill introduced appropriating funds which could be used for highway purposes in the event that revenues from present sources should not be sufficient.

"The Governor wants to protect the surplus his administration has in the treasury. But he could draw upon it for highway purposes with the full approval of the people of California and in line with his avowed policy of economy. By so doing he could satisfy both Northern and Southern California in the matter of their highway demands and settle the present controversy. After hearing the Highway Commission's report to the Senate committee I am more than ever convinced that no additional gas tax is needed. The people do not want increased taxation of any kind. They do want more highways and certainly would approve of the administration drawing upon the $22,000,000 surplus now in the treasury.

"Personally, I do not believe the Governor will sign the gas tax bill if it is passed by the Legislature."

CONTRACT AWARDED FOR BRAWLEY-IMPERIAL ROAD

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE]

SACRAMENTO, April 7.—Meeting in special session here today, the California Highway Commission awarded a contract to H. G. Fenton of San Diego for the grading and surfacing of 9.39 miles of the trunk-line highway between Brawley and Imperial, Imperial county.

Fenton's bid for the work was $97,914.50. The award of the contract is another step in the commission's program to complete the major interstate connections on the State highway system, it was announced by Commissioner N. T. Edwards.

Motion-Picture Show Given on Plane in Flight

[BY CABLE—EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

LONDON, April 7.—The first motion-picture show given in the air was presented in a Handley-Page airplane thousands of feet above the earth today. A small screen was installed at the forward end of the saloon, the side windows darkened and a film made of special noninflammable material passed before "cold light."

The film was Conan Doyle's "The Lost World." Turning from the phantasies of the film with its brontosaurus, pterodactyls and other weird animals of bygone ages, the audience looked out upon the lost world of fact appearing like a map through masses of fleecy clouds and the rapidity with which time passed during the performance showed what a great boon motion pictures would be on a journey lasting several days.

Los Angeles is Again Ahead in Postal Volume

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

WASHINGTON, April 7. —Los Angeles again led all the cities of the Coast in postal receipts for March. The receipts for Los Angeles almost reached the three-quarter mallion, the figures are $666,347.85, as against $649,792.11 a year ago. The March figures for San Francisco placed that city second with total receipts of $635,852.17, while March a year ago showed $607,071.73.

Only nine cities in the United States exceed Los Angeles in mail receipts. In the order of business they are: New York, Chicago, Philadelphia, Boston, St. Louis, Kansas City, Cleveland, Brooklyn and Detroit.

WIDOW SEEKS CONGRESS SEAT

Follows Example of Other Bereaved Women

Growing Tendency in This Respect Notable

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE]

LOWELL (Mass.) April 7.—Mrs. Edith Nourse Rogers, widow of Congressman John Jacob Rogers, announced today that she would become a candidate for election as Representative of the Fifth Massachusetts District, to succeed her husband.

WASHINGTON, April 7.—Mrs. Edith Nourse Rogers is the third woman to seek election to the House of Representatives to succeed her husband upon his death. The other two were successful.

Mrs. Mae Nolan of San Francisco was elected in the Sixty-seventh Congress and the Sixty-eighth Congress after the death of her husband, John Nolan, while Mrs. Julius Kahn, also of San Francisco, was elected at a recent special election to succeed her husband in the next Congress.

Besides Mrs. Nolan and Mrs. Kahn, Mrs. Winifred Mason Hick of Illinois was chosen in 1922 to succeed her father, William Mason, as Congressman-at-Large from that State. She served one term. Mrs. Nolan did not offer herself for re-election last year.

This growing tendency of women to step into offices held by their husbands and fathers has not been confined to Congress. In recent months, there have been numerous instances where they have been so chosen for State and local offices, ranging from the smallest posts in villages to the Governorship.

Mrs. Nellie Ross, who became the first woman Governor of a State, was elected chief executive of Wyoming on the death of her husband, and her success apparently has inspired many others to a like course.

Officers Quiz Suspected Rum Pirate's Wife

A third brother, Theodore Eggers, is under arrest in Philadelphia.

The women who witnessed the shooting, were taken into custody immediately thereafter but were released.

Southward as the bobbed haired bandit who yesterday kidnaped him and took him out into the country, where he was robbed. She and Jack Murray, a companion, who was also identified by Southward, were arrested last night.

Lincoln R. Toyne, Chief of Police, said he believed the woman headed a band of robbers that had been operating in Kansas City. She said that she had married Murray.

UNIFIED PLANE SERVICE IS HIT

pose of the Navy is to guard the national interests and policies in all parts of the world and this could be accomplished "only by co-ordination of all classes of craft that comprise a fleet—battleships, cruisers, submarines, tenders and airplanes."

OFFENSE REGETS DEFENSE

"The history of naval tactics reveals to us that every new offensive weapon begets a defense," he said. "First we had torpedoes, they were going to wipe the battleships from the sea. They did not. Next we had mines. Then it was the submarines which were going to make obsolescent all battleships.

"And now it is aircraft that is to sweep the seas clean of the ships you see in the bay. Each of these developments has taken its part in the operations of the fleet, but I do not think that any or all of them has displaced battleships or cruisers. There could not be room enough in the air over the entire State of California for all the planes to replace the fleet, and don't forget it.

"As an auxiliarly arm and as an adjunct to the fleet, aviation is very important and you cannot get along without it, but it is of no use when operating alone.

PLANE DEFICIENCIES

"The airplane, like any other machine, has its deficiencies. The farther you want them to go and come back the less is the load of torpedoes and bombs they can carry. And, what happens when the gas tanks go dry? If you were in an automobile you would walk to the nearest garage; but you can't very well walk when your airplane tank is emptied.

"The purpose of naval aviation is to contribute to the success of the fleet in battle, and all our peace-time efforts should be conducted with that end in view.

"If an air-mail pilot without naval training were sent from the Langley and returned to report to Admiral Coontz, what would he be able to tell us of the strength of an enemy fleet, the classes, the deployment, the form of attack or defense most effective? His information would be as valuable as the proverbial snowball.

"The same would be true of a navy aviator sent out to sight an enemy army. We have to translate our various technical phrases into those of other service, and God knows we can't understand them without a liaison officer.

PLEADS FOR NAVY

"Don't overload us with more government departments. Don't take an amateur aviation enthusiast's opinion—people with one eye can see but one thing. Don't take the advice of a chiropodist for a toothache. Take real expert opinions.

"The Navy has been working for many years, intelligently, consistently, loyally and wholeheartedly to bring naval aviation to the point where it will contribute the maximum of efficiency to fleet operations. We have as good engines as the other fellows; we have better machines and better flyers than they have.

"Let us have commercial aviation developed to the utmost—it is a fine thing. But let us hear no more of a special air service outside the Army or the Navy.

"Believe in us in peace as you trusted us in war. We have not failed you in war. Trust us now.

"Hold us responsible for your Navy. We will not fail you.

"Keep us out of trouble as long as you can, and then we will get you out of trouble."

MEN ENTERTAINED

Approximately 6000 enlisted men were entertained with special acquatic sports at Lake Merritt, a boxing smoker at the municipal auditorium, and a dance this evening, and received their noonday "show" from the war mothers of Oakland. Tonight, weary, but happy, and secure in the knowledge that Oakland was their's, they boarded the skittish motor sailors that carried them back to their vessels at anchorage in Man O'War Row.

Senior officers of the fleet who were guests of the Chamber of Commerce luncheon and were taken on an automobile tour of points of interest in the east bay region, later with their wives, were guests of the Oakland Forum at a reception at the Claremont Country Club.

Lieutenant, Girl Slayer, May be Tried on Friday

[BY CABLE AND ASSOCIATED PRESS]

MANILA, April 7.—Lieut. J. S. Thompson, who shot and killed Miss Audrey Burleigh, 17 years of age, last Sunday morning while they were riding in an automobile near Manila, probably will be courtmartialed on a charge of murder on next Friday. Lieut. Thompson refused to make a statement today concerning the situation which led to his act, but it was believed that it was due to jealousy.

The body of Miss Burleigh, who was a stepdaughter of Capt. H. P. Calmes, United States Medical Corps, will be shipped to her girlhood home in Memphis, Tenn., aboard the transport Thomas, when that craft sails in a few days.

TAXES IRK FARMERS IN WISCONSIN

Mass Meeting Speaker Asserts High Levies Are Exiling Agriculturists

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

RICHLAND CENTER (Wis.) April 7.—Excessive taxation is driving the farmer out of Wisconsin, according to a report made by O. B. James, Richland Center, speaking at a mass meeting of the taxpayers' association here. "There are twenty-five farms of a value of $10,000 or more, each within a ten-mile radius of this city which have been abandoned by their owners because of high taxes," Mr. James asserted. "These farms are offered rent free to anyone who will keep up the taxes on them. Three entire business blocks have been vacated by store proprietors, the majority of whom have been forced into bankruptcy."

Mr. James further declared that 70 per cent of the farms of Richland county are mortgaged to the extent of $10,000,000, and the total assessed valuation of all the real estate in the county is less than $20,000,000, based on inflated valuation for tax purposes.

Armour-Morris Deal Defended Before Jardine

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE]

WASHINGTON, April 7.—The validity of the purchase by Armour & Co. of the business of Morris & Co., meat packers, was defended today before Secretary Jardine, who is hearing final arguments in the controversy to determine whether the transaction violated the packers and stockyards act.

A. S. Austrian, special counsel for Armour & Co., declared that government counsel had produced "not a single fact" to show that either concern had attempted to create a monopoly or control prices under the meaning of the act.

Mr. Austrian followed W. L. Fisher, special government attorney who again stressed the contention set forth by the government yesterday that the case should be settled by the courts. It was a question of law, he argued and as such should be interpreted by the courts of last resort.

SEIMER (Tenn.) April 7.—A stately sycamore stood today on the Shiloh battlefield dedicated as a national peace tree in memory of the observance by wearers of the Blue and Gray in the Civil War strife of the sixty-third anniversary of the memorable Battle of Shiloh.

Delegations from Nebraska and Illinois joined with the Southern veterans in the exercises, which included visits to the giant white oak under which Gen. Johnson fell mortally wounded, the "bloody pond," the "hornet's nest," the Confederate monument and the monument erected by the several States.

Death Comes to First Organizer of Eastern Star

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

Mrs. Warner, until a late date, had continued active in the work of the Eastern Star. For three years before coming to Arizona she served as Grand Matron of Texas. tion that constant agitation of these subjects does more harm than good and should be discouraged unless something is done or contemplated which merits discussion.

For that reason, according to a White House spokesman, the President will refrain in the future from discussing these questions until he is ready to take some sort of definite action.

In the case of the French debt, it was pointed out that, despite reports, there is no immediate intention on the part of the President to subject foreign debtors to economic pressure.

The President, it was said, is fully cognizant of France's present monetary troubles and no attempt will be made to force her to discuss the war debt problem until she is in a position to do something about it.

It was also said that the President is not at this time aware of any over-extension of private loans to foreign nations, and has no intention of changing his policy of favoring any reasonable credits providing they are not to be used for maintaining militaristic policies.

NAVY LAUNCHES PLANE CARRIER

Delaware mingled their din with the cheers of the throngs on both shores of the river, as the Saratoga glided into the water.

A score of Navy and Marine aircraft swooped and soared over the New York Shipbuilding Corporation yards during the christening. A bevy of carrier pigeons too, winged their way southward as the Saratoga took the water, bearing the tidings to President Coolidge.

WILBUR'S ADDRESS

Speaking at the launching, Secretary Wilbur declared that the ship "is not only concrete evidence of the effect of the agreement limiting naval armament, but also evidence of the fact that at the Washington conference the question of aircraft was under consideration and that one of the methods for limiting the effect of aircraft was by limiting the size and number of aircraft carriers."

"The Saratoga," he added, "is significant also because of its scientific equipment."

"The mortal mind," he declared, "has conceived and put into execution nothing which embodies more of the accumulation of human knowledge than the vessel being launched today."

Speaking of the histdrical significance of the event and mentioning the four ships of that name which have preceded her in the American Navy, the Secretary mentioned particularly the Saratoga, which participated in the war of 1812, "which was to determine whether or not there should be free men and free ships upon the international highways," and added:

"Incidentally, it may be noted, that our participation in the World War was also the result of a firm conviction on our part that this nation had a right to the free and unrestricted use of the high seas for transportation of commerce except as that right was limited by international law."

LESSONS FROM SHIP

From the Saratoga's 33,000 tons displacement, her complement, and her total cost of $45,000,000, the Secretary drew some conclusions as to what an increased air force requires in complementary carrier construction.

"Thus for each bombing plane," he said, "she will have to have more than 1000 tons of displacement costing over $1,000,000. As an illustration of how these facts may be overlooked in a recent examination of a retired naval officer before a Congressional committee, he was asked, 'Would you rather have a $45,000,000 battleship or a thousand bombing planes?' the questioner undoubtedly assumed that a bombing plane cost $45,000 and you could build a thousand of them for the cost of a battleship, but the admiral may have made a calculation something like this:

NAVAL INCREASES

"It takes 1000 tons of an aircraft carrier costing $1000 a ton to carry one bombing plane; to 1000 bombing planes would require 1,000,000 tons of shipping. This would be almost equal to the combined tonnage of Great Britain and America in capital ships under the treaty for the limitation of armament. It would require in addition to the 135,000 aircraft tonnage authorized by the treaty, eighty-six aircraft carriers of 10,000 tons each. Thus, to take care of 1000 bombing planes, we would have to add ninety-one aircraft carriers to the Navy.

"The addition of ninety aircraft carriers to the fleet would require substantial addition to the shore facilities, probably not equal in value to the cost of all the carriers, that is $1,000,000,000, but at least a substantial addition to the present facilities. To man these ninety-one ships would require that the personnel of the Navy be about doubled and the annual appropriations increased by almost $100,000,000.

"After this hasty mental approximation, the witness, who believed in both a surface Navy and in the expansion of the naval aircraft program, answered that he would prefer the 1000 bombing planes. I do not say I have correctly portrayed the mental operations of this witness, but the suggestion illustrates the implications involved in a substantial addition to the naval air force."

COOLIDGE RECEIVES MESSAGE VIA PIGEON

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE]

WASHINGTON, April 7.—A message from Secretary Wilbur announcing the launching of the U.S.S. Saratoga was brought to President Coolidge late today by a carrier pigeon from Camden.

The pigeon "homed" to the naval air station here and the message, timed 1:30 p.m., was relayed from there to the White House, where it arrived shortly before 4 o'clock.

The message read:

"The U.S.S. Saratoga, aircraft carrier, has been christened and launched at the New York Shipbuilding Company's yard at Camden, N. J., contemporaneously with the release of this message by carrier pigeon."

WASHINGTON RETAINS HAWAII PARK CONTROL

SECRETARY OF INTERIOR RULES TERRITORY POWERLESS

[BY CABLE—EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

WASHINGTON, April 7.—In an administrative ruling today Secretary of the Interior [illegible] announced that the Territorial government of Hawaii has no jurisdiction over roads and highways in the Hawaii National Park.

The question arose as result of a contention by the Commissioner of Public Lands of Hawaii that the local boards of supervisors are empowered to exercise supervision over roads and highways in their respective counties regardless of whether they are located in national parks.

In deciding the question it was pointed out that the National Parks Service under the supervision of the Secretary of the Interior is vested by law with exclusive control of all vital forces within national parks and that States have ceded to the United States even their political jurisdiction over areas embraced in national parks.

The Governor of Hawaii will be notified today of the [illegible] taining supervision of the roads in the Hawaii National Park by the National Parks Service inasmuch as permitting it to be vested in local authorities.

HAWAII DEFENDS FAR-FLUNG LINE

Mid-Pacific Islands Key to Pacific Coast

Maneuvers in Oahu Take on Added Importance

Army Staff's Defense Plans Tested by Fire

BY MAJ.-GEN. JOHN L. HINES,
Chief of Staff, United States Army

[This is the last of a series of four articles by Gen. Hines in which he states that Army experts are anxious to learn from the coming maneuvers in the Pacific what weaknesses the Hawaiian Island defenses will reveal.—Ed.]

[Copyright, 1925, in United States and Canada by North American Newspaper Alliance. All rights reserved.]

After all, the maneuvers to be held at the end of this month at the Hawaiian Islands are in reality of chief value as conclusive tests of the effectiveness of our defenses. They give us an opportunity to check up on our plans and to correct such faults as inevitably creep into every human enterprise and remain unobserved until put to a practical or quasi-practical test.

Defense of strategically important points like the island of Oahu must be carried out in accordance with a well-defined plan, covering both actual operations and the development of tangible installations. During maneuvers we always try to put opposing sides on an equal basis, so that the decision will go to the most able and the better prepared, rather than to mere weight of numbers. War, however, is not a mere pacific maneuver.

In preparing to defend a place against attack in actual war, we do not seek to make our forces equal to those of the enemy, but rather seek to make them of sufficient strength to do their work. The defense of any place depends on the force that might be brought against it. Estimating what an attacking force might be, we can plan to provide sufficient strength to repulse such a force. The troops necessary to execute the defense plan can be calculated and provision made to furnish the troops with what they need in the way of facilities like bases, fortifications, roads, railroads, quarters, storage houses, etc. If the plan is soundly devised and effectively followed the defense of the island may perhaps be assured without conflict at all. Some of the greatest battles, as Admiral Mahan has said, are those that never are fought.

LONG RANGE GUNS

"The better fortifications are placed and the better they are armed, the more certain it is that they will never fire hostile shots against ships. The surest way to keep hostile ships away is to outrange them . . . The Treaty for Limitation of Naval Armament, if it finally becomes operative, will reduce the number of powerful armed ships in the world so much that no power will hereafter feel that it can risk any of those ships against seacoast fortification. It certainly would be folly to do so until the question of supremacy on the sea was definitely settled."

In accordance with this idea that adequate preparation may win a victory and prevent the capitulation of Oahu, except in imaginary maneuvers, the War Department has drawn up an elaborate defense project. Military commanders assigned to Hawaii have made careful studies of the situation, and have experimented in local maneuvers until they are able to specify what troops might be required, and what installations needed. To put their plans into effect would insure security.

Yet we have always to contend with other factors. We have to proceed along reasonable financial lines. Excessive burdens of expense cannot be incurred. We have to realize that Congressional enactments limit the total size of our Regular Army and that our Oahu garrison must of course be affected by the size of the Army as a whole, which has other missions to perform as well as the mission of defending the cross-roads of the Pacific.

CITIZENS AID DEFENSE

In war, or when war is imminent, the peace garrison will be increased, particularly by additional air units from the United States and from personnel available locally. It is not possible for us to emulate the imaginary General Staff of which Lord Lee of Farnham laughingly spoke in 1921, which wanted to put a tremendous garrison on every outlying possession, even on the moon. In his last annual report the chief of coast artillery stated that the war requirements of the coast artillery could be partially filled from island increments.

It is a fact that the islands are keenly concerned with the needs of defense. The big plantation companies have encouraged the National Guard and have expended considerable sums for the building of armories. We can count on local aid; but the local man-power is not numerous enough for what we would need. Discussing the matter of hostile attack on harbor forts, the chief of coast artillery has said:

"Such attack would be launched by water, or by air, or by both. Anything approaching an adequate defense against such forms of attack demands, at the outbreak of war, a sufficient trained personnel to man completely our harbor defenses, and an adequate antiaircraft defense. Failure in these respects in the first stages of a war of magnitude would, without doubt, add immeasureably to the difficulty of a successful defense and might prove disastrous."

PROJECT IS COMPLEX

In spite of the very apparent peril of such a course, we have been compelled to work on the assumption that a continuance of peace with all the world will permit of the gradual accumulation of men and funds for strengthening the garrison of Oahu.

Our project for the defense of Oahu contemplates forces to man the major armaments in emergencies, for personnel to care for the other emplacements and for a number sufficiently large to be effective as a trained nucleus for the instruction of war-time increments of raw volunteers. As far as the personnel problem goes, we cannot do more. The Army has other needs, and each need must share in the shortages imposed by current considerations.

Every effort has been made to keep the Hawaiian program within reasonable grounds; and the actual requirements, as finally calculated, fit into our whole co-ordinated list of military programs for future development. At the present rate of progress, it will take about eleven years to finish the Oahu project, and that cannot be said to be a rapid spending or a reckless waste of funds.

We desire to move slowly in the development of our defense project, so that we may be sure of our ground, as well as to distribute available funds so as not to neglect other necessary work for the sake of this one project. Our project is a complicated one. It covers reservoirs, water purification plants, refrigeration plants, and roads, as well as guns and shelter and storage.

We desire to check up and to determine by concrete maneuver exercises exactly how our plans are working out, and how they will work out in actual practice. New ideas arise from time to time with regard to the employment of this weapon and that. New inventions like aircraft cause revisions of previous conceptions. By applying these in practice in maneuvers like those to take place in April, factors of concrete value in the determination of our future peacetime activities at the strategic focus of Pacific defense may be developed.

HAWAII'S IMPORTANCE

By devoting our attention to Hawaii, we are concentrating our efforts at a point of outstanding strategic value. The Senate Committee on Appropriations was told by a chief of our war plans division the reason for emphasizing Oahu, in the following terms:

"Oahu affords a protection to our entire west coast, from Alaska to Panama. Without first capturing Oahu it is not likely that any naval force will venture across the 5000 or 6000 miles to our coast. The steaming radius of no fighting ship afloat will warrant it, nor will any modern navy willingly pass by and leave an important naval base flanking its line of communications. An enemy once in the possession of Oahu will threaten our entire coast from Kiska to Panama City. There is perhaps reason enough that we should defend Oahu for itself and the rest of the Hawaiian group, but fortifications there also greatly lessen the expense of other fortifications on the American mainland."

In other words, we are being economical in concentrating our expenditures at the central point rather than being extravagant in spreading our defenses all up and down the continent. In the maneuvers to take place during the last week of this month, our joint army and navy forces assigned to the Blue side of the exercises will practice themselves in that co-operation which might be necessary to the retaking of Oahu should it fall into enemy hands. At the same time, the Hawaiian troops and the local naval units will practice themselves in co-operative defense of America's vitally important outpost on the Pacific.

SALT LAKE, April 7.—Bill Piercy, hurling midseason ball, held the Vernon Tigers to five scattered hits and pitched Salt Lake to a 4-to-1 victory in the opening game of the season here today. Clyde Barfoot, who toiled for the Tigers, also pitched a great game, allowing the Bees only seven hits. Ordinarily Barfoot would have won at the local park with the game he pitched.

The opening-day crowd was but 5000, being held down by the threatening weather and the fact that it did rain in the forenoon. Salt Lake officials were pleased with the turnout, considering the circumstances.

TRACK RIVALS SPLIT HONORS

Tigers and Sagehens Each Make 67 1-2 Points

Pomonans Lose Victory by Third in Relay

Caltech Four Wins Second to Give Oxy Tie

BY BRAVEN DYER

Occidental and Pomona, traditional athletic rivals for more than a score of years, battled to a sensational 67 1-2-to-67 1-2 tie in yesterday's all-Conference track meet at the Coliseum. Caltech was third with 21 markers, Southern Branch took fourth with 9 digits, Redlands being fifth with 8 and La Verne College sixth with 3

As has been the case with these two great teams so many times before, the result of the meet rested on the outcome of the relay. With that event yet to be run Pomona had 65¼ points while Occidental was slightly behind with 62½. The Tigers were a cinch to win the baton-passing race, which would give them 67½ markers. Pomona had to take second place, with its accompanying 3 points, to win the meet. If the Sagehens grabbed third they could get no better than a tie with their Eagle Rock competitors. Both Caltech and Southern Branch boasted good relay squads, so the task ahead of the Blue and White athletes was a gigantic one.

PURSER GETS LEAD

Purser started for Oxy and handed his team-mate, Buckman, a five-yard lead. Montgomery and Bailey, running third and fourth for the Bengals, increased this distance on their laps and Joe Pipal's team finished an easy winner. The battle was between Caltech and Pomona, however, and it was a terrific engagement. Phelps ran the opening lap for the Sagehens and got his baton passed to Harrison slightly ahead of his Caltech opponent. The rival runners battled around the track in much this manner until the final lap when

REINSTATE SUSPENDED SCRAPPERS

Walker, McTigue, Dundee Again Pure as Snow; Tunney-Gibbons Date Okayed

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE]

NEW YORK, April 7.—The State Athletic Commission today lifted the suspension of two world's champions and another former champion and officially approved of the Tunney-Gibbons match at the Polo Grounds June 12. Mickey Walker, world's welterweight champion, was reinstated when he promised unconditionally to meet Dave Shade, Pacific Coast welterweight, in a title match. Mike McTigue, world's light-heavyweight champion, was restored to good standing on his promise to meet any title contender the commission selects within the next sixty days.

Johnny Dundee, former world's featherweight and junior lightweight champion, who had been suspended indefinitely on the recommendation of the French Boxing Federation for his failure to meet Fred Bretonnel in a match in Paris, January 27, was reinstated after a hearing on his case.

No date has been set for the Walker-Shade match, but the managers of the two principals were told to get a promoter to stage the contest. Leo P. Flynn, manager of Shade, told the commission that Shade could make the welterweight limit despite reports to the contrary.

ACE WINS EVERY ROUND IN VERNON MAIN EVENT

BY PAUL LOWRY

Ace Hudkins, the roaring "Wild Cat" from Nebraska, annihilated Joe Benjamin, the "Hollywood sheik," in ten rounds of dynamic fighting before a packed house at Vernon last night. Ten thousand persons saw Benjamin beaten by a boy who was completely overlooked by the New York Boxing Commission in selecting aspirants for the Leonard lightweight title tourney.

They saw him ruined, beaten to a pulp in each and every round. There wasn't a single moment during the bout when the issue was in doubt. It was simply a case of a rip-roaring boy in perfect condition wading in and carrying the fight all the way. Hudkins won every round with the possible exception of the second, when Benjamin caught the Ace on the jaw with two lefts and a right.

Opening the fight like a mad man, Hudkins began working on Benjamin's kidneys in the clinches

WILLS MAY MEET GODFREY HERE DURING SHRINE WEEK

That Jack Doyle, Vernon fistic impresario, is dickering for a match here between Harry Wills and George Godfrey, negro heavyweights, was disclosed last night when the boxing promoter admitted that he was negotiating with Paddy Mullen, manager of Wills, for such a scrap. Mullen expressed his willingness of sending Wills in to meet Godfrey providing the latter first met and defeated Battling Owens, Wills's sparring mate. Doyle wired Mullen last night that Owens should not be considered in the arrangement and that he was so confident that Godfrey was qualified to battle Wills that he would put up a $5,000 diamond belt, emblematic of the world's championship, and permit the dusky warriors to fight it out in an open-air arena here during Shrine week in June.

Trojan Athletic Board Meets Today to Decide on Making Trip

The University of Southern California will be represented in the Drake relay carnival at Des Moines this year if favorable action is taken at a meeting called at the university this morning for the purpose of deciding on the matter.

The plan is to enter teams in the university classes in the medley relay and also in any other of the events that it looks as though U.S.C. were justified in sending men to Iowa in which to compete. The men that Coach Cromwell will take to the carnival will depend, of course, upon what events are to be entered, but it is a certainty that he will take Brice Taylor, Torkelson, and—here is an interesting possibility—Keith Lloyd may be allowed to enter this competition.

The showing made by Occidental last year was good and if both U.S.C. and the Tigers have a team entered in the eastern events this year the southern part of the State will be as well or better represented than the north with Stanford.

More than thirty Southern California Conference track men will leave Friday night for Berkeley to meet track teams from the Universities of California and Wisconsin in a triangular meet Saturday. All of the above listed men are winners or second-place men in the conference meet held at the Coliseum yesterday. They will leave on the Owl for San Francisco at 6 p.m. Friday night.

This year's team is dominated by Pomona and Occidental colleges. These teams tied for conference honors yesterday and so have placed most of the men on the team. Pomona is sending ten, Occidental will be represented by fourteen, Caltech has five on the team, and Redlands and the local University of California each have one.

Coaches Joseph Pipal of Occidental and Robert Strehle of Pomona will be in charge of the men, with Fred McLain, graduate manager of the former college, taking care of the finances, etc.

Some few changes were made by Pipal and Strehle. Bud Nash, despite his second place in the hundred, will go north as a broad jumper, his teammate Gregg running with Pinney. Although he did not compete in that event, Turner of Pomona, will be one of the high jumpers. Bradshaw won the event, with Jeffers, Hamilton and Tanner tied for second. None of these was thought to be as good as Turner, so the Sagehen will high jump and run the hurdles.

Some difficulty is being experienced in picking a relay team. Five relay men and two quarter-milers are making the trip. Of these, two will run in the regular 440 and the others in the relay.

HUDKINS WINS OVER BENJAMIN

and he had Benjamin woozy before the third round was over. A terrific left to Benjamin's left optic resulted in Joe completely losing his sight in that eye two rounds later, the lid closing completely over.

Hudkins all but had Benjamin out in the sixth round when he swung a heavy right to the sore eye and Benjamin rocked on his feet. In an effort to break the clinch Hudkins wrestled Benjamin to the floor and Benjamin stayed down to take the count. But Referee Harry Lee ruled that it was not a knockdown and pulled Benjamin up. Hudkins tried desperately to finish his man, but was unable to land the decisive wallop.

There is no doubt that Benjamin underestimated his opponent. He permitted Hudkins to carry the fight to him in the early rounds, and Hudkins rained so many blows on him that by the time Benjamin woke up to the state of affairs he was completely licked.

EVERYWHERE

Probably Benjamin didn't know he had so many different parts of the anatomy as Hudkins located. Ace hit Joe on the kidneys in the clinches, he swatted him in the stomach as he went tearing in, and he clouted him on both sides of the head with swinging lefts and right overhand smashes.

Hudkins was a tornado in action throughout the scrap. He ran from his corner at the start of each round, and met Benjamin with some kind of a horrible belt. Benjamin was game, and while taking a terrific beating demonstrated his courage in no uncertain terms.

No boy ever fought under more distressing conditions than Joe in the latter stages of the fight, when, with his right eye completely closed, he tried to catch Hudkins with his favorite right cross. At the end of each round he staggered to his corner, but when the bell rang he was ready for the next session. His cleverness in weathering the sixth round was remarkable.

SWIFT SCRAP

In the semi-wind-up Frankie Garcia and Johnny Lamar fought a slashing six-round draw. The bout was almost as good as the main event for action. They were nose and nose at the bell, and a draw was the only decision.

Harry Ritzer handed Johnny Nicholas a beating in the six-round special event, Charley Feraci kayoed Sailor Masterino in the second round, and Kid Sherman, substituting for K. O. Barrett, defeated Bud Selby.

Phil Salvador and Jack Silver challenged the winner of the Benjamin-Hudkins fight before the main event was put on, and big Sam Baker and George Godfrey were introduced as next Tuesday night's main eventers.

Benjamin's weight was announced as 135 1-2 and Hudkins as 135 pounds.

OCCIDENTAL NINE WINS FROM TEMPE

PHOENIX, April 7.—The second game at Mesa with the Tempe Normal Bulldogs again went to Coach Clark's Occidental College team yesterday afternoon. The Normals made three scores and the visitors fourteen. Hitch and Fulton hurled for the Californians.

Benjamin scored with a right to the head and Hudkins hit the pit of the stomach. Hudkins scored with all kinds of blows to head and stomach. He swung his famous overhand pounder to Joe's head and repeatedly damaged the latter with short-arm body punches. Benjamin tried a few listless rights. Hudkins's round.

NINTH ROUND

The Nubrakan raced across the ring and slipped Joe in the face with a right. Hudkins scored with a right to the body and swung a right to the head. Benjamin ducked and took Ace's blows with hardly any resistance. Ace clinched. Rights and lefts to the head from all angles. Hudkins scored with rights and straight lefts to the head. Hudkins's round.

TENTH ROUND

Joe caught Hudkins with a hard right to the jaw as they met in the center. He scored with another. Hudkins was angry and kept on coming at the Stockton "shark." Hudkins whipped a short left to Benjamin's eye and started it bleeding. Joe swung blows all over the place in an effort to make up some the ground he had lost. Hudkins scored with rights to the head. They stood toe to toe and slugged. Benjamin scored with rights to the head and Ace pumped rights and lefts to Benjamin's body. Hudkins's round.

Kettelle of Pomona and Henderson of the Engineers left their lines on practically even terms.

The two athletes snorted around the first turn with Kettelle fighting every inch of the way for the lead. He got it, momentarily, and then put on a terrific sprint that brought him to the halfway mark slightly in front. Henderson then pulled up and for the next 100 yards the two men matched stride for stride in a terrific spurt. As they rounded the final curve the Caltech athlete forged slowly to the front and, although Kettelle gave his last ounce of energy in an effort to win the meet for his alma mater, Henderson was a bit the faster and finished in a noble manner to win by a couple of feet. It was as sensational a finish to a track meet as has been seen in Southern California for many years.

The result of the meet was something of an upset. Pomona had trimmed Occidental, 80 to 60, in their dual meet last month. The Sagehens were favorites to win because of their first-place stars. Oxy was without Fulton, who won the broad jump in the dual meet, and Conde, a weight man.

MEN FELL DOWN

If you are a Pomona supporter the Sagehens failed to win the meet because some of their men fell down in events where they have been winning consistently. Hugh Pinney, after copping the 100 from a fast field, dropped the decision in the 220-yard dash to Purser of Occidental. The Sagehens were further hit when Brodhead—another Tiger, nosed out Pinney for second place. Hill and Turner failed to garner their customary points in the high jump for the Pomona team, while Kettelle finished out of the money in the quarter.

On the other hand if your alma mater is Occidental the Tigers tied their rivals because such men as Brodhead and Purser came through with splendid performances. Wall and Turner were also in no small measure responsible for the Tigers' showing, their work in the hurdles being highly gratifying. Nash, in the broad jump and hundred, did well, while Bradshaw's feat of winning the high jump and Steven's first place in the discus, an event in which he fell down in the dual meet, aided the Bengals.

The most spectacular race of the day, outside of the relay, was the half-mile. Montgomery, the favorite, took the lead for the opening lap. As the men dashed into the second lap Garner of Redlands shoved to the fore and passed the Oxy runner. He put on a terrific sprint and it looked like his race until the final turn when Montgomery, running in perfect stride, came tearing down the straightaway to win by mere inches. Nick Carter, who won the mile from Rentchler of Pomona, grabbed third place. The time was very fast, 1m, 59.4s.

BILL SNYDER STARS

Bill Snyder, stocky Pomona two-miler, won his race in the spectacular time of 9m, 56.8s. Snyder ran in great form and thoroughly erased the memory of his defeat at the hands of California ten days ago. He lapped three men, Carter of Caltech, Miller of Oxy and Wright of Redlands, during the course of his journey around the track.

Morey of Occidental stretched his legs to win the quarter in another upset. His teammate, Bailey, who had triumphed in the dual meet, was fourth.

Roland Clark of Pomona surprised Glenn Graham and a lot of folks by finishing even with the latter in the pole vault at 12ft. 6in. The Sagehen star also copped the shotput.

Bob Maxwell took his customary firsts in the two hurdles, making sensational time in both races. He did the highs in 15.3s, and the lows in 23.7s, one-tenth of a second slower than his own Pacific Coast record. The Sagehen hurdler was high point man for the day with 12 markers, his third in the century being his other two points. He was the only athlete to win two first places outright. Clark being closest with his five points in the shot and a tie for first in the pole vault.

Caltech and Southern Branch had a real battle of their own for third place honors, the Engineers finishing strong to cop the laurels.

HOW TO PLAY BASEBALL

BY STANLEY (BUCKY) HARRIS
Third Baseman—III. OTHER HINTS

Young third basemen should school themselves so that a runner on second will not bother them needlessly. The main thing to do is to keep your eye on the ball. Read the catcher's signs so that you will know what the delivery is and be ready to field your position accordingly. A left-handed batter is likely to hit a fast ball your way. The chances are against his doing so on a curve. The opposite holds true in the case of a right-handed hitter.

Learn to rely upon your shortstop to tip you off and coach you what to do if there is a runner on second. Watch the pitcher and the ball so that if the ball is hit you will not miss it altogether.

You have a hard play in taking a throw if the man on second tries to steal. He is coming in at a difficult angle and you need skill and agility to put the ball on him. You also need plenty of confidence in yourself. Don't be spike shy. You will have to learn to take some bumps if you are to play third regularly.

Fewer attempts are made to steal third than second. When a play is tried the runner can be depended upon to do his utmost to go through with his part of the task successfully. A steal of third may well mean the game. The play isn't attempted very often unless much depends upon it.

Learn to take the throw in the best position possible to get the runner. Youngsters will find it good policy to turn a bit from the catcher and lean toward the man coming in as much as possible. The closer you can get to him and still handle the throw cleanly the better your chances for putting him out.

You can often saves stride of two on the runner by taking the ball on an angle from the backstop. A young third baseman can't be expected to handle throws in this fashion without considerable practice. Once he learns the trick he will have no trouble taking the ball in a position where he has a bit the advantage over the runner on a close play.

The third baseman should take any fly balls on his side of the diamond near the pitcher. Twirlers, even when they are good fielders on ground balls, are generally weak in taking pop flies. Their judgment is often faulty and they seem to have trouble getting under a high fly and holding the ball when they do get their hands on it.

BENGALS BOW TO BEE CREW

error and Leslie's two-base poke against the left-field wall giving the Bees two runs. The Bengals came back with one in their half of the third when Eddie Moore singled and scored from second on Ed Hemingway's safety to right. Tony Lazzere accounted for the home-team's third run in the last half of the third when he doubled and came home on a couple of infield outs. Lefty O'Doul crossed the plate with the final Bee bell-ringer in the eighth.

The game was preceded by a down-town parade and the usual flag-raising ceremonies at Bonneville Park. The first ball was pitched by United Senator Reed Smoot, while Congressman Don B. Colton was the first batter. Score:

Hoozhoo at First Game of Season

BY ED O'MALLEY

The long, steady scuffing of feet through the impeccable turnstyles at Washington Park yesterday afternoon was music exquisite to the listeners of Messrs. Wrigley, Patrick, Reichow and Weber, the Four Horsemen of Chercubland. Mr. Wrigley smiled most chickle like, when he chuckled, "some opener, eh?" Reichow felt as glorious as the day he had two bucks down on Hosi at 200 to 1 in dear old Chi. Patrick broadcast happiness right and left over the Seraphic radio and Weber fox trotted (hatless, as usual) around as gleefully as if he had found the long sought "Sally."

One salient feature of the big opening days of the past and which was sadly missing yesterday, was the famous Lady Godiva, who used to prance up and down Broadway. This famous lady was a sarsdee in that she exploited bobbed hair. How gallantly she rode her white Arabian steed at, stopping now and then before a lot of Peeping Toms, she placed a trumpet to her chastened lips, broadcasting many a baseball epic. Her absence seemed to take all the poetry out of the ceremonies. When last glimpsed, the lady was leading serenitet in the Watts Symphony Orchestra.

But who was there? Ah—that is the question more apt to the purpose. Unluckily we must begin with a negative—Jim Morley was very conspicuous for his absence. The man that Columbused the Angels and made Hon Harry a prominent and useful citizen of our dear old Southland, was missing from his accustomed seat. It was whispered that he had run out of the reminiscent stuff and was weary of his laurels.

In box No. 7 were clustered the city fathers who came to pay their homiis to the grand national pastime. They were rather bald of the medulla material, but somewhat timid on the propulsion. Mayor Cryer's colleagues boasted Councilmen Sanborn, Allen, Criswell and Wheeler. Wilkie spanking distance away was City Treasurer Powell, pres of the Board of Public Works Eldridge, and Louis Whitnall, Deputy City Attorney.

Tom Darnell, who spotted the Tigers through many a stormy battle, was honored with a seat among the memorist rulers. Tom has shaped a name back in the great health handicap and looked the picture of ahsetia.

Clyde Brockman, one of the brainiest cub baseball reporters the game has ever known and who is now handing the sage stuff to Harold Lloyd, parked carry and remained late. Brockman's big ear on his sple wheel. He was surrounded by the following satellites: Jack Murphy, Jake Grey, Tim Whalen, Ted Wilde and Joe Schenck.

Eddie Maier broadcast all afternoon from station SX. He was genial host to W. Smith, father-in-law of Edward Doheny, Jr., William Salisbury of the Automobile Club and Young Robert Diedrich. Doc Shaw, his Fidus Achates, sat close by and held the microphone.

Larry McGrath, who threatens to revolutionize baseball reporting racket in Los Angeles, came early and slad mitted every one in sight. Near him stood the irrepressible Nick O'Connell, who was busy all afternoon with shaking hands with friends and strangers alike. Former mayor Hi West, who is pulling for a United baseball league, is just before the game. He is now a prominent bird with the Standard Oil layout. Cherry Chase, undressed it on the ball grounds with his eye always on the main chance. He grew hoarse in asking everybody "how's your health?" Cherry is known as the insurance pest.

Helms Pfirrman, one of the greatest trap (and shotgun) shots in Los Angeles, has never turned out, fanned a spall with Larry McGrath, Director Al Green, who has young Hemingway under his wing, Pinkey Pickrell and Tom Meighan, occupied box 2. Frank Dillon—Old Pedro—was there with his annual appearance. Lefty Flynn, the three foot ball comet, was, of course, on hand and fought out every play as fiercely as the players themselves. Bill Starling, Georgie Lewis and parked at the entrance to the grand stand and would not be jarred from his moorings.

Larry Lieberman, hospitality up for fighters and given for the afternoon, was so interested in the game that he forgot to sit down and had to be carried to a seat until the sleeping fest stopped their tingling stuff. Among the early comers was Harry Carrol of the Seraphic Pickings, Mrs. Alma Davila, presiding priestess of the Angels, sat on her famous tripod in box 11. She has promised to "open up" for the season. Her favorable success this season and her determination is usually crowned with success.

Col. Jim Price, grand boss 11. He has been taken to the old diamond sport again and promises to be a frequent visitor this year. Bill Rube Foster, the Colonel's right bower, looked fit to go right into the old left garden and grab them from the score board operator. Lefty Tyler, the three foot ball comet, was on hand. Will there ever be another Rube Ellis? Mel Nardlinger occupied box 10 with a party. Rube Foster got his hot dog with enthusiasm as likes to gesticulate as if he were playing in the game. Howard Hamilton, Charley Ward, brother of Big Joe, viewed the game from box 1. Pete Daley, the grocers' delight and a terror on the ball field, was there in his way by sheer force to the reporter's eyrie over the grand stand and refused to be dislodged.

A big contingent of ball hogs from Catalina were the guests of William Wrigley in box 3. Among them were Jack Ward, brother of Big Joe, viewed the game from box 1. Pete Daley, the grocers' delight and a terror on the ball field, was there in his way by sheer force to the reporter's eyrie over the grand stand and refused to be dislodged.

Phil Salvador explained the fine points of the game to Mrs. Leary, the great pinch hitter of Dick Donald. In box 5 sat Lee Parvin and Ed Ridder, vice-president of the Pacific Coast Competition. Next to them reposed the stunning Mrs. Cliff Hahn, regarded as the best posted lady fan in Southern California. She was hailed by Ruth Selig, and both bubbled over with enthusiasm all through the joyous afternoon. Jimmy Austin, the big wig in the Stutz Motor Co., was about as importunately busy as a blue bottle fly on a humid afternoon.

Among others present were Eddie Rice, deputy United States marshal; Ed Harney of the Internal Revenue Department; Billy Cox with his sidekick Ralph Schroe, champion duck wing shot of the Sierra Nevadas; Jack Wine, Chuck Cooper of the H.A.A.; Dan Tabory, monarch of all announcers; Nick Harris, that partisanless franker of baseball fatsos and author of that famous book, "How to Safeguard the Home." ANGELS DROP OPENING GAME landed just inside the left-field foul line. McCann legged it home so fast that one of his socks came down, but Emmet never stopped to pull up the fallen hose until he crossed the plate. Thus showing that patriotism takes place not only on the battlefield. How many people in this world would run around the bases before 12,432 onlookers with one sock down? The first one sending in the correct answer will be given a free trip to Catalina Island in a rowboat.

After McCann had rolled up his sock, Duffy Lewis rapped one to Pittenger, who tossed wildly to first, High taking third and Lewis pulling up safe at first. Rohwer hit into a double-play, but High scored while the massacre was in progress.

Our Angels went out in front amid the cheers of the multitude in the third. Three hits, an error, and a water sprinkler accounted for the three seraph scores. Clyde Beck beat out an infield hit and rambled to second when Benton threw wildly to first. Charlie Root singled to left, putting Beck on third, and went to second on the throw-in. Then came Babe Twombly with a safe poke to center, scoring both runners. Just before the ball reached Rohwer, it hit a sprinkler, bounded over the center-fielders head, allowing Twombly to get a triple on a one-base hit. Whaley's sacrifice fly allowed Twombly to count with the Cherubs' final run of the day.

Bummer Grimes threatened to add to the Krugmen's run total in the fourth inning, which he started with a triple to center, but he died ingloriously on third while Hood, Sandberg and Beck went out in order.

The Ducks evened the count in the seventh, scoring one run on two hits, a couple of pinch-hitters, a bad decision by Ump Teck and maybe one or two other unimportant things. The bad decision didn't aid the Beavers, though, for it provided the Angels with the first out of the inning and probably prevented the visitors from scoring more than one run. Benton led off with a safe swat to center and Thomas followed with a skyscraper bunt that landed unmolested in back of Root for an infield hit. Hunnefield, batting for Crosby, laid down a perfect bunt and should have been safe at first, because Whaley's throw drew Beck off the base. Teck, however, was in no position to see that Beck was off the sack and called Hunnefield out. A short intermission ensued while the Beavers threatened to argue their point with Teck. The umpire, as usual, won the argument, and the game was resumed. While Yarrison, who was batting for Winters, was being thrown out by Beck, Benton scored with the tying marker.

Yarrison, after getting Beck out, walked Root and Twombly, causing Lewis to lift him in favor of Keefe. Keefe got the Angels out of their trouble thereafter.

Babe Thomas, Portland first-sacker, and Bill Whaley, Angel third baseman, provided the fielding features of the fray.

There will be another game today and it will count just as much as yesterday's tussle. Score:

WILSHIRE CLUB GOLFER VICTOR WITH 73 CARD

Neville Trails Leader by Turning in 75 Score; Four Tied for Third Honors at Beverly

BY W. C. WISE

Norman MacBeth, Wilshire, curled an 18-foot putt into the cup for an eagle 3 on the long 18th hole at the Los Angeles Country Club yesterday to win medal honors with a well shot in the first qualification round of the twenty-sixth annual amateur championship of the Southern California Golf Association.

Jack Neville, Los Angeles star, tied Macbeth with a 75, while Elmer Von Elm, L. P. Ferguson, Harlow Hurley and Capt. A. Bulwer Webster got home in 77s. J. McHugh, San Francisco golfer, Clair Griswold, Stanley Kavanagh, Jack Tarrant and W. W. Campbell all turned in scores of 78. Dr. Paul M. Hunter, present champion, got away to a bad start and finished with an 80.

Griswold, playing for the first time in as many months, pleased the gallery time and time by his fighting golf. Out in front playing in one and luck on the first holes, and with a chance to take low honors, his game went sour and he was forced to take a 7 over the last nine.

Von Elm, playing with Griswold, found his pitch shots too strong for nearly every green going out, which, coupled with his putting, resulted in a half-dozen strokes, going out in 41. He recovered somewhat and took a 36 for the last nine, giving him a card of 77. Defending champion of day Von Elm has all the earmarks of a champion, and while it is nearly impossible for him to recover enough to cut Macbeth's lead today, nothing short of a 70 or 71 can keep him out of the running.

Starting on schedule time, the golfers off found the going good and before noon, the early starters remained well over par, which up the game considerably and resulted in holding back the championship contenders. To offset against a similar condition the late starters' times have been better and play will start at the fifth instead of four minutes between each twosome.

Von Elm in particular suffered from the wait on each tee and after getting off to a flying start, promptly dropped back as the round progressed. After taking a 6 on the short second, Griswold from caught the sand in the third but a beautiful out to within three inches from the cup, Von Elm missed a thirty-foot putt for a birdie three and a par four, coming down in par fours.

STOPS IN CENTER

Von Elm's crashing 300-yard drive carried over the bunker and stopped in the center of the fairway, 30 feet past Von Elm's drive. Macbeth was 20 feet past the pin and got down for a 4. Griswold sank a 10-foot putt for a birdie 3. Griswold pulled his drive into the rough, on the long fifth, while Macbeth carried the hill with a 250-yard drive. Von Elm carried past the top of the hill, but with a strong wind behind them, both overshot the green. Both had good outs and Von Elm was down in a par 5, while Griswold took a 6.

Von Elm again drove the hill and again overpitched the flag. Griswold's long iron, from the top of the hill caught the green, hole high, but Clair missed another birdie by inches, the ball ringing the cup. Both were down in 4. Griswold was short on the seventh, but laid his pitch dead and then missed a five-foot putt. Von Elm took two putts for a par 3. Von Elm's drive caught the rough, but rolled nearly back to the fairway on the long eighth. Griswold kept to the fairway and laid his mashie pitch dead for a birdie 4. Von Elm was down in 5. Griswold sunk another 12-foot putt for a birdie 3 on the ninth, while Von Elm pitched past the cup and took two putts for a four.

FIVES ON TENTH

Both took five's on the tenth. Von Elm missed two putts and took a 5 on the eleventh, while Griswold scored with a 4. Von Elm took another 5 on the twelfth, while Griswold again sunk a long putt for a par 4. Von Elm drove into the sand on the left of the fairway going to the long thirteenth and shot a brassie out of the sand, straight down the fairway for 225 yards. Griswold missed a 12-foot putt for a 5 and was down in 4. Von Elm finally sunk a putt for a par 5. Von Elm laid his mashie shot dead on the fourteenth, but missed another 12-foot putt and was down in 5. Griswold overshot the green with a mashie iron and took a 4. Von Elm finished with a 4-5-2-4 for a 77, while Griswold with a 5-3-4-5 took 78.

HEADLIGHTS

John M. Arnelli and Clark Spaltz, first off, officially opened the championship. After shooting a 73 and 74 over the Los Angeles course Monday, Arnelli took an 85 to qualify.

J. S. Bransford, Los Angeles pioneer, uncle of Harold Lamb, Salt Lake golfer who taught Von Elm to play golf while the latter was still cadying over the Salt Lake course, joined the gallery following Von Elm and Griswold.

Stanley Hughes was too ill to start play yesterday.

Norman Macbeth, medalist yesterday, is one of the most popular golfers the sport has ever known. Mr. Macbeth devoted all of his time to laying out the beautiful Wilshire course and managed to steal time from his duties as president of the club to win the northern championship once and the southern amateur twice. While still a youngster, Mr. Macbeth won considerable golfing fame in his home country, Shadland, managed to invade England to amass additional golf trophies, and while living in Calcutta, India, held the championship of the empire. Since coming to Los Angeles, Mr. Macbeth has been an active figure in all golfing events and his win yesterday was nearly as popular as a championship win next Sunday. And playing through the rest of the tournament as he started yesterday, he will reach the finals.

Play will start at 9:45 this morning and there will be 5 minutes between each twosome and ample time out for starting, in order to avoid possible congestion.

Time of the driving contest has been set ahead and will be held from the first tee of the south course at 4 o'clock this afternoon. With two handsome trophies offered, the competition—best three balls over 150-foot fairway, should be keen.

Tournament officials have requested that their names be omitted until later in the week, but it would be sacrilegious to refrain from mentioning "Uncle Eddie" Tufts (and the "Uncle" must be for golf). Never quite without the smile that has endeared him to the local golfing fraternity, the president of the Los Angeles Club, nevertheless, refuses to let sentiment enter into any phase of the tournament. "May them shoot it out—when you tell them—this is a championship event—not a pink tea," is the concise way in which congenial "Uncle Eddie" diplomatically lays down the rules. And they couldn't have a tournament without him—nor without little Harold McNamara, club pro, who manages to remember everything that every one else has forgotten.

Arthur Letts, Jr., buried his ship shot in the side of the green playing the eleventh.

Dr. Paul Hunter, the champion, played true to form and hooked his first shot from the tee—then bounced still more into the rough, made a wonderful mashie putt and holed a long putt for a par 5.

McLoughlin's long iron on the third, stopped hole high on the green.

A. Bullock-Webster played out of the deep sand trap at the third green and laid his nibilick dead for a 6-foot putt and a birdie 3.

Seaver got in both sand traps playing up to the short second.

Harlow Hurley sunk a 35-foot putt for a birdie 3 on the second.

Richle and Armstrong each took two putts on the second green, both being down in 5.

John McHugh, Olympic Club golfer, shot a 69 on his home course before coming down to Los Angeles, and after playing through a lot of hard luck yesterday, turned in a card for 78. Johnnie started like a flash, but missed a 6-foot putt for a birdie 3 on the first.

A. Bullock-Webster pulled the real sensational shot of the day when his 100-yard mashie to the eighteenth green trickled into the cup for a birdie 3.

CABINET PICKED FOR EFFICIENCY

Politics Ignored in Choice of Official Family

Business Administration is Aim of Coolidge

President Flouts Expediency to Redeem Promises

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

WASHINGTON, April 7.—Measured by the political yardstick Calvin Coolidge now has assembled in Washington the most non-political Cabinet the capital has seen in many a day. For members of his intimate official family the President has not sought men who can deliver the votes in their respective States, neither has he consulted the politicians within the States from whence they come. The Cabinet has been chosen wholly with regard to the problems each department presents, with the qualifications of the men chosen to deal with them, as the President believes they should be dealt with.

Secretary of State Frank B. Kellogg of Minnesota is one of the outstanding examples of a Cabinet member who has no particular political influence at home. He was defeated for re-election to the Senate three years ago, and President Harding promptly made him Ambassador to England. In that position Mr. Kellogg made good. Furthermore, the job developed him in other ways. He is no longer the taciturn, fearful and legal-minded gentleman that hides his business under a bushel basket. On the other hand, he is not a talkative, flamboyant man, trying to capitalize his job, politically or personally.

KELLOGG MAKES GOOD

So far as his public relations are concerned he has stepped into Mr. Hughes's shoes with a directness and a frankness which has astonished many. In his desire to inform the public and the press there is no essential difference between Mr. Kellogg and Mr. Hughes. Politically speaking, however, Mr. Kellogg will contribute little to the Coolidge administration.

Secretary of the Treasury Andrew W. Mellon and Secretary of Commerce Hoover are experts in their respective lines of work, but they are not politically minded. Mr. Mellon is undoubtedly one of the most successful Secretaries of Treasury the country has ever had, and Mr. Hoover is of equal rank as an administrator of the public business.

While Mr. Mellon is rated as controlling Pennsylvania, along with Senator Reed and one or two others, it is Reed who furnishes the politics and Mellon who furnishes the money and the moral support.

Mr. Hoover likewise played an important part in California in the recent election, but he worked pretty much behind the scenes, while others caught and threw bricks in the open.

Secretary of the Navy Wilbur is another ex-lawyer who is not politically minded. William M. Jardine of Kansas, the new Secretary of Agriculture, has had little to do with politics, and was not chosen for political but for agricultural purposes. Likewise James J. Davis, Secretary of Labor, while more active politically than most members of the Cabinet, is really in the Cabinet for other than political purposes.

There are three members of the Coolidge Cabinet who have had wide political experience, but none of them are working at politics these days. John W. Weeks, Secretary of War, who was a Presidential possibility in 1916, ran the Coolidge headquarters in New York the last few weeks of the campaign last fall. Mr. Weeks is ready to retire from the Cabinet, but so far as is known has no further political ambitions.

Harry S. New, Postmaster-General, was formerly vice-chairman of the Republican National Committee, and devoted much of his time to politics without seeking personal reward. After his defeat for re-election to the Senate two years ago he became a member of the Harding Cabinet. President Coolidge retained him because he thought he was doing a good job in straightening out the affairs of Postoffice Department, and Mr. New is far more interested in wiping out the deficit in that department than he is in politics.

Hubert Work, Secretary of the Interior, was formerly national committeeman from Colorado. He played politics as a side issue to his profession as a doctor. At one time he was president of the American Medical Association. While he still retains his personal interest in politics Mr. Work is giving his entire time to his department, and only enters into political discussions when asked for advice.

It is becoming apparent here that the President has no notion of calling on the Cabinet for political advice. He has been elected for four years on a clear mandate, and, as he interprets the situation which confronts him, he has nothing to do but carry out the promises he has made to the country.

Such political advice as is needed, therefore, is largely a matter of detail, and the three men who will be looked to in the matter of detail are William M. Butler, Senator from Massachusetts and chairman of the Republican National Committee; John G. Sargent, the new Attorney-General, who knows the mind of President Coolidge as few men do, and Everett Sanders of Indiana, Secretary to the President.

The relations of all of these men to President Coolidge are such that they can tell him the truth—not all of it, but most of it.

One of the curious things about the office of President is the fact that it is not always possible to tell a President the whole truth about things. Oftentimes the President's best friends enter his presence fully determined to unburden themselves with disagreeable information or advice which they think he ought to have, only to come away without doing so. The usual excuse is "I had no opening" or "I didn't get a chance."

Once in a while some blundering, talkative person comes along and tells the President the whole truth and then the cat is out of the bag. This condition is not peculiar to President Coolidge. It applies to all Presidents, always has and probably always will. It is one of those handicaps which go with the office, and nobody can explain it.

IDENTIFY SLAIN MAN BY BONES

Constable Asserts Remains Are Those of Wood

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

EL CENTRO, April 7.—That human bones introduced in evidence today in the trial of John T. Sheer and Frank Uselton, charged with the murder of Barney Wood, were those of Wood, was the opinion of witnesses testifying for the State after they had examined the skeleton. Dist.-Atty. Utley sought to identify the bones as those of the aged Brawley rancher and exhibited the sandy red hair and beard that had been found with the bones in a shallow grave on the Wood place.

Constable O'Brien of Brawley, who asserted that he knew Barney Wood well, testified that Wood wore a short sandy beard and had a sparse head covering of hair of the same color. He also testified that Wood was accustomed to trim his beard with a pair of old shears. In the opinion of Constable O'Brien the remains displayed on a table in the courtroom were those of Wood who disappeared from his ranch near Brawley in October, 1922, the grave and bones being found last December.

E. O. Heinrich, criminologist of Brawley, testified at length on the broken skull tending to show that heavy blows had been rained on the head and that these probably caused his death.

When Heinrich was asked how he determined that the beard belonged to one who had cut it with shears, the witness explained by a diagram that tended to prove to all present in the courtroom the importance of small details in cases of this kind. The witness showed that a hair, when cut with a razor or knife, showed under the microscope a diagonal end. Hair cut by a pair of shears showed always the crushing effect of the two blades of the instrument, and it was this condition that Heinrich said he found in the hairs of the beard in evidence.

A jury was obtained shortly after noon.

Uselton is represented by C. E. Scott and Sheer by S. W. Thompson of Los Angeles and Edgar B. Hervey of El Centro. Assisting the District Attorney are Deputy J. E. Simpson and D. C. Bitler.

BRITAIN AND MEXICO MAY PATCH SPLIT

Negotiations for Renewal of Relations Hinted When Calles Honors Briton

BY JACK STARR-HUNT
[BY CABLE—EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

MEXICO CITY, April 7.—President Calles has appointed Bertram E. Holloway as Mexico's official representative at the International Railway Congress, which will meet in London on June 22.

The appointment has created a stir in view of the fact that Mr. Holloway is a British subject and is general manager of the British-owned Mexicano Railway. He has been noted for his efforts to secure a resumption of diplomatic and commercial relations between Mexico and Great Britain. His appointment in preference to a Mexican railroad man is considered most significant. It is being maintained that his mission that will take him to London will have the double motive of enabling him to take up personally with the British Foreign Office the Mexican situation with the view to reaching some agreement acceptable to both England and Mexico. The underlying hope is that he will be able to break the deadlock that has existed between both countries.

Author Amends Owens Valley's Reparation Bill

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

SACRAMENTO, April 7.—With a view to making Los Angeles city liable for asserted damages to property in Owens Valley through the appropriation of water for the city's water supply, Senator J. M. Inman today amended his Owens Valley reparation bill introduced at the behest of the farmers of the valley.

As originally presented the Inman bill was designed to enable the city of Los Angeles to pay any claim she determined might be due the property owners of Owens Valley, but as amended the bill would make a municipal corporation liable for all damages suffered by property owners due to the appropriation of water for the corporation's use.

Another section of the bill provides that any municipal corporation which has heretofore, or is now drawing water from any watershed and by reason thereof has heretofore caused damage to property within the watershed, "is authorized and empowered to pay, compromise or arbitrate any damage or claim for damages," claimed by any person, firm or corporation.

Process Found to Get Vanadine From Iron Ores

[BY CABLE—EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

STOCKHOLM, April 7.—Rutger Von Zeths, a Swedish metallurgic authority, has patented a method of extracting vanadine from Swedish phosphorus and iron ores. While producing pig iron he also gets vanadine, in the same percentage as American vanadine ores, and workable by the same methods.

Practical experiments in the famous iron works of Domvaret have been highly successful. With a yearly Swedish pig iron production of 100,000 tons, about 100 tons of vanadine will be a byproduct. It is calculated that the cost will be 10 Swedish crowns (about 35 cents) per kilo. The new method is considered important, as the whole world production is only about 1000 tons.

SANTA BARBARA, April 7.—Hearing in bankruptcy proceedings against E. G. Lewis of Atascadero, which was to have been held in Atascadero today, was continued by United States Commissioner W. P. Butcher, Jr., for two weeks. Following a report from Los Angeles, to the effect that arrangements have been made between Lewis and the Anglo-California Trust Company of San Francisco for a settlement of his liabilities, it is regarded here as unlikely that the case will be taken up on the 21st inst. Another continuance is regarded as likely.

STILLMAN CASE REOPENED

Banker Contends That Evidence of Importance Was Excluded in First Divorce Trial

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

ALBANY (N. Y.) April 7.—Efforts of James A. Stillman, New York banker, to prove baby Guy Stillman the son of Fred Beauvais, Indian guide, and Mrs. Fifi Potter Stillman, have been renewed in the Court of Appeals. Former Gov. Nathan L. Miller, appearing for Mr. Stillman, argued that much important testimony was excluded from the divorce trial, thus entitling Mr. Stillman to a rehearing in the lower courts. The lower courts denied Stillman a divorce.

Mr. Miller, in arguing for a new trial, declared with emphasis: "The evidence which was excluded proved conclusively that this half-breed Indian Beauvais was the father of the child whose paternity is in question."

Mr. Miller insisted that when the divorce action was begun Mrs. Stillman was making plans to marry Beauvais.

The former Governor called to the court's attention that on the very day Guy was born Mrs. Stillman directed her nurse to send to Beauvais a telegram which read: "Black bear arrived."

Mr. Miller reviewed the case in minute detail and at times pounded the table in front of which he stood addressing the court.

The appellate division, he insisted, had struck out the findings of the referee in which he acquitted Mrs. Stillman of the charge of adultery. "The reason that the appellate division struck that out was because it could not stomach such an adjudication," he said.

He recited how Mrs. Stillman, before baby Guy was born, had gone to Buffalo to consult Dr. Russell and that she had borrowed $200 from him and said she was going to Boston to consult another physician.

"To my mind," continued the former Governor "the evidence in this case is plain that Mrs. Stillman went to Boston for the purpose of having an illegal operation performed, but that after reaching Boston she changed her mind.

"It was then that Dr. Russell told her that her husband was her best friend and that she had better go home. A few days later she informed Dr. Russell 'I have told Jimmie' which means she had informed her husband of her condition. The letter which she wrote to her husband at that time was excluded but it proved beyond a doubt who was the father of the child."

Mr. Miller will be followed by ex-Judge Isaac Mills, counsel for Mrs. Stillman, and John E. Mack, guardian for baby Guy.

Britain's Only Blimp is Given Tryout Cruise

[BY CABLE—EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

LONDON, April 7.—The R-33, Great Britain's only airship, was safely moored to the mast at Pulham, Norfolk, at noon today, after a fifteen-hour cruise around South England. The ship passed over London early this morning and was seen only by a few night birds, though the noise awakened many in the suburbs, recalling the Zeppelin raids.

The trip was entirely satisfactory and many tests were made which will be useful in the construction of new ships for the empire air service.

URGES PLAN OF RECLAMATION

Oregon Senator Advances Nation-wide Program

Ideas Advanced as Providing for Comprehensive Policy

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE]

WASHINGTON, April 7.—A national reclamation program which he will advocate at the next session of Congress was made public today by Senator McNary, Oregon, chairman of the Irrigation and Reclamation Committee.

Senator McNary's plan embraces all forms of reclamation including the drainage of swamp lands in the South, the placing of water on the arid regions of the intermountain and Pacific Coast States, removal of stumps from cutover lands in the Great Lakes region, the flooding of lands in the Mississippi Valley States to provide subsoiled irrigation, restoration of soil in the New England States, flood control on the Colorado and other construction of dams which will develop hydroelectric power.

The Senator announced he would propose estimate by Congress of a revolving fund of $350,000,000 to $500,000,000 to capitalize reclamation approved by the Secretary of the Interior and incorporated under the laws of the State or the States in which they might be situated.

The plan would contemplate the issuance of bonds by the incorporated reclamation districts or projects, which, in the opinion of Senator McNary would find a ready market. Proceeds from the sale of the bonds would be used to repay advances made by the government out of the revolving fund.

Reviewing the reclamation proposals now pressing upon Congress, including the Boulder Dam project on the Colorado River, Senator McNary asserted that "Congress will not desire to take up these projects one by one, by an appropriation directly from the Treasury."

"Such a policy," he said, "would encourage log rolling, incite jealousy among the advocates of the various projects with the result that all would fall by reason of unscientific methods used.

"The government needs a comprehensive and constructive policy of reclamation which can be invoked whenever the needs of an expanded agriculture required. Such legislation must avoid the appearance of carrying Federal aid to the point where it may be denominated a subsidiary. Such a term could be applied if each of the various projects were to be constructed out of funds directly withdrawn from the Treasury. The national plan which has been suggested would not change the opposition of those unfavorable to Federal assistance."

TEUTON SHIP BUILDING IS INCREASING

Expansion Told in Lloyds Register; United States Drops to Seventh Place

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE]

NEW YORK, April 7.—Expansion of German shipbuilding and an increase in motor-ship construction are outstanding facts brought out in a statement covering the world's shipbuilding in the quarter ending March 31, last, issued by Lloyds Register of Shipping today.

German shipyards including those of the international port of Danzig, now are building about 120,000 tons more than a year ago, and rank second to Great Britain and Ireland, which in the same period have declined about 310,000 tons. The United States, fourth in shipbuilding a year ago, has dropped to seventh place, American builders having on hand today 81,000 tons as against 119,000 on March 31, 1924.

Japanese building has fallen off 30,000 tons, as compared with March 31, 1924.

Fifty-two per cent of all ships building are motor-ships, the world survey shows. All shipbuilding totals 3,396,000 tons, of which 1,022,000 tons represents motor-ships.

The world total for all classes of shipbuilding is 74,000 tons less than for the quarter ending December 31, 1924, and 120,000 tons less for the first quarter of 1924.

Ohio Fire Viewed as Reprisal by Chapman Pals

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

HARTFORD (Ct.) April 7.—"Now the reprisals begin," commented State's Attorney Hugh M. Alcorn today upon learning of the fire in Steubenville, O., which destroyed the garage owned by James H. Snyder, one of the State withnesses against Gerald Chapman at the recent trial for murder here.

Snyder and Miss Catherine Boorn, clerical superintendent of the garage, testified concerning the stolen Lincoln touring car, which figured in the robbery of the Davidson and Leventhal store in New Britain on the morning Patrolman James J. Skelly was slain.

Nathan O. Freedman of this city, junior counsel for Chapman, said it was possible sympathizers of Chapman fired the garage, but added: "Why blame it on his associates? It may have been an accident. At least nobody can blame it on Chapman while he is safely in prison."

EMIR SAID SAID TO BE HOMELESS

Royal Kurd Likened to Hale's Man Who Had No Native Port

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE]

NEW YORK, April 7.—The "Emir of Kurdestan" like Phillip Nolan, the fictional character of Edward Everett Hale's story, was placed today in the role of a man without a country.

The transformation was accomplished by a special immigration board of inquiry at Ellis Island which decided that the self-styled "Emir" whose name is Prince Mohammed Said Zerdecheno, must be deported to England on the earliest eastbound steamer of the White Star Line.

Mohammed Said just got back here a few days ago after Ellis Island officials had deported him on the steamship Celtic on March 14. The British authorities refused to grant him entrance at the port of Southampton and started the trans-Atlantic game of shuttle-cock with him.

The "Emir" says he is not loathe to leave, he wants to get back to Kurdestan to lead his armies now in the field. He said he came here last July to "interest American capital in the oil and minerals of my Turkish province" and was deported because the United States would not recognize a provincial diplomatic passport.

Immigration officials asserted that the "Royal" visitor had a police record in the United States, France and England.

Mohammed Said has the right to appeal his case to the Secretary of Labor in Washington.

Girls Play With Matches; Whole Town Wiped Out

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

MARQUETTE (Mich.) April 7. Another chapter to the "old, old story" of "children playing with matches" was written today at Chatham, about thirty miles east of Marquette, when two little girls playing with matches in the hay barn of Frank Hill, started a fire that virtually wiped out the small village. The Alger county infirmary, the Chatham school and hotel, the Lake Superior and Ishpeming Railroad Company station and section house, a garage and the residence of C. C. Brown are the only buildings standing undamaged by the blaze, fifteen buildings being in ashes.

The loss is estimated at between $60,000 to $100,000 and may run higher.

OKLAHOMA PAGEANT TO RECALL HISTORY

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

OKLAHOMA CITY, April 7.—The most pretentious attempt to reproduce the first "run" for public lands in Oklahoma is to be made here on April 22 when the State will celebrate the thirty-sixth anniversary of the original Oklahome opening. The Civitan Club of Oklahoma City is back of the enterprise, and is being assisted by the Eighty-Niners, an association of men and women who came here at the opening. A huge parade is to be led by William L. Alexander, former Texan who rode a cow pony in the run in '89, as grand marshal.

Among other men of prominence to take part in the chief events will be Dennis Flynn, former delegate to Congress from Oklahoma Territory; W. J. Pettee, who established the first hardware store in Oklahoma City; Daniel Peery of Carnegie, who led the first attempt in a Territorial Legislature to remove the capital from Guthrie to Oklahoma City; Dr. David R. Boyd, first president of the University of Oklahoma, and Charles F. Colcord, oil operator and capitalist, who was an early-day town marshal. Indians from all former nations of the State are to be invited.

Arizona Federal Officers and Rum-Runners Battle on Border

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE]

NOGALES (Ariz.) April 7.—Members of the Federal border patrol and deputy sheriffs engaged in a running gun battle along the International line near here late Saturday night with a band of men bringing a pack train loaded with liquor into the United States, it was learned today.

It is believed that two members of the smuggling band were injured. Blood was found at the scene of the affray. One of the men was captured and is being held in jail here.

The government and county forces escaped injury, although the rum-runners fired a fusillade of shots into their midst when the order to halt was shouted.

Eight pack animals carrying fifty cases of liquor were seized by the officers.

DOROTHY HURLS CUP AT LAWYER

Jazz Girl Stages Scene in Sanity Trial

Resents Attorneys' Effort to Prove Her Insane

Declares She Will Disclose Truth on Stand

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE]

SAN FRANCISCO, April 7.—The sanity trial of Dorothy Ellingson, the 17-year-old matricide, developed tense and dramatic situations today. The girl, giving vent to the anger she has felt at the efforts of her attorneys to have her adjudged insane, jumped up in the midst of testimony this afternoon, hurled a paper cupful of water at them, slammed a bottle of smelling salts on the table and cried: "Your can't talk about me like that. Wait until I take the stand and tell about it and then the truth will come out!"

Her lawyers backed away wiping their coats, while the girl wept. Judge Louderback ordered a recess.

Dorothy's outburst followed several days of quiet demeanor. Sylvester McAtee, seated beside her chief counsel, Alexander Mooslin, was cross-examing Dr. Edward W. Twitchell, another prosecution alienist. The defense attorney wanted to know whether normality was indicated in a girl who had killed her mother merely because the mother had objected to the girl's night life and requested her to quit late hours and get a job. Dr. Twitchell said it was not a normal act, but was not necessarily an evidence of insanity.

Mr. McAtee then asked what the witness thought of the behavior of a girl, who, when arrested for such a crime and taken to police headquarters in the middle of the night, displayed more interest in newspapers than in anything else and objected to a sketch of her by "a bum artist."

HURLS CUP

At this point the defendant became greatly agitated. Suddenly she seized the paper cupful of water beside her and threw it unerringly at Mr. McAtee and Mr. Mooslin. The smelling salts bottle was hurled on counsel's table with a crash. The girl spoke her defiant words, then sat down and wept as three jail matrons gathered around her. The court was in confusion.

When Dr. Twitchell's cross-examination was concluded Asst. Dist.-Atty. Harmon D. Skillin asked him whether he could explain the defendant's outburst. The specialist said he regarded it as "the hysterical outburst of an irritated individual."

Dr. Twitchell contended that while the defendant was intellectually sane she was "morally defective."

"She knows what she should do," he explained, "but doesn't do it. She is callous in her ethical relations."

In the course of his cross-examination he admitted that "the very fact that she killed her mother is abnormal," but maintained that he could not class her as legally or medically insane and held that her abnormalities all were on the moral plane.

Dr. Catton, who is an instructor in neurology at Stanford University, was firm in his belief of the girl's mental competence. As indictative that she felt normal emotions, he said, she had told him in references to killing her mother:

"I feel the same remorse for it anyone else would feel."

He said she had objected to the sanity proceedings and had indicated that she didn't want to go to any asylum, but hoped that she might some day be allowed to plead guilty and let the court decide her case.

UNDERSTANDS CASE

Earlier in the day Dr. Catton identified a statement of an interview with the girl. He had written it and she had signed it. In it the girl replied to questions relating to the interruption of her murder trial last week and the beginning of the sanity proceedings. According to her responses she understood what turn her case had taken and the issues involved in the new situation. He added that her frequent fainting spells during the days a jury was being impaneled for the murder trial were no indication of insanity, but were natural hysterical manifestations.

The girl had told him she would rather stand trial for murder because otherwise she "might have to be sent somewhere and have to stand it later—the quicker the better."

The girl also said that "if necessary" she could go into court and defend herself and, according to Dr. Catton, expressed a desire to "tell her story and leave it to a judge."

When court adjourned this evening indications were that the case might go to the jury late tomorrow.

Skipper Avers Ocean Current Alters Course

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

NEW YORK, April 7.—The Humboldt current, which shapes a course northward along the west coast of South America from the Antarctic Ocean is changing. This news was brought here today by Skipper George S. Dester of the Grace liner Santa Luisa, which came from Valparaiso.

The current is noted for its coldness and no rainfall is experienced ordinarily along its path, said Capt. Dester, who observed on his recent trip that the temperature of the current was as high as 75 deg. F.

"On Chinca Island and the Guanpe group off the coast of Peru are homes of millions of birds, and the sky is usually black with the spread of their wings. On this trip we saw only hundreds where there were millions," said Capt. Dester. "In the water about them were millions of dead fish.

FACTORS STOCK YIELD IS CITED

Net Return Lowest of Sugar Holdings, Cooke Avers

Figures Shown in Support of Hackfeld Valuation

Piecemeal Sale Alternative of Palmer Plan

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE]

SAN FRANCISCO, April 7.—Any dividend-paying sugar stock listed on the Hawaiian exchange in July, 1918, yielded a higher rate of return on the investment up to December 31, 1923, than did stock in American Factors, Ltd., R. A. Cooke testified today in the Hackfeld-American Factors equity suit.

Cooke submitted a list of figures showing American Factors stock during that period paid a net return of 15.7 per cent, while other sugar stocks paid an average well over that figure and amounting, in the case of the Hawaiian Pineapple Company to 56.9 per cent.

These and other figures presented by the defense served to indicate that stockholders in American Factors have received only what the defense contends is a fair rate of return on their investment. Had a price in excess of $7,500,000 been paid for the business of H. Hackfeld & Co., the rate of return would have been inadequate, the defendants maintain.

The alternative of liquidation and piecemeal sale of the Hackfeld assets in event of refusal of the Hackfeld stockholders to concur in the alien property custodian's reorganization plan, was ascribed by Cooke to A. Mitchell Palmer, custodian. He and his Hawaiian associates favored selling the enemy-owned Hackfeld stock, amounting to 27,000 shares, in event Palmer's plan was not carried out, Cooke testified.

J. F. C. Hagens was advised early in July, 1918, that he would not be retained as manager of the new organization of American Factors, Cooke said.

"He took it very nicely and agreed with us that it would be best for him to withdraw as an active official." Cooke testified. The witness could not recall when J. F. Humburg received notice that he would not be retained as San Francisco manager.

Cooke said he did not know where R. H. Trent got his figure of $8,400,000, which Trent at one time informed Palmer he and his associates had fixed as a fair price for the Hackfeld business.

The witness explained what he termed an erroneous method of figuring valuations used by the audit company. Cooke said he arrived at a valuation of $265 for the Hackfeld stock when the same stock was selling on the open market for $200. Cooke's calculations went in as an exhibit. The defense argued they proved conclusively the fallacy of the method of calculation employed by the audit company.

BELGIUM IN POLITICAL QUANDARY

Socialists and Catholics Shy at Mandate to Form Government

[BY CABLE—EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

BRUSSELS, April 7.—The final Belgian election returns are nearing completion. The figures tonight indicate that there will be seventy-nine Catholics instead of eighty; seventy-seven Socialists instead of sixty-eight; twenty-one Liberals instead of thirty-three, five Frontists instead of four, and two Communists.

Conjectures regarding the form of the new government are still uncertain. Former Premier Theunis will refuse a mandate even if he is offered it with a promise of Liberal collaboration which is doubtful. Both the Socialists and the Catholics are hesitating about accepting a mandate, each hoping that the other will be invited to form a government after which it will be defeated on a vote of confidence.

Although the Catholics constitute the largest party, it is explained that the King may be justified in calling the Socialists first on the ground that they were the only victors in the election. Before the Socialists accept they will call a general congress to decide.

PREDICT RETIREMENT OF KING FERDINAND

[BY CABLE—EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

BUDAPEST, April 7. — The Azest, the leading Budapest newspaper, publishes a dispatch from Bucharest that, during the illness of King Ferdinand of Rumania, his place will be taken by a royal council consisting of Queen Marie, the Crown Prince and the Minister President. King Ferdinand will depart shortly for the South of France to convalesce. Following closely a report of his impending abdication, which Bucharest officially denies, this dispatch indicates a strong possibility of King Ferdinand not returning to active leadership in the government.

RAID UNCOVERS HUGE VICE RING

Ten Million-Dollar Business Indicated by Records

Chicago Police Fail to Get All of Expected Evidence

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

CHICAGO, April 7.—Eight men seized last night in the asserted headquarters of vice and liquor in Chicago, a ring said to be doing a business of $10,000,000 a year in trafficking in liquor and women, were charged today with disorderly conduct, the mildest and minimum violation provided in the city ordinances. This necessitated their being booked and in less than half an hour their lawyers sued out writs of habeas corpus and they will be arraigned tomorrow.

Considerable disappointment was experienced by Federal agents today when the elaborate offices of the ring yielded only telephone numbers instead of names of patrons. A check of these numbers showed the futility of prosecution on that evidence, as a majority of them were hotel or business numbers, each with fifty to a 1000 persons at the other end.

REAL RECORDS MISSING

What books fell into the hands of the raiders showed profits of $75,000 monthly, but the real records of the gigantic concern, if any are kept, were not captured. It was shown that forty-four barrels of "drinking" alcohol was on hand, ready for delivery. Long shelves were filled with pints and half pints of every variety of booze. Presumably these were samples from which customers ordered in case or barrel lots. The buyer would take a sample to his chemist for analysis before ordering in larger quantities, but what he finally got was vastly different from the sample.

More than 400 persons, many of them prominent saloon-keepers, hotel or drug clerks and owners, are known to be on the lists of the syndicate, which confined its operations to liquor, women and stolen goods, with an occasional murder if that became necessary.

The raid was described by Chief of Detectives John Stege as of "gigantic importance" and he predicted an investigation that would blow the lid off a mammoth criminal association.

Edward Waters, special investigator of the income-tax bureau, was denied permission to see the records. Government agents who have been investigating traffic in women here for several weeks, also demanded access to the captured records, but were turned away.

RESPECTABLE FRONT

The arrests were made at 2416 Michigan avenue in spacious offices, where shiny expensive desks and oriental rugs, polished floors and draped windows lent an air of great respectability to the headquarters. Among the "office help" arrested were Johnny Patton, former "boy Mayor" of Burnham, in its most notorious days; Robert McCullough, Joseph Fusco, Leo Clark, Frank Nitta, Philip Kimmals, Joseph Piza and Anthony Arasso. All have police records.

To keep up the fiction of the imaginary physician whose name appeared on the door, the syndicate rigged up the first room of the suite in the semblance of a doctor's reception room. According to information in the hands of the police, the syndicate had connections in New York, Miami, Fla., and New Orleans. A telephone bill of $287 for last month indicated long-distance calls. All the men arrested have been closely connected with Johnny Torrio, the admitted vice king of Chicago, and other leaders in vice business of all varieties.

MANY DUPED IN FRENCH OIL FRAUD

Mercurio, the Promoter, Leaves Pay for Helpers and Disappears

[BY CABLE—EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

PARIS, April 7.—The American Foreign Oil Corporation bubble burst yesterday when it became known that the moving spirit in the affair, Michel Mercurio, Paris banker, has left Paris and been accused by the government of fraud. French investors, who thought they were putting money into a serious Mexican oil producing concern, are out more than 100,000,000 francs.

Mercurio succeeded in making dupes of a number of well-known Frenchmen who accepted positions on the board of directors of the corporation.

According to government authorities, Mercurio founded in 1908, under the laws of the State of Virginia, the American Foreign Oil Corporation. Two million shares were issued, and Mercurio, in 1921, obtained permission to place 300,000 shares in France, where he enlisted financial aid of the Berman banking houses. The shares, issued at seventy-five francs each, mounted in view of apparently authentic reports Mercurio presented. Something happened two months ago, presumably Mercurio's unloading, and the stock fell to forty francs. Charges of fraud, made by newspapers, brought threats of suits by Mercurio, and one or two papers made apologies.

After investigation the Prosecuting Attorney decided to act. Yesterday, when he went to look for Mercurio, the promoter had vanished. Money enough to pay his office force for two months was left. He is said to be in Italy.

LAW INSTITUTE PLAN TO FORE

Territorial Waters Code is Discussed

Convention Draft Embodies Advanced Thought

Geneva Decision Directs Attention to Proposal

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE]

WASHINGTON, April 7.—The session of the Geneva Commission of International Jurists to take up the question of territorial waters is one of four projects of international law codification to be considered at its present session, attaching new importance to the similar plan worked out by the American Institute of International Law. Institute for the coming American law codification conference in Rio de Janeiro. Draft conventions on "national waters" and "jurisdiction" framed by the Institute embody recent findings by experts on all American questions on the questions now before the Geneva gathering.

The proposals leave the off-shore limit of "territorial sea" to be indefinite, but they would establish a general rule that the outer boundary of such sea, within which the adjoining nation could exercise territorial sovereignty, would "follow the sinuosities of the coast" except as to bays of stipulated width at the mouth and with both shores under the same sovereignty. In such cases, a straight line across the mouth of the bay is provided for, while in "international bays" where the shore is owned by two nations, the "sinuosities" rule would prevail.

SUBSOIL SOVEREIGNTY

The convention also would declare sovereignty over "the bottom and subsoil" of territorial sea, fix the rule for exact location of boundaries that fall in international waters or channels and otherwise standardize practice to eliminate confusion.

Several proposals come in the "codification" convention. It will consider the general right of innocent passage, within the zone contiguous to territorial seas, the purpose of a vessel commenced within territorial waters, "and to bring a vessel before its (the territorial sovereign's) courts."

One supplemental provision is that the American republics may extend their jurisdiction beyond the territorial sea, parallel with such zone for an additional distance of twelve marine miles for reasons of security and in order to assure observance of sanity and customs regulations."

Another provision would make crimes committed aboard merchant craft subject to the law of the flag of the ship, even when committed within the territorial sea of another nation, unless "they disturb the order and public tranquility of the region where they have been committed" when the territorial sovereignty would have jurisdiction."

AIRCRAFT BASES

A separate provision would grant to maratime nations the right of occupation of the high seas contiguous to their territorial sea for the "more or less permanent establishmens" of nonmilitary aircraft bases, radio and cable stations, lighthouses, scientific exploration bases and refuge stations for shipwrecked persons. In no case could such bases be fortified or used even indirectly for military or naval purposes.

The convention would lay down the flat rule that merchant ships are subject to "the administrative and criminal laws and procedure" of the nation in whose territorial sea they sail, although passengers and crew and their property aboard are subject to the law of their own flag.

During the stay here the visitors will mingle with one of the city's most important annual events, the Pioneers' annual reunion, which will bring several thousand typical Arizonans to the city.

The local Chamber of Commerce is preparing for a return excursion and has appointed an executive committee of arrangements headed by Fred J. Paine, State agent of the Standard Oil Company. While it is possible a special train will be determined upon, it is more probable that the westbound caravan will be by auto, probably during the first week in May, when the participants need not return, but can continue on their summer vacation. Keen interest is being taken in the proposed journey by a number of Coast cities. San Diego, Long Beach and Los Angeles have written with offers of hospitality.

TROUBLE ENOUGH IN HUMAN VACCINATION

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

SAN ANTONIO (Tex.) April 7. Suggestion of the Live-Stock Sanitary Commission that dogs be vaccinated against rabies, does not meet favor in San Antonio. Dr. W. A. King, city health officer, said that he does not see any reason for lining the canine family up for vaccination.

"We have had trouble enough with our compulsory vaccination ordinance for school-children and I am adverse to taking on any further responsibilities in this direction," he said.

CHICAGO KILLS TRACTION BILL

Dever City Purchase Plan Loses by 101,674

Proposed to Pay $248,000,000 for Street Lines

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

CHICAGO, April 7.—Mayor William E. Dever's transportation ordinance which today placed before this municipality one of the greatest traction problems in the history of American cities, went down in overwhelming defeat after a bitter campaign. It was beaten by a majority of 101,674 votes. More than 558,000 persons went to the polls.

Mayor Dever's plan to solve the Chicago traction snarl provided for the purchase of the gigantic surface and elevated lines from the local utilities companies at a total price of $348,000,000 ($163,000,000 for the surface lines and $85,000,000 for the elevated lines,) combining them for the purpose of eliminating double fares, building extensions of 218 miles of new elevated railroad and 247 miles of surface lines, 49 miles of subways, and non-political management of the whole.

BONDS PROPOSED

The purchases and extensions were to be financed with special bonds, called municipal railway certificates, payable out of the earnings. The interest rate on the certificates was to be 5 per cent and the debt was to be paid in forty years.

The plan of operation was that three members were to be named by the city, three by the investors and three by agreement.

The Mayor's plan was devised to meet a crisis in local transportation affairs. The franchise of the surface lines expires in 1927. Under the Illinois law no franchise can be granted for more than twenty years, and financiers hold that investors look askance at investing their money in propositions of such magnitude governed by franchises of such short duration and which are at the mercy, sooner or later, of unscrupulous politicians or receiverships.

The Mayor and the officials of the utilities companies arrived at the quasi-municipal ownership solution after nearly two years of dickering.

POPULAR DISTRUST

Probably the primary cause of the defeat of the plan is a popular distrust of municipal ownership and operation. Hundreds of citizens who expressed their opinion on the ordinance before the election said that its adoption meant "more graft and politics." They feared an increase in fares, a boost in taxes with consequent raise in rents.

All through the campaign the bone of contention was subways, of which Chicago is in dire need. Subways for Chicago have been talked of for years; Aldermanic committees have toured Europe studying systems in London, Paris and Berlin, but no definite move had been made up to this time to dig them. With the city's one-mile-square downtown loop crammed and jammed to the point of suffocation, newspaper reports from Los Angeles, St. Louis and other cities brought the subway question to a fever heat.

With the Dever plan beaten, the city now faces another problem that is fraught with chaos, unless some solution is brought forth within the next two years. Mayor Dever has two years more in office and the surface lines have two years more before Federal receivership closes down upon them. Time remains to draft a new and simpler ordinance.

PLANS PROPOSED

Several plans are in view:

quest of Samuel Insull, president of the elevated lines, for permission to build elevated extensions at a cost of $20,000,000, still pending before the local transportation committee.

The use of the $40,000,000 traction fund for the building of an initial subway by the city.

A possible plan to introduce at Springfield a bill to enable Chicago to grant forty or fifty-year franchises.

"The next plan should be for a subway which is a subway, one that will cover all parts of Chicago. Use the surface lines as feeders for the subway and use busses as feeders for the surface lines. Use the elevated line only as they do in New York—as transportation agencies only until they can be supplanted."

B. H. Sullivan, son of the late Roger C. Sullivan, who had financed quite largely the fight against the defeated traction ordinance, said tonight:

"I congratulate the people of Chicago upon their victory. Had the ordinance passed there would have been filed papers already prepared in my office which would have sought an injunction against its enforcement. The thing to do now is for the people as the owners of the streets to decide upon the terms on which they will rent these streets, ever mindful that we own the streets, and that for the sake of equity, as well as for our own selfish interests, we should be fair to their tenants."

Californians Are Among Pilgrims Greeted by Pope

ROME, April 7.—Pope Pius today, after celebrating mass in the presence of about 200 invited guests from various nations, including thirty-two pilgrims from San Francisco, tendered to all the visitors his hand to be kissed. The Pontiff conversed cordially with Father Denis O. Crowley of San Francisco, and referred in affectionate terms to the recent visit to Rome of Archbishop Hanna, whose energy and zeal he warmly praised.

Porto Bello Gold

By Arthur D. Howden Smith

"'Tis useless to cry to him, lass," he said gently. "He doth not answer, you see."

"But he will!" she protested. "Sure, ye must soon be finding what is wrong with him, sir. It may be a sup of brandy would bring him around."

My great-uncle reached across and plucked from her grasp the hand she had been rubbing.

"Come," he said, rising, "we will ask Peter to carry him to his berth, shall we?"

"But—but—we must bring him to!"

"We can not bring him to," he answered kindly.

She stood up, bewildered.

"Not—bring—him—to? But why?"

"Because his heart no longer beats," said my great-uncle. "Quick! Catch her, Robert."

She lay like a tired child in my arms.

"Dead!" she murmured faintly.

"He can not be dead!" I exclaimed. "There's not a wound on him."

"Neen," said Peter.

He picked up the lanthorn from where I had dropped it on the deck and directed the light upon the upper part of Col. O'Donnell's head. A blue bruise like a scar was spread across the Irishman's left temple.

"A graze-shot," pronounced Peter. "Der cannonball come dot close, Ja!"

"But the skin is not even broken," I objected.

"Ja, but dot don't matter."

Murray bent over and fingered the bruise.

"Peter is right," he said. "'Twas the concussion affected the brain. I have heard of such a freak shot, but never seen it happen before."

Moira clung to my arms.

"And he is really dead? The padre is really dead? And he unshriven, without a comfort of the church! Oh, holy saints, be his advocates! Sure, was there ever a crueler end?"

She collapsed in a passion of weeping.

"Conduct her below, Robert," said my great-uncle. "We will follow you."

She suffered me to lead her from the poop without objection, more like a child than ever, sobbing and protesting and repeating the same things over and over again, in an abandonment of grief which only the Irish can attain.

"'Tis you are the kind friend," she stammered when we had reached her stateroom. "And oh, Bob, I have the sore need of you, I that am an orphan in a pirate ship. Troth, I haven't a friend in the wild world unless it be you and Master Corliear. But I am the bad, selfish girl to be thinking of my own plight, and the father that loved me this moment gone up to Peter's Gate, and him without the holy wafer to his lips or so much as a prayer said over him. Ah, what ill deed did we do, either one of us, that he should be taken from me so, without a word of parting? The sisters were always after saying we must reconcile ourselves to God's mercy, but 'tis little mercy has been shown to me."

I quieted her at last, brought her a swallow of brandy and induced her to lie down.

"I mustn't be crying the way I will have done," she apologized, gulping her sobs. "Himself will be needing all the prayers I can say, and a boiling of candles, too. Do you go on, Bob—only promise you'll not leave me by my lone if there's more fighting. I could never stand to hear the thundering of the cannon after—after—that—and no one by to bid me take heart o' grace."

The gray dawnlight was seeping through the stern windows when I rejoined my great-uncle and Peter in the main cabin. Peter was as placid as ever, puffing industriously at a long clay pipe; but my relative displayed more concern than I remembered to have observed in him at any time in the past.

"I trust you were able to calm the poor lass?" he greeted me. "Stap me, what a sorry business! I'd never have chosen O'Donnell for a traveling companion, but without him I know not what to do. The whole venture——"

He shook his head and stared out the window beside him, clicking the lid of his snuffbox open and shut.

"But we have first to attend to the Walrus," he added presently. "I shall do so with the less reluctance after that last shot. The cursed luck of it! A beaten enemy's blow in the dark, blindfolded, by gad! And to think it must strike down of all men the one most essential to my schemes. I could—well, well, no matter! We must triumph over the unexpected. 'Tis the chasm all great leaders must cross to win the final victory."

I found myself somehow instinctively hostile to his attitude.

"What have you done with Col. O'Donnell?" I asked coldly.

"Peter carried him to his stateroom. We will give him decent burial when we return to the island. And perhaps some day we can come for him in state with a squadron of King's ships and bear him home to a grave in the land he was exiled from."

My great-uncle's spirits brightened noticeably as he contemplated the picture his words presented.

"Yes, yes," he murmured half to himself. "What O'Donnell could have done surely I can do. Our friends in Avignon will help. And Robert!"

He turned to me.

"Ah, my boy, this unfortunate incident is my best justification for pressing you in my cause. What should I do without you and Peter? 'Twill be for you two, with Mistress Moira, to establish our connections with the King's agents in France."

"You seem to forget I am no Jacobite," I answered unpleasantly.

"Tut, tut, you shall be as stout a Jacobite as Prince Charles himself."

"Not I!"

He smiled.

"We'll leave that to Mistress Moira."

"Maybe you forget der Walrus," interposed Peter.

"Not so, Peter. I shall dispose of the Walrus within the next few hours."

"Andt Gott," added Peter as if Murray had not spoken.

My great-uncle laughed merrily. "My dear Peter, men of judgment will inform you that there is no God—or, if we concede a God, there is every reason to assign a superior degree of power to the inevitable Devil representing the opposing virtue of godliness. Indeed, did I incline to bow down before any superhuman authority I should elect Satan by preference. But a ripe experience has inclined me to the view that the Devil is as much a figment of men's imaginations as God. Since the beginning of recorded time a priestly caste— But there we are drifting into a philosophical discussion; and as you very properly reminded me, the Walrus awaits our attention. Let us go on deck."

"Essentially true," agreed my great-uncle. "I must confess myself ignorant of such staple points as why we are here, the excuse for human existence, the relative significance of this world of ours, the utility of the differing qualities of goodness and evil. But any serious consideration, friend Peter, must convince as profound a thinker as yourself that the very existence of men and women is of itself prima-facie evidence that there can be no Divine Author of omnipotent or sentient powers."

"We better go on deck," said Peter.

"After you," protested my relative as we rose. "'Tis a pleasure to debate with you, Peter. Take care, pray! Gunn has not removed all of the evidences of Diomede's passing. Strange, is it not, how a black fellow like Diomede and a man who hath been the confidant of princes like O'Donnell should both be abolished by a simple organic disruption? That alone, Peter, should suffice to disprove the humbug of an all-wise Providence. An all-wise Providence, forsooth! Here am I, arranging to reconstruct for the better my most unhappy trio of kingdoms, with consequences bound to improve the well-being of the entire world, and my plan is suffered to be placed in jeopardy by an ignorant sailor's blind shot in the dark! What could be more absurd?"

Peter did not answer him, and we passed out upon the main deck where sailors were busy removing the traces of the Walrus's first broadside which had wrought a certain amount of minor damage and caused the deaths of several men. 'Twas now light enough to see about us, but the light was of a quality I had never known before—hard, coppery glare, with the sun obscured from view. The sea was quite flat, and the wind continued intermittent, veering from one-quarter of the south to the other. Spy-glass Island lay to larboard, its contour amazingly distinct—as if it were bitten into the frame of steel-blue sea and dully shimmering sky that encompassed it. The Walrus, like the James, had cleared Captain Kidd's Anchorage, and was running due north before the wind betwixt us and the islet called Skeleton Island.

"How is it you carry no sail on the mizzen?" he demanded.

"Account o' that there last ——— ——— shot, cap'n," answered the mate, tugging his forelock. "If ye look to it ye'll see as how a twelve-pounder bored into her."

We all followed his pointing finger to a gouge beneath the mizzen yard. The shot that had grazed Col. O'Donnell's head had done more than graze the mizzen. The mast was whittled away to a depth of several inches as cleanly as if a giant's ax had chopped into it.

My great-uncle took snuff very slowly.

"What luck! What luck!" he muttered.

And then louder:

"'Twas an expensive shot for us, gadzooks! Well, Martin, we must fish the mast at our earliest opportunity, but we can make shift to corner Flint without it. The Walrus is foul and heavy in the water. The James can sail circles round her in this wind."

There was a worried look in Martin's weather-beaten face.

"Askin' your pardon, sir, I don't like this ——— wind. We're in for a ——of a storm or I'm a ——— lubber."

My great-uncle shrugged his shoulders.

"Storm or no storm, Martin, the Walrus carries nigh four hundred thousand pounds."

"Aye, sir; and by your favor, best sink her and be done wi' it and run for shelter."

"Sink her! Man, we'd lose the treasure."

"Better lose the Walrus's treasure than go down ourselves," insisted Martin doggedly. "Have it your own way, sir, but I'm a ——— ——— if it ain't fixin' to blow up one o' these here tarribla Caribbee storms as pluck the hairs outn your head."

Murray regarded the four quarters of the sky for several moments.

"With your prognostications I find no quarrel, Martin," he said finally; "but I believe we have ample time to head the Walrus. Flint dares not run south because he knows the hornet's nest we have stirred up in those seas. My purpose is to box him in and force him to beach. If this wind continues we should bring him to book on the north coast of the island, and so soon as the Walrus has taken ground we will wear and beat in for the North Inlet. Doth that satisfy you?"

The mate hesitated.

"You be cap'n, sir. But if 'twas my say we'd head back to the Anchorage, Walrus or no Walrus."

My great-uncle stiffened.

"'Tis impossible," he replied haughtily. "However, we will bear up for the Walrus, and you may bid Coupeau to see what harm he can contrive against her with his chase-guns."

Martin saluted and went for'ard. My great-uncle led us to the poop.

"Your old sailor is eke much of an old woman into the bargain," he remarked perfunctorily, climbing the sta'b'd ladder ahead of me. "Let him but sniff the approach of a tempest, and he is all for the nearest haven."

BOLD OPERATION IN IDIOCY CASE

Two-Year Old Child May be Made Normal

Surgeon Reports Signs of Mental Awakening

Gland of Executed French Bandit Grafted

[BY CABLE—EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

LILLE (France) April 7.—Dr. Rene LeFort has given the details of an "audacious, sensational operation," wherein by ingrafting part of the thyroid gland of a guillotined bandit he has saved from permanent idiocy the life of a 2-year-old girl, who is now playing with her dolls in St. Savious Hospital.

The operation, the general idea of which the doctor, hospital and prison attendants were unable to keep from the press, has astounded the medical and sentimental world and threatens to revolutionize the attitude of science with regard to the methods of making condemned criminals actually reimburse the state and society for death.

Owing to the fact that an autopsy on the body of the Apache chief, Olivier, was illegal, Dr. LeFort promised the Procurer-General not to give out the details of the operation for publication in the French press, but he told the details for publication in the United States.

IDIOCY FROM BIRTH

The graft was performed on the daughter of a municipal employee named Denis. Suffering from birth with a form of idiocy which heretofore had been permanent, she was listless, neither crying nor laughing, or taking an interest in life. The abnormal development of the thyroid indicated that she was suffering from an insufficient secretion in the gland. A doctor attempted to graft part of a lamb thyroid, but was not successful.

"I was not surprised at this," Dr. LeFort said "as experience with animals shows that success in thyroid grafts depends upon suppliantingglands of similar animals. There is a great difference between a lamb and a child. As the bandit Olivier was to be guillotined, I suggested to the father that we take part of his thyroid. He consented.

"Olivier lost his head at 5:20 o'clock in the morning and ten minutes later I had removed at the cemetery one-fourth of the thyroid gland, and, putting it in a serum to preserve it, hurried by automobile to the hospital and at 6 o'clock one-fourth of the thyroid gland from the bandit was grafted to the muscles of her stomach."

I asked Dr. LeFort why the muscles of the stomach, and he replied that any other muscles would have been equally successful, but the stomach was chosen for convenience.

CHANGES NOTED

Although Dr. LeFort refused an express avowal that the operation was entirely successful, he did admit that Mlle. Denis is an entirely different girl. She laughs, has begun to talk, and is playing constantly with dolls. I obtained a picture where she is vociferously expressing indignation because her dolls were taken from her in order to take the photograph. Before she never cared for dolls.

"I will know the effects of the operation in six months," Dr. LeFort said. "Until then the signs are symptomatic, but uncertain as to the permanent effects. I will make a scientific report of the operation then, revealing every detail of the symptoms before and after."

As to taking the thyroid from the guillotined bandit, Dr. LeFort pointed out that instead of society being shocked by the "audacity" it ought to rejoice that a criminal when condemned to death may be utilized to save a life.

Crime Academy Talks on Proposal to Get Verdict on Guilt Before Sanity

The proposal that the guilt of a person charged with murder be determined before his mental status is determined was among various subjects considered by the Southern California Academy of Criminology at its April meeting at the University of California, Southern Branch, last night.

W. J. Ford, formerly chief deputy district attorney, proposed this method to supplant the present procedure of having the question of mental status discussed or determined before or along with the determination of guilt.

Superior Judge John Perry Wood suggested that alienists be selected by the court instead of being employed by prosecution and defense for their opposing purposes.

Judge Wood's proposal met with indorsement of a number of psychiatrists at the meeting, but they opposed Mr. Ford's suggestion.

Curt Waldensels, a juror in the Kid McCoy case, told of widely variant testimony by alienists on opposing sides of cases and humorously remarked that a juror can not tell which alienist to believe because "the juror doesn't know which alienist gets the biggest pay!"

Among other speakers were Dr. Edward Huntington Williams, Dr. Paul E. Bowers, Hugh Morrow and Dr. Andrew S. Lobinger.

Dep. Dist.-Atty. Fricke said criminals found by juries to be insane often get back into society after very limited periods of detention in places for insane. He advocated a Southern California hospital for criminal insane.

POISON PEN WIELDER IS CONVICTED

Writer of Lewd Notes to Hear Fate Monday; Girl Tells of Trap

Within a few minutes after retiring yesterday afternoon, the jury in the case of William Rolph, alias William Munroe, returned a verdict of guilty, holding the defendant responsible for writing more than a score of crudely illustrated indecent letters and sending them through the mails to girls in Los Angeles and Long Beach. He will be sentenced Monday afternoon by United States District Judge James.

Rolph categorically denied penning the messages but Milton Carlson, hand-writing expert, linked the letters received by the girls to samples of Rolph's writing.

Helen Redford, who alone of the numerous recipients of messages showed courage in apprehending Rolph, in the morning occupied the stand against the defendant. Other girls who testified during the day against the so-called "poison-pen writer," are Mae G. Dickey, May Rinehart, Rhea Hupp and Hazel Lytle.

Miss Redford on November 29, 1924, agreed to meet the writer of a note received by her and led him into a trap arranged by Detective Noble Carr of the Los Angeles police department, and an inspector of the mails. Rolph is declared to be a "five-times loser," having served prison terms in Wisconsin, Iowa, Missouri and California for terms ranging from burglary to offenses similar to that on which he has just been convicted.

Officers of the law praised Miss Redford for her efforts in capturing the man who had terrorized girls in the city and Long Beach for several weeks. In court, the defendant exhibited complete sang froid.

WHITWELL ABSOLVED IN MURDER

Detectives Wire Result of Check on Alibi of Man Held for Nagle Slaying

In dispatches from Seattle to the police department and District Attorney's office last night, Police Detectives Jarvis and King reported they had checked the alibi of, and absolved W. R. Whitwell of connection with the murder of Richard C. Nagle in Los Angeles on November 13, 1923. Another man named Joe Murphy, held in Seattle for the same crime, also established a credible alibi, the detectives wired.

Whitwell was recently released from Leavenworth prison, where he served a term for violation of the Dyer Act. He was brought here and then taken to Seattle by the detectives. His arrest resulted from his photograph being identified by E. J. Nagle, a brother of the dead man, as the murderer.

At the time of the crime, the Nagle brothers were driving in from Culver City with the proceeds of an American Legion carnival. At Van Buren street and Vernon avenue, their car was forced to the curb by another machine and the shooting followed.

GOVERNMENT IS SAVING PENNIES

No Item Too Small to Help Economy Program

Cable Tolls Cut Down, Boxes Reused by Bureaus

Departments in Emulation to Show Surplus

BY FREDERIC J. HASKIN

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

WASHINGTON, April 7.—Much has been written regarding the administration's policy of economy—some commending it, others criticising it. The fact remains, however, that an economy program in the conduct of the business of the Federal government has been instituted with the avowed aim of lowering the administrative costs in order that in turn the burden of taxes on the people may be lightened.

Some of the methods devised by the individual departments as their contributions to the program uphold the old adage of "save the pennies and the dollars will look after themselves."

The installation of dictating machines is believed by many to be a logical way of getting more work for less money. Of course, immediately comes a protest from the stenographers, who either fear that the installation of these machines means the loss of their jobs, or who object to using them on the grounds that it is exceedingly nerve-wracking and also they are apt to lose their stenographic speed through disuse.

SAVE PACKING BOXES

From the Department of Agriculture it is reported that it has instituted the system of having any property surplus in a particular bureau reported to the director of purchases and sales, who makes inquiries among the other bureaus to ascertain whether they have any use for it. A saving of over $5000 in a six-months period resulted in one bureau from this practice. Instead of destroying wooden packing boxes as was formerly done, all boxes containing incoming shipments are reported to the director, and any bureau needing such boxes for shipments to the field may obtain them without cost. This also has resulted in a considerable saving.

These are only a very few of the economies effected by the Department of Agriculture. There are any number of other ways in which the many bureaus of this department have economized, such as discontinuing the supply of ice for water coolers during the winter months; reducing the number of city directories purchased from twenty-three to three; exchanging with book dealers duplicate books and periodicals for needed ones which are not in the library; reducing the size of departmental publications wherever possible and intensive care in purchasing all supplies.

The Department of Commerce reports a substantial monthly saving on cablegrams to and from foreign offices under a new system. Under this new system lengthy cable reports may be filed at the end of the week as week-end cable letters at a greatly reduced rate. A number of foreign offices which cannot obtain low rates for cable and radio correspondence now either mail or telegraph their cables to another office, which transmits them at the reduced rate.

A number of bureaus coming under the Department of Interior reported a reduction in force and consequent saving in salaries. This method of saving is, of course, perhaps the least popular, since in many cases it works a hardship on some wage-earner. Very often, however, the fact that the force of one bureau is reduced does not necessarily indicate that the employees removed are entirely separated from the civil service.

VACANCIES VACANT

In many cases they are transferred to some bureau which is in need of additional help. Another method of reducing the staff is by not replacing those who resign. Whereas formerly when a person resigned it was deemed necessary immediately to fill the vacancy, now if it is at all feasible the work done by this person is distributed among the other employees.

The Navy Department hopes to turn into the Treasury a balance of approximately $1,000,000 at the end of the current fiscal year in the appropriation for "transportation and recruiting." A large part of this saving is due to the fact that every opportunity possible was taken advantage of to transfer enlisted men and their equipment by government vessels. An additional saving is reported as the result of a new method of reproducing fingerprints by the elimination of a negative.

The Postmaster-General reports an annual saving of nearly $49,000 by the elimination of the blue stripe which formerly appeared on the canvas mail bags used by the department, and for which there could be found no good reason. By removing this stripe the cost per yard of the canvas is reduced 1 cent, and the sale value of the canvas scrap is increased.

Like the Department of Agriculture, the Treasury Department effected a considerable saving by the use of surplus property to fill requisitions when new furniture and equipment were necessary.

FIVE GOOD BATTLES ON COMPTON CARD

Five good battles are on tap for the Compton fans Friday night. Henry Marcus, who fights Young Carpenter in the special event of six rounds, has boxed several main events at San Fernando, meeting the best 130-pounders in Los Angeles. Young Farrell and Young Jargo top the bill with an eight-round main event. Farrell has boxed good men throughout the country, including the present lightweight champion, Sammy Mandell. Farrell, who is a colorful boxer, will be in good shape Friday, as he wants to get back in old form. Jargo is a well-known Redondo Beach boy, who has participated in a number of Wilmington bouts. Other bouts follow:

CAPITAL STOCK ISSUE PLANNED

Mortgage Guarantee Will Offer Privileges

Net Income Last Year Shows Satisfactory Gain

Glendale Bonds Awarded to R. H. Moulton & Co.

Notice of a special meeting on May 14, next, to increase the capital stock from $3,000,000 to $4,000,000 has been mailed to stockholders from the offices of the Mortgage Guarantee Company. If the proposed increase is approved, it is planned to offer stockholders the right to subscribe at par for the new stock in the proportion of one new share for each three shares now owned.

As the company indicates in the statement sent to the stockholders, the market value of the stock now is around $135 a share, which accords a definite value to the privileges to subscribe for the new stock.

The financial report of the Mortgage Guarantee Company inclosed with the notices of the special meeting shows net earnings for 1924 of $442,864.43, equivalent to $14.79 a share on the present outstanding capitalization of $3,000,000.

Gross earnings for the year totaled $1,105,325.29, which compares with $891,210.86 in 1923.

The aggregate amount of money loaned on real estate in 1924 increased nearly 5 per cent over the so-called peak year of 1923. Another pertinent index of the company's progress and of general business in Los Angeles is supplied by the amount of outstanding guaranties reported in the past ten years. They are shown as follows:

1915	$ 2,066,200.00
1916	6,093,735.00
1917	8,242,475.00
1918	11,018,985.00
1919	11,013,895.00
1920	12,042,810.00
1921	12,400,537.00
1922	18,247,160.00
1923	23,332,474.50
1924	28,777,626.74

Glendale Bonds Bought

Another block of Glendale sewer bonds amounting to $300,000 yesterday was sold to R. H. Moulton & Co., for a premium of $13,373.38. Other bidders were the Bank of Italy, Anglo London Paris Company, California Securities Company, Citizens' National Company, William R. Staats Company and Dean Witter & Co.

Shoe Company Pays

Dividend checks of 2 per cent on the preferred stock of the Elias-Katz Shoe Factories have been mailed to stockholders as the payment for the first quarter of the year. The company has a factory located in Los Angeles and manufactures staples and novelty shoes for women.

Shipments for March, according to the management, amounted to more than $60,000. It is planned to expand the output to $100,000 monthly basis during the year.

New Plan Outlined

With the opening of the new vaults of the recently organized National Republic Safe Deposit Company, George Woodruff, president of the National Bank of the Republic, Chicago, announced a new idea in safe deposit service. Under this arrangement customers are able to lease an individual safe deposit box for any length of time for 1 cent a day.

Heretofore it has been customary for banks to lease safe deposit boxes under a term lease of one year or more.

FRENCH FRANC DECLINES

BY EARLE E. CROWE

Divesting the French financial situation of hysterics and meaningless political controversies, it seems that there is little ground for any great display of alarm. The most accurate reflection of expert opinion is found in the foreign exchange market, which has not indicated a tendency to drop out of sight in response to fears of currency inflation. In its slump yesterday to a final price of 5.13½ cents, the franc mirrored the decline of confidence in the administration of French finances, but a loss of this proportion is far from presaging a panic. Since last Tuesday, the franc has dropped from 5.38 cents as it became increasingly evident that the government was facing a serious situation.

Speculators in foreign exchange naturally are influenced by the drift in politics. In the present crisis, the fulminations of the government's opponents are directed at the suggestion to increase the maximum note circulation of the Bank of France. The plan calls for the extension of the maximum from 41,000,000,000 to 45,000,000,000 paper francs in order to allow the government bank to meet the legitimate demands for discounts and advances. From the opposition has come a cry of protest on the assumption that the new circulation will bring the beginning of inflation similar to the German disaster.

PROPOSALS SUBMITTED

A bill embodying this provision was submitted yesterday to the finance committee of the Chamber of Deputies and will be considered by the Chamber tomorrow. In connection with this measure the government is asking regulations regarding voluntary and controlled subscriptions or contributions of capital. The government hopes to support the note circulation with additional gold reserves through this measure, and to obtain the capital voluntarily in order to obviate the necessity of a direct capital levy. The latter proposal is genuinely feared by financiers throughout the world as a possibility that would work serious injury to French credit.

As for the increase in note circulation and the danger of inflation, there seems very little basis for a financial panic if the maximum limit is not further extended. Undoubtedly the present circulation is insufficient to satisfy the demands of genuine business, and the Bank of France must have assistance if it is to extricate itself from the present difficulty. Possibly the circulation could stand additional increases without real danger if the government is successful in appealing to the people for capital.

RESERVES SHOWN

Shortly after the first of the year the Bank of France reported paper notes outstanding amounting to 40,000,000,000 francs. At 5½ cents a franc, the circulation had a gold value of $2,200,000,000. Against these outstanding notes, the bank showed gold and silver bullion of about $1,700,000,000, representing a ratio of about 83 per cent. Allowing for the new authorization of 45,000,000,000 francs, this figure would only fall to slightly more than 50 per cent if the reserves even remained the same. The Federal Reserve system in the United States reported a lower ratio in 1921.

There can be no serious doubt of the ability of the French people to support the government in its plight if they have the desire. As a nation of thrifty people, the French are without peer, and even per capita earnings since the war are much better than it is generally believed. The government is asking its citizens to contribute one-tenth of their savings, on which a low rate of interest will be paid. It amounts to a plea for patriotic support, for much higher returns can be obtained from other government obligations and the general run of industrial bonds.

Reports of general business activity corroborate the premise of a fair degree of prosperity in France. Economic recovery in 1924 proceeded on a satisfactory scale, the production of most of the basic commodities showing healthy increases. The total value of foreign trade showed an increase of about 9 per cent over 1923, and the trade balance showed a profit of 1,320,000 francs, compared with a deficit of 2,200,000 francs in 1923.

CAPITAL PLENTY

This glimpse of last year's recovery serves to substantiate the previous record of the French people as a prosperous nation. Before the war new capital issues in France averaged over $1,000,000,000 annually for the period of 1910 to 1912. This compared with an average of $998,575,000 for Great Britain in the same period. The French people even in prewar years bought more foreign issues than were sold in the United States.

France's budget for 1925 outlines a confident program. Revenues are forecast at $1,850,000,000 and expenditures at $1,810,000,000, leaving a surplus of about $40,000,000. Added to this, the government is to receive annual payments under the Dawes plan, which later are expected to pay interest and sinking fund charges on the entire foreign funded debt held by individuals, and 5 per cent interest and sinking fund charges on the debt to the American government.

There is, however, the perplexing matter of the inter-Allied debt payments that will continue to darken the French financial sky after the internal problems are adjusted. The government has postponed consideration of this vexatious question until the program of rehabilitation is satisfactorily advanced, but the importunities from the creditor countries continue to keep the debts in front as a matter requiring early settlement.

All in all, the French government from a financial standpoint, is not in an enviable position. Whether or not the quotation on francs yesterday fully discounts the extent of the troubles is conjectural, but it seems apparent that fundamental conditions are strong enough to resist a pronounced slump in exchange rates.

Marine to Pay Third Extra; New President Named

Payment of the regular monthly dividend of 1 cent a share and the third extra dividend of 1 cent yesterday was authorized by the directors of the Marine Corporation, an oil company, the stock of which is traded in on the Los Angeles Stock Exchange. The directors also elected E. D. Marr as president to succeed D. M. Smith, who becomes vice-president and treasurer.

Final papers were signed closing the deal for the purchase of controlling interest in the Sierra Refining Company. Mr. Marr also was chosen to head this company as president, and David T. Babcock was elected vice-president and treasurer.

The Marine Corporation operates oil properties in various sections of the Southern California fields, and expanded into the refining end recently through the deal for the Sierra Refining Company. The stock of the Marine Corporation is a comparative newcomer to the Los Angeles Stock Exchange, and is an active trader.

TRADING VOLUME IN COTTON SHOWS DROP

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

NEW YORK, April 7.—Spot cotton down 5 points at 24.60.

The nearness of extended holidays, coupled with the fact that the New Orleans market was closed today, restricted outside trading on the local cotton exchange today. The trading was dull and without feature, and business mainly professional.

The market advanced 15 to 20 points early in the session under scattered buying by shorts and commission-house traders in response to higher Liverpool cables, but on the advance, renewed liquidation and southern selling was encountered. Final quotations were but 2 to 13 points net higher.

MOTOR CAR PRODUCTION SHOWS DROP

Output for March Under Year Ago; is Adjusted to Current Demand

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

NEW YORK, April 7.—Although most motor-car factories are speeding up production considerably, output for March was materially under the mark for the same month last year, according to Motor of New York. Conditions are healthy, however, because dealers are not overstocked and output is little more than sufficient to meet current needs.

Conditions continue to be decidedly "spotty." A few lines are behind in deliveries, especially of closed models, while others are not finding it difficult to supply the demand, even on a lower production basis than last year. Some of the small companies are making a surprisingly good showing, especially with their eight-cylinder models. A moderate shortage of closed cars is not improbable in the next few weeks.

Retail sales in a good many agricultural districts, especially the Northwest, are much better than a year ago, but on the other hand they are smaller in numerous industrial centers. The general level is not far below last year.

One of the most significant recent events is the attempt of the Ford Motor Company to establish definite values for used cars by forcing dealers to recondition and guarantee them. Whether other factories will move in the same direction remains to be seen. Evidence accumulates, nevertheless, that the used car will be the really vital factor of the business in the future.

WHO'S WHO

Harold B. Reed, Los Angeles manager of Blair & Co., investment dealers, returned yesterday from New York where he went to confer on coming financing. He reports that the investment market is in sound shape and will easily absorb the new financing under way in the eastern centers.

WALL STREET GOSSIP

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE]

NEW YORK, April 7. — An analysis completed by the Atlantic States shippers advisory board indicates a slightly higher level of industrial production in the Eastern Atlantic States for the second quarter of 1925, compared with the same period last year and adequate transportation to handle it.

The trend of business was based on actual estimates of car requirements gathered from the industries which will be submitted to the board at its meeting in Philadelphia on Thursday.

The territory covered includes New York, New Jersey, Eastern Pennsylvania, Maryland, Delaware and part of Virginia.

A shipment of $35,000 in gold to Singapore was announced today by the Farmers' Loan and Trust Company.

Reports from Chicago quoting W. H. Finley, president of the Chicago and Northwestern to the effect that the regular semiannual $2 dividend would be authorized in May brought reassurance to the financial district. Speculation over the stability of the dividend had depressed the stock to 49 1-2, the lowest since January, 1924, in the face of poor February earnings with net income of $341,000 against $1,323,639 in February, 1924. March, however, showed improvement over February and President Finley stated that April returns would be altogether satisfactory.

QUIET SESSION IN RAW RUBBER MART

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

NEW YORK, April 7.—In crude rubber only a moderate amount of business was transacted today, but there was sufficient strength apparent to maintain the level established in yesterday's slight rise. The same conditions prevailed at London, which closed at 20d. Ribbed smoked sheets, spot, 42c; May-June, 41¾c; July-September, 40½c. First latex crepe, spot, 42¾c; May-June, 42¼c; July-September, 41¼c; clean thin brown, 41¼c; No. 1 amber, 41¼c; upriver fine, 25c; No. 1 rolled brown, 40c.

The soundness of Finland's government finances is reflected in the absence of any floating indebtedness. We recommend the new 7% dollar bonds, yielding 7.50%.

NEW YORK BONDS

French Liens Firm

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE]

NEW YORK, April 7.—Bond prices forged slowly ahead in today's dull trading. French obligations held firm despite misgivings over the government's new financial bill with other foreign issues marked up fractionally.

While trading interest in domestic bonds could not be characterized as lively, a steady demand for railroad liens held prices steady. Selling of the western carrier stocks had no apparent effect on the bond list. Chicago and Northwestern refunding 5s moved slightly lower by Great Northern 5s and several other western railroad securities advanced. Gains of 1 to 2 points were recorded by Norfolk and Western, Seaboard and Florida, Western and Northern issues.

With a slight relaxation of time money rates, investment bonds resumed their upward trend. Some of the Liberty issues held around the highest levels of the year and fractional advances were registered by several of the high grade rail mortgages, including Atchison 4s and Baltimore and Ohio 4s and Delaware and Hudson 5s.

Preparation of Dillon, Read & Co. for offering a large block of securities under the Dodge Brothers recapitalization plan continued to arouse lively interest. The new financing is expected to exceed $100,000,000 and probably will be placed on the market late this week.

Following are yesterday's high, low and closing prices of bonds on the New York Stock Exchange and the total sales of each bond. These quotations are received over Associated Press wires, and to expedite transmission the closing is omitted when it is the same as the low, and both low and close are omitted when they are t he same as the high.

NEW YORK CURB

Oils Resist Pressure

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE]

NEW YORK, April 7.—Irregularity developed in today's curb market after an early period of strength. The advance was checked by the announcement of a reduction in gasoline prices by the Standard Oil Company of New Jersey, although the oils offered good resistance to selling pressure, the net losses being limited to fractions. American Light and Traction broke 10 points to 1.33, following the announcement that the stock had been placed on a $7 annual dividend basis. Previously the company had declared a quarterly dividend of $1 in cash and 1 per cent on capital stock. Commonwealth Power dropped 8% to 119¾, and Power Corporation of New York fell back 1¾ to 42¼.

Selling pressure against the rayons was renewed. Du Pont, Freed Eisemann and Tubize closing a point or so lower. Revs showed independent strength, climbing 1¼ to 7¾.

Industrials moved within rather narrow limits. Speculative interest in the mining group was confined to the penny issues, Hawthorne Mines touching a new high for the year at 50, on the announcement that the stock had been made non-assessable. The copper issues were heavy.

MOTOR AND OIL SHARES STRONG

Pressure on Northwestern Rails Heavy

Steel Common Shows Loss in New Orders

Baldwin Driven Lower and Then Recovers

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE]

NEW YORK, April 7. — Stock prices opened strong today with a general list moving upward under the leadership of the motor and oil shares, turned reactionary around noon when weakness cropped out in the Northwestern rails, and steadied again toward the close, when bullish operations in the motors were resumed. Final quotations were mixed, but mostly lower, the recessions in the active issues ranging from fractions to 4 points.

Selling pressure against the Northwestern rails centered on Chicago and Northwestern, which was lowered down more than five points to a new 1925 low record at 69, on rumors, later officially denied, that the $4 dividend was in danger. The stock rallied feebly into the close on a statement by President Finley that March showed considerable increase over February and that April returns are improving satisfactory.

RAILS RECEDE

Net losses of 1 to 2 points were recorded by Great Northern preferred, Union Pacific, Lackawanna of New Jersey, Delaware and Hudson. Northern and Western showed independent strength, closing 2¾ points higher at 126, after selling nearly a point above that figure.

Trading was largely professional in character, the day's sales again approximating 1,250,000 shares. Despite the short interest materially reduced by the brisk rally in the closing days of last week, bear operators, taking advantage of today's reduction in refined sugar and other commodity prices, sold stocks freely in an effort to test the market's position. Although they succeeded in forcing about substantial recessions in a number of the popular issues, they failed to dislodge much long stock.

Most of the pivotal industrials lost ground. United States Steel common showed a net loss of ⅝ at 114⅝. The recent decline in this issue, which carried it from a high of 129⅞ on January 23 to a low of 112⅝ on March 30, was explained by the statement of Chairman Gary, issued after the mart's close, that there had been a sharper reduction in bookings during the month of March. April tonnage to today had shown some improvement, he said.

MAXWELD CLIMBS

Baldwin, which sold as high as 115⅝ in the early trading, was hammered down to 112⅝, and then rallied to 113⅝, off 1⅝. American Can closed a point lower at 165½. Maxwell Motors A and B touched new high records for the year at 95⅝ and 64½, respectively. Nash Motors duplicated its record high at 340, and Packard touched a new top at 22⅝. United States Realty soared more than 6 points to 130, and then fell back to 128⅝.

Call money held steady at 4 per cent all day. Time money rates relaxed slightly, all maturities being on practically a 4 per cent basis. Commercial paper rates were unchanged.

Foreign exchanges were irregular. Demand sterling ruled slightly lower around $4.75⅛; French francs held relatively steady around 5.16 cents. Local bankers confirmed reports that little use had been made of the $100,000,000 credit recently granted to France by J. P. Morgan & Co. Norwegian kroner responded to the announcement of new financing for the city of Oslo by touching a new high record at 16 cents.

Witches' Toll

During the Middle Ages the desire to exterminate witchcraft became almost a mania throughout the Christian world. Nobody knows exactly how many persons were put to death for being witches, but some conservative historians put the number at between 200,000 and 300,000. In the latter half of the seventeenth Century, when witch burning was at its height, one man alone passed sentence of death on more than 15,000 witches. — [Exchange.

6% Money

This is a low rate for the Pacific Coast where rates have been running from 7% up—mostly up. This 6% money is not a myth. We are actually making loans at that rate on a 5-year basis or if preferable for 200 months if the amount is over $8100.00.

Refinancing

An owner may be carrying an 8% loan on his property that could be changed into a 6% loan by getting in touch with the mortgagee. It might be a favor to this mortgagee to have it paid.

An owner might be carrying two loans on his property—one at a high rate. The value of the property might warrant him in placing one loan at 6% to take the place of the two.

An owner might be paying for a home on a contract. Perhaps a loan could be placed on the property thus giving the buyer deed to the property.

Building Loans 7%

We are making building loans at 7% interest. These can be converted into 6% loans or continued at 7% with no additional expense.

Ask us about this plan. Our organization is such that we can close loans with dispatch.

Our financing service is for organizers desiring to form and finance companies under the guidance of qualified legal industrial and financial specialists. We are interested in legitimate projects in need of financing. Not all propositions are acceptable to our service—every new project cannot succeed by this or any other plan. Before organizing your company or deciding your financing plans, you are invited to consult with us personally.

Export Demand Better; Wheat is Bought Actively

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

CHICAGO, April 7.—Bullish sentiment predominated in the grain markets, and with heavy short covering, combined with a revival in the export demand for wheat, with sales of over 1,000,000 bushels, largely Manitobas, and a much better domestic call for cash corn, prices advanced rapidly. The close was about at the top, with net gains of 2¾@4¼c on wheat, 4@ 4½c on corn, ⅝@1¼c on oats and 1¼@1½c on rye. May wheat closed at 1.51@1.50¾, after selling as high as 1.51⅝; July 1.39¼@1.39⅛, and September 1.37⅛@1.37. May corn was 1.04⅛@1.04½, July at 1.06⅛@1.06⅜ and September 1.09⅝@1.09¾.

Unexpected strength in Liverpool wheat, with the close 2⅝@3d higher, had considerable influence on the local market. While there was considerable profit-taking at one time, the offerings were readily absorbed, and toward the last heavy buying of July by a commission house caught the local element short and made the bulge to the high point. At the best figure May was 1¾c above the low of last week and went to 1.11½c over July, gaining around 1¾c for the day.

Northwestern markets showed more strength than Chicago, Winnipeg being up 5¼c, while Minneapolis was up 5c, the latter closing at 6¾c under Chicago and has gained around 2½c recently. Kansas City May which was recently at a full shipping difference under Chicago, closed at 4¾c under. There was a little hard winter wheat sold abroad from the seaboard and Chicago handlers sold 60,000 bushels. The gradual gaining of the outside markets on Chicago, especially Minneapolis and Kansas City, was taken as suggesting that there was less pressure on cash grain.

Further rains were reported in parts of the Southwest, but they were offset to some extent by dry weather and unfavorable crop reports from Indiana and Ohio. Crownell estimated the Indiana condition at around 75c, with fully 10 per cent of the acreage abandoned. World's available supply decreased 8,920,000 bushels for the week, and are 230,155,000 bushels, against 263,187,000 bushels last year.

A material improvement in the domestic cash corn, with some sold to New Orleans for export by Kansas City handlers, brought in aggressive buying by commission houses, and shorts which found offerings limited. At the top, prices were 12¾@13c over the low of last week. Local shipping sales were around 300,000 bushels, with claims that they considerably exceeded this figure. Kansas City and other markets also did a good business.

Domestic demand for cash oats was better, with sales here of 200,000 bushels, while Minneapolis sold 212,000 bushels, in addition to 500,000 bushels worked on Saturday, which was not previously reported. Futures were influenced largely by the action of corn.

Rye was firmer in sympathy with wheat. No export sales were reported, although Germany and Holland were asking for offers.

Provisions were rather dull and easier, rallying toward the last in sympathy with grains. Lard finished unchanged to 5c lower, ribs off 10@12½c and bellies 15@30c lower.

LIVE-STOCK MARKET

[Following report is based exclusively as to receipts, holdovers, disposition, market conditions, quotations and, unless otherwise noted, as to sales of stock received at the Los Angeles Stockyards.]

LOS ANGELES MARKET

CATTLE—Yesterday's small supply was not enough for trade demands and hardly enough to test the market and an early clearance was made on generally a steady to 25c higher basis, steers collecting most gain. Two loads of 1131-pound Californias and a load of 923-pound Utahs topped for the day at 9.25, while a load of 812-pound Utahs went over for 9.00. A few common kinds in small lots sold downward to 5.00.

The supply of she-stock was mostly odd head and small lots of common and medium kinds held over from yesterday. The bulk cleared from 5.00@7.00, although odd head sold higher. Canners and cutters turned largely from 2.25@2.75. The small supply of bulls sold readily at around steady values, most bolognas clearing from 4.00@ 4.75, with a few beef bulls around 5.25.

CALVES—The supply was mostly southwesterns that arrived too late for yesterday's market, and small lots of trucked-in milk calves. A good clearance was made at around steady values. The small supply of milk calves turned from 10.00@ 13.00, while most common and medium kinds and overweights rushed from 5.50@8.50. A load of 166-pound Arizonas cleared for 9.00, while a load of 225-pound weights realized 7.50.

HOGS—Fairly active demand developed for the small supply of butchers and a good clearance was made at generally 25c higher prices. The top was 15.00, paid for two loads of 180-pound Idaho and a load of 239-pound Nebraskas. Mixed offerings and medium weight trucked-in butchers cleared from 14.25@14.50, while light lights averaging around 133 pounds sold for 13.50. A load of 236-pound butchers from a near-by feed lot realized 13.75, with a few 132-pound pigs out at 12.75. Packing sows held about steady, the bulk clearing for 12.00.

SHEEP—Nothing was offered in the ovine division and in the general opinion of the trade, good and choice spring lambs are quotable from 14.50@15.25, with choice light weight ewes upward to 9.50.

LIVE AND LET LIVE

"Live and let live," hummed the mosquito to the dragon fly as it punctured the fat man's plump wrist.

"Live and let live," said the dragon fly to the king-bird, its mouth full of juicy mosquito steak.

"Live and let live," sang the king-bird to the hawk as it crunched a dragon fly's drumstick.

"Live and let live," whistled the hawk to the hunter, gulping a morsel of king-bird's liver.

"Darn these mosquitos! They won't let a man live," growled the hunter swatting a mosquito, while admiring the wingspread of the dead hawk.—[Exchange.

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

NEW YORK, April 7. — The general tendency in the dried fruit market was one of optimism. Spot business was fair on box goods and distributors seemed to be coming into the market again for future supplies. One of the things that prompts the prune market is the short list of a certain house in the city, quoting without quantity California prunes of the 1923 crop.

Stocks are said to be sufficient to last another three weeks, and with normal consumption the jobbers will have to buy their goods. One little flurry in the prune market will be due to another price advance. Sundry other prices are moving well in the carlot movement.

Third raisins sales are well above normal for this season.

CANNED FOODS

The canned foods trade was very much interested in the opening prices of new pineapples as quoted by the California Packing Association. It has been common talk in the trade for months that the crop of pineapple was altogether too high to move it freely through the usual channels, and the packers were informed that the goods would be a drug on the market. The new quotations apparently are within range of the trade and pineapple should have a good year. California asparagus and pineapples on spot are said to be very active. One unusual reason the canned fruit buyers have gone rather heavily about the selection of their stocks. Considerable business has been placed on certain of the new asparagus, ungraded and cheaper selections, and a number of sales are in abeyance.

The price of tuna fish are seeking concessions from the prices ruling, especially on white meat, many of them are willing to consider the prevailing quotations. The concessions of views of the big buyers averaged $8 a case and $17.50 for ½s in comparison against $16 and $18 from the top of the quoted prices.

COFFEE MARKET

Coffee future prices opened at 5 points lower for the near months and 3 to 5 points advance for May and March. Selling at first was scattered, but principally by trade and speculative houses with buying attributed to Brazil interests. Initial sales were about 14,000 bags.

Cost positions held steady to firm advances, but little coffee was sold and the buying interest only passive. Trading was quiet during the late afternoon and the market closed without feature at 4 points advance to 1 points decline. Closing prices were: May, 17.97; June, July, 16.97 to 17; September, nominal; October, 16.20, December, 15.83 to 15.85; 16.10, nominal; March, nominal; sales for the day estimated at 100,000 bags.

The demand was quiet and unchanged to slightly lower prices were quoted as follows: 16 to 24.75 cents, and Rio 17 cents.

SUGAR SAGS

Raw sugar was slightly more easy as the prices again underlined. The National refined 1000 bags Porto Ricos, basis of 4.62 cents, the equivalent of 2 4-4 cents on the Cuban basis, which represents a decline of 1-16 cent from the last quotation, reaching the former level of the year.

Sales reported were above the day but were for later delivery. It was announced yesterday that about 10,000 to 15,000 tons had been sold to China and Japan approximating 2.70 cents.

Also several thousand tons of Cubas sold to Canadian refiners at 2 13-16 cents on the Cuban basis.

At the close of the market Porto Rico sugars for May delivery were reported unchanged at 2 13-16 cents bid, with no offers. Prices remain largely interest at 4.62 cents.

Coffee lowered their list 5 points, but it was said there was no increase in buying. It was announced a cut of 10 cents per shipment, "as soon as Taft and Arbuckle is quoted." Contracts for shipment at 17 cents before the 15th inst. Futures opened at 3 points lower for May and unchanged to 1 point advance for the other months. A large part of the trading was in July with switching to later options, also. The market closed steady, points lower for September, unchanged to 1 point higher than other options. Close: May, 17.97; June, 2.94; July, 2.94; September, 3.18 to 3.19; December, 3.26; January, 3.27; March, 3.29 nominal.

TEA ADVANCES

Cables from Colombo reported sales and advances of 1 to 2 cents per pound on all grades of tea. The cable stated that the quality of teas offered was showing a seasonal decline.

The local market continues normal, with holders showing confidence in the future of the situation and disinclined to make any concession. Sales, which are offered for cash or on a low basis, are small.

Jobbers continue to report fair sales and slightly better prices. The offerings in the primary markets are smaller and there has been a perceptible hardening of prices there and in the New York market. Prices are unchanged, but in view of the small current supply, any change will be an advance.

COPPER RALLIES

There was a rally in the copper market and prices advanced from ½ to 1-4 cent. At the close of the day the quotable at from 13 1-8 to 13 3-8 cents a pound delivered. Some of the large producers were holding out for the higher prices at this range, and there was a strong feeling of optimism in the trade, but there were no metal obtainable at the lowest. London cables responded as advancing 5s. to 60s. at 66s 7s 6d and 66s 10s, while electrolytic was at 64s, 6d per spot, and 64s for futures.

Prices for smelting and Refined copper were reduced lead 1-4 cent to 6.15 cents, New York, but unchanged at 5.70 cents. In London the market was cut to 7 7-8 cents. In London further price declines were recorded, spot dropping 2s 9d to £32 17s 6d and futures 10s to £31 15s.

Zinc held firm at 7.10 cents, St. Louis, and 7.45 cents a pound in New York. In London spot advanced 6s 9d to £34 14s 3d, but futures declined 1s 3d to £33 11s 3d.

Tin prices here and abroad moved in opposite directions, a reaction being recorded on this side of the water and a rally on the other. In the domestic market prices fell 3-8 cent, with the earlier deliveries and positions of Straits and Straits shipments closing at 51 1-8 cents, while the later months commanded a premium of 1-8 cent. London cables reported standard spot as advancing 15s to £231, futures 10s to £235 5s and Straits 15s to £238 10s. The Far Eastern market reacted £2, with Straits in Singapore closing at £237 10s, c.i.f., London.

OIL MARKET

The Standard Oil Company of New Jersey announced a reduction in the price of gasoline throughout its territory by 1 cent a gallon, the new quotation being 17 cents tank wagon and 19 cents service station.

INTEREST IN IRON TRADE HEIGHTENED

New Business Expected to Improve in Coming Thirty Days; Prices Firm

BY DON PARTRIDGE
Associate Editor, Iron Trade Review.

Indications point to a revival of interest in the markets and certain well-informed men in the trade are confident that the next thirty days will show a decided improvement in the volume of new business coming to hand.

No improvement is noted in demand for merchant bars but prices continue to hold at 2.55 cents to 2.60 cents f.o.b San Francisco. One interest placed 100 tons with an eastern mill at 2.65 cents c.i.f Concrete bar awards totaled over 1000 tons of which Edward L. Soule Co., secured 320 tons for the White Motor Truck Building in San Francisco and the Los Angeles Iron and Steel Company, 450 tons for the Olympia Auditorium in Los Angeles.

Demand for plates has improved and awards exceeded 1300 tons. The Willamette Iron and Still Company secured the Tacoma pipe line involving 640 tons. The General Petroleum Corporation has placed 500 tons for tank work and the United States Engineers at Portland have awarded 130 tons for pontoon pipe. Pending business total over 6500 tons, and includes 4300 tons for a pipe line at Vancouver, B. C., 250 tons at Flagstaff, Ariz., and 1000 tons for Vista, Cal. Prices as far as can be ascertained remain at 2.50 cents c.i.f., Coast ports.

Plain structural shape demand is improving and awards this week were in excess of 2000 tons of which Philip Friedman and Son secured 500 tons for the Olympia Auditorium in Los Angeles; Judson Manufacturing Company, 250 tons for a theater in Oakland and Western Iron Works, 170 tons for a substation for P. G. & E. in San Francisco. Pending business aggregates over 10,000 tons, most of which will be placed within the near future. Prices continue firm at 2.55 cents c.i.f. Coast ports.

The City of Seattle has awarded 400 tons of seven-inch eighty-two pound T-rail to the United States Steel Products Company.

Less than 500 tons of cast iron pipe was reported placed this week. The American Cast Iron Pipe Company secured 107 tons for the Richmond Natatorium, and 200 tons for Aberdeen, Wash. A fair volume of new business is in sight and pending tonnages total over 4500 tons. Prices remain around $53 a ton delivered.

LINER HERALDS SUMMER INFLUX

Dorothy Alexander Returns After Lengthy Absence

Steamship Officials Predict Record Tourist Season

Excursion Craft Here After Trip from Scotland

Return of the Admiral liner Dorothy Alexander to Los Angeles Harbor yesterday afternoon, after an absence of five months, marked the end of winter and the heralding of the summer tourist season, destined to set coastwise records according to officials of the line. The big vessel brought several hundred Seattle and San Francisco passengers, and clipped an hour off her running schedule, making the leg from San Francisco in twenty-three hours, arriving at 2 p.m. instead of 3 p.m. as expected.

Improvements during her overhaul in her winter's lay-up at San Francisco were said to be responsible for her increased speed. Aboard her again as master is the veteran skipper Capt. Gorton A. Harris with his famous sea-going cockatoo, which has ridden hundreds of thousands of miles with the captain on the coastwise run, meanwhile accumulating a choice assortment of expletives to startle passengers.

Aboard also for his first trip on this ship as purser is the veteran H. O. Johnson, former purser on the Admiral Dewey. He succeeds A. O. Johnson, advanced to the Ruth Alexander, when O. E. Pugsley succeeded Chramer as purser on the H. F. Alexander. "H. O." as he is known along the coast, is the oldest in point of service of any purser on the line, having sailed twenty-three years, first on the old Alki as purser when that was the first ship of the old Pacific Coast Steamship Company.

Among the Dorothy's passengers on the initial trip were H. J. Frye, assistant outward freight agent for the Isthmian Line; E. C. Bogle, auditor in the Orient for the Dollar Line, and C. Foye, son of the general traffic manager of the Western Pacific Railways. The liner sailed at 11 p.m. for Seattle and San Francisco to disembark several score families of navy officers at the latter place.

Friday the H. F. Alexander, flagship of the line, and among the first half-dozen speediest liners under the American flag, will arrive from the North on her first trip of the summer season. On her arrival, Capt. E. P. Bartlett will be offered membership in the Indian tribe of Arapahoes, thirty of whom will visit the ship during their first visit to salt water.

MINE SWEEPER IS NOW FERRY STEAMER

The little steel excursion steamer Lady Cecilia, Capt. C. P. Smith, put into port yesterday morning from Montreal, Scotland, en route to Vancouver to enter the daylight run between Vancouver and Boone Island for the Union Steamship Company. Built originally as a British mine sweeper, she recently has been converted at Brigham, Eng., into a sort of ferry steamer capable of carrying 1000 passengers.

Among the novelties in her conversion are her stability tanks constructed along each side of the hull, which give her a steadiness equal to a large ocean steamship.

She is twin-screw driven with a speed of 15 knots, 220 feet long, 33.6 feet wide at the main deck and 28.6 on the promenade. The difference in width is caused by the recesses.

She sailed north at 4:30 p.m. to be followed shortly by the Catalina and the Lady Alexander, similar type vessels to be used out of Vancouver by the Union Steamship Company.

The big power yacht Oneida, owned jointly by the International Film Corporation and her master, Capt. Oscar Owens, sailed early yesterday morning for New York after intermittent stays here of several months. Aboard her were Mrs. Owens, son of William R. Hearst, as guests. The yacht is expected to stop at Manzanillo and Salina Cruz and the Panama Canal en route. Chief Engineer Monroe is expected to accept a similar post on Henry Ford's private yacht on reaching the east coast.

Capt. K. A. Ahlin, who has been in command of the globe-circling Dollar liner President Harding here since 1922, has been assigned to command of the President Polk, which sails from New York on the 16th inst. Extensive reconditioning the vessel have been extended forward and aft, affording increased accommodations estimated at 100 and several other improvements since Ahlin first at Gotham several months ago. Fred C. Charman, former purser on the President Adams, will succeed a similar post on the President Polk. The Polk is due here May 4, next, being preceded by the President Hayes, due the 20th inst.

The Furness Line has announced addition of two new cargo and fast-freight steamers between the Pacific Coast to Europe during August and September. They are the Valemore and the Rexmore, 10,000-ton carriers of 12.5 knot speed.

CHICAGO, Abril 7.—Los detectives de la policía han confiscado los libros de una de las mayores empresas de los Estados Unidos—el sindicato de la borrachera y del vicio, de Torrio—Cassick Caponi, que es el trust máximo de la gente viciosa de Chicago. Con la elocuencia de los números, los millares de libros y papeles incautados demuestran que la compañía citada ha tenido un volumen anual de negocios que asciende a más de $10,000,000 al año. Los artículos en que ha comerciado son: licor y mujeres. La policía, que es quien ha proporcionado estos datos, promete que va a conmoverse la ciudad con la información relativa a este asunto.

A las autoridades gubernativas se les van a proporcionar todos los datos, incluso los nombres de más de 200 de los hombres más ricos y significados de la ciudad, que son parroquianos del mencionado sindicato, y en menos de una semana va a darse en esta ciudad el mayor escándalo que se haya visto en muchos años.

Los referidos libros revelan que la prohibición ha hecho que se congreguen en el trust de que se habla las mejores cabezas de negocios, que disponen de los más modernos sistemas mercantiles de todas clases, y de tentáculos que se ramifican por miles de ciudades y poblaciones de este país y de otros. Constituyen, en una palabra, una máquina eficiente que le haría honor al departamento de operaciones de un banco o de un ferrocarril transcontinental.

2. De los nombres de todos los agentes policíacos y prohibicionistas que recibían sueldo de la empresa Torrio-Cussick-Caponi.

3. De todos los conductos que se emplean para traer licor de la línea de barcos contrabandistas que se sitúan frente a los puertos de Nueva York, Nueva Orleans y Miami, Florida.

4. De los pormenores de la eficacísima administración de cuatro grandes cervecerías que surten de cerveza a Chicago, y que están gobernadas por el super-sindicato.

5. De los libros mayores de hojas sueltas, donde pueden verse los sistemas de cálculo de coste que se emplean en las casas de prostitución. Allí consta la utilidad líquida que deja cada muchacha en un burdel barato.

7. De la organización y personal del elegante domicilio social del sindicato, en la avenida Michigan Sur, 2146, donde trabajaba toda una fuerza de tenedores de libros, taquígrafos y glosadores, en número sificiente para atender cualquiera de las grandes empresas de una ciudad.

Fueron aprehendidos en el raid ocho individuos, que son empleados secundarios de la poderosa compañía del vicio, que ha estado funcionando como tal, y a la que sólo faltaba el detalle de haber sido registrada en el Ministerio de Estado. Y en tanto que marchaban estos señores a la comisaría, la policía buscaba activamente a Al Caponi, uno de los directores, complicado en la paliza dada a un policía y a un redactor de periódico en Cicero.

Para todas las autoridades fue una sorpresa la incursión de la policía en el cuartel general de Torrio, Cussick y Caponi. Desde que había sido expulsada esta gente del antiguo cuartel general de Al Caponi, ubicado en "Los Cuatro Doses", avenida de Wabash, 2222, el sindicato había estado haciendo sus operaciones en toda calma en la avenida Michigan Sur, y girando la enorme suma de $10,000,000 al año.

En la puerta figuraba el nombre de un doctor, y el primer cuarto por donde se entraba estaba amueblado como sala de espera de médico. Los "pacientes", desde el más pobre "bootlegger" hasta el más acaudalado bebedor, esperaban su turno para entrar y ver a los jefes, que se hallaban más adentro.

En la pieza interior, bien ordenadas en estantes, había medias pintas de cuanta variedad existe de licores fuertes, y cuartos de toda clase de licores más ligeros. A los presuntos parroquianos se les permitía llevar consigo la botella que deseaban para someterla al análisis de sus químicos. Si el licor resultaba de su agrado, regresaban y hacían su pedido en el mostrador, como en cualquiera casa de negocios bien organizada. Entretanto, las máquinas taquigráficas sonaban alrededor despachando cartas y telegramas en cifra, y los tenedores de libros se inclinaban sobre sus gruesos volúmenes.

El Coliseo de Los Angeles es el sitio donde Paavo Nurmi espera lograr la ambición de su vida. Porque en él van a celebrarse los juegos olímpicos de 1932, y en dichos juegos es donde el maravilloso finlandés tiene la esperanza de ganar la carrera de Maratón, que es la más grande de sus ambiciones. En tal virtud, cuando, el día 25 del actual, corra Nurmi en el Coliseo, saludará por primera vez el lugar destinado a ser el teatro de su triunfo o su derrota, en ese día venidero en que probará a realizar el sueño de su vida.

QUEEN STARTED IT

England's Woolen Business Credited to Consort of Edward III

In the first half of the fourteenth century England was very largely exporting the product of her sheep. After manufacture in the low countries the cloth was brought back to England to be made up into clothing. Edward III's Queen, Philippa, herself a Netherlands woman, asked why the wool could not be manufactured as well as grown in England, and do away with the trouble, cost, inconvenience and often the great loss attached to sending cargoes of wool across the boisterous North Sea.

The King seems not to have thought of such a thing, but acted with alacrity on the suggestion. Indeed, so devoted did he become to the work of developing the wool trade in England from that time onward that he came to be known as its special patron, and to this day the woolsack in the House of Lords, as well as a number of interesting statutes, remain as a monument to his zeal and enterprise.

Fooling the Tsetse Fly

Scented decoys for the deadly tsetse fly are now employed in up-country districts of South Africa by government entomologists. In order to trap and destroy the insects which cause sleeping sickness dummy animals are being erected, upon which the flies light with the intention of biting the animals. If animal odors cling around the dummies the flies will linger about until killed. Images of donkeys with brown paper legs are commonly employed.—[Indianapolis News.

Don't Let That Cold Turn Into "Flu"

Rub on Good Old Musterole

That cold may turn into "Flu," Grippe or, even worse, Pneumonia, unless you take care of it at once.

Colds are merely congestion. Musterole, made from pure oil of mustard, camphor, menthol and other simple ingredients, is a counter-irritant which stimulates circulation and helps break up the cold.

As effective as the messy old mustard plaster, does the work without blistering.

Just rub it on with your finger tips. You will feel a warm tingle as it enters the pores, then a cooling sensation that brings welcome relief.

TO MOTHERS: Musterole is also made in milder form for babies and small children. Ask for Children's Musterole.

HOFFMAN GETS DIRECTOR POST

Studebaker Distributor Made Sales Policy Head

Will Have Headquarters at South Bend

Dealer Has Notable Record of Achievement

Paul G. Hoffman

Paul G. Hoffman of this city yesterday was elected vice-president and director in charge of all sales policies of the Studebaker Corporation of America and a member of its executive and finance committees.

This action was taken at a meeting of stockholders at Jersey City.

The local automobile man, while he will make his home at South Bend, home of the company for the next year, announces he has not given up his local interests and that Los Angeles is still his home.

He will continue to be head of the Paul G. Hoffman Company, Inc., local Studebaker distributors, although the active management will be in charge of its vice-president and general manager, Earl A. Carpenter.

Similarly, Mr. Hoffman will remain on the major highways committee of the Chamber of Commerce in association with David Cook, counsel for the Automobile Club of Southern California.

Mr. Hoffman also is president of the Los Angeles Traffic Commission, and he has been prominent politically. He was chosen by the nonpartisan committee to make nominations for Mayor and Council, was instrumental in inducing Mayor Elmer Bledsoe to accept the nomination.

Mr. Hoffman is a director of the Chamber of Commerce. He is president, director and principal stockholder of the Paul G. Hoffman Company, which he organized in 1920, and he is a director of the California Bank, director of the Pacific Clay Products Company and of the Washington Petroleum Company.

He will be probably the youngest executive in the national automobile field, being only 32 years of age. His election sets a precedent in that an executive has been chosen from among the dealers. He succeeds H. A. Biggs, sales director of the last five years. Mr. Biggs is retiring because of ill health. He has decided to make Southern California his future home.

Mr. Hoffman joined the Studebaker Corporation in 1911 as salesman and has remained with them continuously since except during the World War, through which he served in the artillery division. In 1919 he was made sales manager of the Los Angeles retail branch. Two years later became sales manager of the district. Discharged from the Army in March, 1919, he purchased from the corporation its retail business

HYDRANTS SUFFER

Motorists Knock Over Average of Three Weekly

Consider the fire hydrants of the street — seldom do they toll but the reckless motorist often sends them spinning.

According to Office Engineer Hurlbut of the City Water Department, drivers of motor vehicles are knocking the fire hydrants over at the rate of about three a week. There are about 9500 fire hydrants decorating the streets of Los Angeles. At the present rate of mortality — three a week — there would be no more fire hydrants left on duty in Los Angeles in about sixty and eight-tenths years if the Water Department did not replace them as fast as they are broken off.

But the city is replacing them as fast as they are knocked over. It costs the playful motorist on an average of $30 per hydrant for the replacement. But that does not cover the entire economics of the episode. If all the water that is lost annually by breaking hydrants was placed end to end — well try to figure it out yourself.

H. C. Brookes of the Water Department, says there is no end to the funny excuses given by motorists for breaking their hydrants. The most common are: street was so rough car just jumped right over on to hydrant; crowded into hydrant by reckless driver; steering knuckle jammed (same alibi as used by drunken drivers.) One honest man told Mr. Brookes the other day, "Well, sir," he said. "I'd been driving all night and I guess I just naturally fell asleep at the wheel."

Mr. Brookes wishes all drivers to note that it is a misdemeanor to damage a fire hydrant, or lamp post or any city property and fail to report such damage. The rule about not having to report damage unless personal injury is involved does not apply to damage to city property, Mr. Brookes said.

APPROVAL ASKED GRADE ELIMINATION

Plans for the elimination of a dangerous grade crossing on Whittier Boulevard between Montebello and Whittier, and for the construction of a subway to carry the highway under the tracks of the Union Pacific were laid before the State Railroad Commission for approval by the State Highway Commission yesterday. It is estimated that the cost of the separation of grade will be $161,908, and an agreement is said to have been made whereby the cost will be borne by the highway commission, the railroad and the county.

U.S.C. CONSIDERS CHANGING SITES

Von KleinSmid Admits New Location Sought

Removal Issue to be Taken Up This Month

Crowded Conditions Make Move Necessary

The question of the relocating of the University of Southern California is likely to be taken up at the next meeting of the board of trustees and the site at Burbank that was offerd to the University of California, Southern Branch, is receiving earnest consideration, President Von KleinSmid admitted yesterday. The university trustees will meet again the 21st inst.

"Our cramped quarters and the high price of land around us," President Von KleinSmid said, "has led us to look elsewhere for a site. Virtually every site that was offered the University of California, Southern Branch, has been offered to us. The Burbank site has been offered to us in a little better shape than the others."

J. W. Wood, who presented the Burbank site offer to the University of California, Southern Branch, negotiated this week with President Von KleinSmid concerning the location of the University of Southern California on the Burbank tract.

"The Burbank site comprises some 600 or 700 acres," President Von KleinSmid said, "and lies against the hills. It embraces a slightly different tract in some smaller parts than the one offered to the other school."

When President Von KleinSmid was asked whether the Burbank site is offered free to his institution, as it was to the other, he replied:

"That is the only way the university could consider making a change."

Removal to larger quarters with ample room for future expansion has been under consideration by the university for some years, President Von KleinSmid said.

In event of removal the main institution would go to the new site but some of the professional branches would remain in the city as now, he said.

The university proper is at Thirty-fifth street and University avenue with some of its branches in downtown and other parts of the city. It is a Methodist Episcopal institution.

The Burbank site under consideration includes about 129 acres owned by Burbank. Between $1,500,000 and $2,000,000 would be needed to acquire the remainder for presentation to the school.

KHJ TALENT TO HAIL EASTER

Sunrise Service at Catalina Will Be Augmented by Caravan of Radio Artists

Easter sunrise service on Catalina Island will be made doubly attractive this year by the addition of the Easter caravan of The Times broadcasting station KHJ, which will include the many artists of radioland who are planning to attend the services in person and take part in a Saturday-night program at the Avalon Theater.

In planning the Catalina Easter caravan, Uncle John determined to feature his celebrated Children's Hour with Queen Titania, the Sandman, Mickey McBan, Catherine Cotter, Richard Headrick, Jane Hughes, Billie Lord and a number of others who are favorites with the radio fans. The program will begin at 7 o'clock and continue until 11 o'clock and will include the Lubovisky Trio, Orpheus Four Male Quartet, Uncle Remus, Sam Hinds, Carl Buratti and other radio specialists.

Special boat service has been arranged by the Wilmington Transportation Company. The Avalon will leave the Catalina Terminal at 4 o'clock Saturday afternoon. Pacific Electric trains will connect with this steamer from Sixth and Main streets, Los Angeles, leaving at 3 o'clock. The usual morning Pacific Electric train at 9 o'clock, connecting with the steamer at the harbor at 10 o'clock, will be maintained.

An Easter sunrise service will be celebrated at 5:30 a.m. in Buena Vista Park, with a brief address by Rt. Rev. Bertram Stevens, community singing, vocal solos and selections offered by the KHJ musicians.

Uncle John, with the radio children of the caravan, will entertain at a lawn party at 2 o'clock Saturday afternoon. This will give the children of Avalon as well as little visitors who have gone to Catalina to celebrate the Easter dawn an opportunity to meet Uncle John and his Children's Hour celebrities in person.

RAINFALL EASES SITUATION

Recent Storm Assures Ample Supply for Increasing Needs of Southland Communities

Rains that fell these past few days over all Southern California have brought the power supply to normal and greatly eased the draft which rising population and the dry summer months ahead are sure to make on the municipal reservoir system.

figures given out yesterday at offices of the Southern California Edison Company show that precipitation at Huntington Lake to this season to date has been 27.77 inches, as against 13.01 inches at the corresponding date last year. Normal at this date, based on the average for the years 1918-1924 inclusive, is 26.80. Other critical stations, the figures maintain approximately the same ratio.

In Owens Valley, the watershed of the Los Angeles Aqueduct system, it was said yesterday at the Municipal Bureau of Water Works and Supply, there is more snow on the mountain slopes today than at any time last season. Last week it increased continuously for three

SAN FERNANDO WELLS
In the San Fernando Valley, between one and four inches of rainfall virtually solved the irrigation problem. Overdraw and absence of drying winds have permitted the rain to sink two feet into the soil and no further irrigation will be necessary until May, at the earliest. In the event of more April showers, none of the sixteen twenty-inch wells which the city is sinking in the lower end of the valley have been driven; four are now delivering water, and nine have been equipped with pumps and are ready to deliver. An average of one second feet from each well is expected. To date, those in service have been yielding several

The capacity of the full battery of consistently estimated at 51,000 acre feet a day, or more than enough to take up the added draft demand, without imposing any extra burden on the Aqueduct system. Power for the pumps now on the wells will be furnished by three Diesel motors, each of 1125 h.p. driving electric generators. The first motor is on the ground and the second will be shipped from the fac-

RAINFALL RECORDED
Twenty Edison gauging stations show increases in rainfall of nearly 100 per cent over last year, with few minor exceptions. The figures shown in the following tabulation include snowfall in terms of rain for the important reservoir and generating stations of the system:

Station	1925	1924
Huntington Lake	26.77	13.01
Big Creek No. 1	26.52	14.01
Big Creek No. 2	26.23	13.88
Big Creek No. 3	22.10	9.53
Big Creek No. 8	24.61	13.03

This puts the water supply on a level where it is now estimated that the company can take care of a load increase this year of 12.2 per cent and still have 30 per cent surplus capacity in reserve, without purchases from other companies and without operating any of its steam plants, fired up last year.

Not until last January did the company cease feeling the effects of economy measures instituted during the 1924 shortage. From that point consumption began to climb until the total load last month showed an increase of 11 per cent over March, 1924, and touched the highest point thus far marked on the company's books.

INDUSTRIAL DEMAND
Analysis shows that the factors which contributed most to the total demand were domestic and business lighting and industrial power consumption. Agricultural demand and the interurban and street railway systems are the two others that complete the equation.

Railway demand is standing about level, but the industrial demand, as measured for February in Vernon, a heavy-consumption district, showed an increase of 19 per cent over the corresponding month of 1924. Agricultural demands this coming summer are expected to be heavy, inasmuch as the season's total rainfall, even were it to surpass the normal expectation, cannot be sufficient to lift the artesian basin, depleted by the shortage of past years, to its former level.

Nevertheless, the company expects to carry the farmers through while holding between 50,000 and 100,000 horsepower of steam capacity idle. The surplus of steam capacity stood yesterday at 100,000. Despite the shortage of hy-

PASADENA'S NO-SMOKING WAR RAGES

W.C.T.U. Lodges Protest Against Side-tracking of Ordinance by Board

Six hundred members of the W.C.T.U. of Pasadena yesterday went to bat over that city's much-debated antismoking ordinance. The ordinance was first passed and then dropped by the Board of City Directors and as a result, the women of the Temperance Union registered an emphatic protest at the directors' meeting yesterday.

The no-smoking ordinance first flained fame when the City Directors passed an ordinance forbidding smoking in theaters, garages and scores of other places. At the next meeting of the directors, which was held in executive session, two women members of the Pasadena Community Playhouse appeared and protested against the ordinance on the ground that it would wreak hardship on local theaters. As a result, the directors decided to drop the ordinance.

When this action was given publicity, the ire of the W.C.T.U. was immediately raised. Mrs. Carrie Compton was appointed to represent the organization and she personally made a protest to the directors.

Several times, Mrs. Compton declared, members of the W.C.T.U. had been forced to leave the Community Playhouse because actors smoked on the stage.

"In behalf of 600 members of the W.C.T.U. of Pasadena, we protest against smoking being allowed in the theaters of our city. I have twice gone to the Community Playhouse and have had to go out because of smoking on the stage, when 'Perimutter' and 'Little Women' were being played.

Since the proposed no-smoking ordinance already had been dropped by the City Directors after the protest from the Community Playhouse had been lodged, the ordinance could not be revived yesterday, and as a result, the protest of the W.C.T.U. was filed.

FORETOLD DEATH QUIZ IS FUTILE

Trouble-Making Relative Only Bad Spirit Found; Natural Causes Assigned

When the Sheriff's office received a request to investigate the death of Thomas Martinez because his death and the death two months ago of his four-year-old daughter had been foretold by a spiritualist, Deputies Hanby and Hunter filled their pockets with charms, amulets and talismen and began an investigation.

They found no spirits, but investigation did reveal, they said, what was described as a trouble-making relative. Assistant County Autopsy Surgeon Webb found that Martinez died of entirely natural causes, and further investigation disclosed that the same was true of the daughter.

Martinez was buried yesterday after the autopsy. He was 42 years of age.

Inquiry at the home of a brother, Frank Martinez, 1009 South Crocker street, who lived next door, disclosed that Mrs. Frank Martinez had predicted the death of the two, but based her predictions on her experiences as a hospital-trained nurse, rather than on what she had learned at the few seances she had ever attended.

IMPRESSIVE SERVICE AT PACIFIC PALISADES

[LOCAL CORRESPONDENCE]

PACIFIC PALISADES, April 8. Impressive Easter sunrise services are to be held Sunday morning at the big cross on Peace Hill at Pacific Palisades. Arrangements have been made for special Pacific Electric cars to run from Hill-street station, Los Angeles to Santa Monica, leaving at 3:30 o'clock Sunday morning. Special busses will operate between Santa Monica and Pacific Palisades.

At 5:15 o'clock Sunday morning the services open with the playing of sacred music by the Community Band of Pacific Palisades. As the first rays of the sun touch Peace Hill the people unite in singing the sunrise hymn, "Lo, In the Grave He Lay." After prayer the Community Church chorus choir sings the anthem, "Unfold, Ye Portals," from "The Redemption," by Gounod. The solo "Hosanna," will be sung by Mrs. Everett James and Van Dyke's "God of the Open Air," will be read by Mrs. W. R. Garrett. The address of the morning will be given by Bishop William A. Burt.

At 11 o'clock the Easter services

Merchants', Manufacturers' Official Witness in Bus Franchise Hearing

That the Merchants' and Manufacturers' Association through its free employment agency has obtained employment for approximately 275,000 during the past three years was the statement made yesterday by Edgar R. Perry, assistant manager of the association, before the State Railroad Commission where he was called as a witness in a case involving transportation of laborers in Southern California.

Perry was called to the stand by the motor and railroad carriers operating here who are opposing an application of C. S. Stewart and others for a franchise to operate auto busses to various points in California for the convenience of laborers. The hearing was called by Examiner Williams of the commission.

According to Perry, present rail and motor bus facilities are adequate to care for transportation of laborers sent out by the association. He said that approximately 90,000 have been sent out in this manner during the past three years.

It is the contention of the applicants that special facilities for the transportation of laborers are necessary to assure employers that the workmen will be "delivered" at their destination.

AIR MAIL CHIEF PLANS CONFERENCE IN CITY

Col. Carl F. Egge, superintendent of the United States Air Mail Service, will confer today with Postmaster O'Brien in an effort to expedite inauguration of air-mail service to Los Angeles from the East by way of Salt Lake City, by not later than July. Col. Egge entered the air-mail service six years ago when it first was placed on trial. His headquarters are in Omaha. He will arrive in Los Angeles from Washington this morning.

CAHUENGA ROAD PLAN APPROVED

Reaburn is Ordered to Secure Rights of Way; Financing Move Later

The plans for a new roadway to San Fernando on the east side of Cahuenga Pass, submitted Friday to the Board of Public Works by D. L. Reaburn, construction engineer of the Mulholland Highway, were approved yesterday by the board, which instructed Mr. Raeburn to secure rights of way from property-owners.

The financing of the road, it is understood, will be the subject of future conferences. The cost of grading the roadway, which will be sixty feet wide, was estimated by Mr. Reaburn at $178,532.50. It is expected that the funds will be drawn from the county's apportionment of the State highway fund.

Negotiations will be commenced with the Pacific Electric Company for the removal of their tracks to a slightly different location at the lower end of the pass to permit of a proper approach.

The board acted on the recommendation of Mr. Reaburn, who reported that the present roadway on the west side of the pass, upon which he is now working, will in a short time be inadequate to handle the immense amount of traffic between the city and the San Fernando Valley.

U. S. District Judge James yesterday sentenced J. Morello, alias Armedia Coffi, a former motion-picture actor, who, at the time of his arrest on August 31, 1924, was a waiter in the Greenwich Village Cafe, to three months in the Orange County Jail for selling intoxicants

NEEDED---5000 MORE POLICE

Visiting Criminologist Makes Discovery at Point of Bandit's Gun; Conversation Theory Works

The need of 5000 additional policemen in Los Angeles was discovered last Monday night by George N. Dougherty, former deputy police commissioner of New York, as he looked into the muzzle of a bandit's gun.

Mr. Dougherty is a detective, a lecturer and an author of articles on crime prevention. With his wife and Mr. and Mrs. Rene Marx, the criminologist was held up and robbed of $20,000 in jewelry by two gunmen at 248 North Rampart Boulevard, the Marx residence. Mr. Marx is manager of the local Locomobile agency.

"Los Angeles needs 5000 policemen," Mr. Dougherty declared last night while analyzing his first experience as a victim of the gentry on which he is a recognized authority. "Though Los Angeles may not have the alien population that New York has, this city has a greater roving population of strangers and it is among such classes that criminals prosper."

IS NOT ASHAMED
Mr. Dougherty admitted he was not ashamed that he surrendered to the two bandits who robbed his party. That which happened to him, he said, can happen to any other person in the city, and though he did not do what the average person would think a husky, Irish detective would do—capture his assailants single-handed—he believes that he proved to a nicety one of the problems of crime which he has incorporated in his crime-prevention articles.

"I practiced last night what I

FINAL TOUCHES GIVEN ORATIONS

Contestants Spend Easter Vacation in Study

Many Drafts Are Prepared by High Students

Only One Girl in Group E in Semifinal Line-up

The busiest persons in Southern California these days are the thirty-six boys and girls getting ready for the semifinals in the National Oratorical Contest on the Constitution the 17th inst. Having passed through two oratorical ordeals in the contest already they have become aware of sundry weaknesses in composition and delivery which they are doing everything to remedy before the next meet, which will be a greater test than any going before.

The high schools this week are all closed for the Easter vacation and many of the teachers are absent to attend a teachers' meeting in Santa Barbara. This does not apply to the instructors in history, civics and public speaking, however, who are all on the job at their respective institutions coaching the youngsters who will enter the semifinals. Most of the orators had prepared anywhere from half a dozen to a dozen drafts of their orations before delivery at the district meets, and several have stated that they perhaps will rewrite them three or four times more before the 17th inst.

GROUP-E SKETCHES
So much engaged are the contenders in the events still to come in the contest that it is difficult to get in touch with them to obtain data for the sketches of each now being printed from day to day in The Times. Yesterday by dint of arduous labor requiring the entire day it was finally possible to round up all the seven contestants who will appear in the Group-E semifinals in Los Angeles, to take place at Bovard Hall of the University of Southern California.

The schools that will be represented at this group meet are Jefferson High, represented by Frank Phillips; Manual Arts, by Karl Kreder; Franklin High, by Mary Louise Wages; Los Angeles High, by Charles Crail; Hollywood High, by Herbert Wenig; Polytechnic High, by Roy Candee, and Lincoln High, by Bernard Harrison.

IS ALSO AN ATHLETE
Frank Phillips, Jefferson's champion, is the son of Harry Phillips and lives at 1916 Berkeley street. He is a native of Colorado, but has lived in Los Angeles for fourteen years, being now 17 years of age. During his high school career he has taken much interest in public speaking and studies pertaining to government. He is the president of the advanced public-speaking class at Jefferson and the secretary of the boys' self-government organization of that institution.

Aside from his oratorical work he has distinguished himself in English and is now the assistant editor of the Gold Quill, a literary magazine published at Jefferson. Despite his inclination toward intellectual pursuits, he has also found time to take an active part in the school's athletics and is now being groomed for the football squad. He is undecided as to whether to choose journalism or law as his profession.

INTELLECTUAL TYPE
Karl Kreder of Manual Arts is the purely intellectual type of youth who studies for the sheer love of it. He is a senior at Manual Arts and during the last two years has specialized in public speaking and debate, being now the manager of the school's debating team. "I did not take up speaking or debating during my first two years in high school, devoting all my time to various branches of study in order to have a background when I started on

Little Ones to Get More Than Usual Share of Attention With Dr. Maude Wilde and Health Department Conducting Separate Events

The babies should be well taken care of in Los Angeles for the city is going to have two rival baby weeks.

One will be from the 13th to the 18th inst., conducted by Dr. Maude Wilde, head of the Mothers' Educational Center here.

The other will be from the 27th inst. to May 3, next, and will be under auspices of the City Health Department locally and nationally of the American Child Health Association. It will be known as National Child Health Week.

Dr. Wilde has been conducting a baby week every year since the war, but this year arrangements were made for official municipal participation in the national baby week, with the result that differing dates have been announced.

"We invited Dr. Wilde to join us in participating in National Child Welfare Week, but she is going ahead with her own arrangements," Dr. J. D. Dunshee, director, division of child welfare, City Health Department, said yesterday. "Organizations like the Red Cross, the Boy Scouts, the American Legion and the Federation of Women's Clubs are joining locally in observation of the national event."

The idea of baby week is to call attention to the importance of child health.

Dr. Wilde said that she and her associates planned their baby week this year as they have in the nine years past; that it was virtually impossible for them to change the date of their observance to conform to the City Health Department in view of the fact that International Boy's Week begins on May 1, an affair in which she will participate in connection with her work with the local Chamber of Commerce.

Dr. Wilde also said that she had been advised by the government that there was to be no national baby week this year, as baby week is popularly construed, with government agencies participating.

There are 1800 babies already registered for her baby week celebration, Dr. Wilde said.

MANNERS change with every flop of women's fashions.

We had the thin consumptive girl with the debutante slouch; we had the girl without any spine whose tum tum stuck out like a Bavarian bartender's. We have had the scornful girl; we had the little hurrying Magdalen with her little Spanish cloak gathered about her and a perpetual air of bending before the blast.

Now we have the girl shining with eager interest. In many ways she is the best of all. But one thing I wish. When she perks her bobbed head on one side, with brightly animated eyes, well, I wish she didn't also poke out her neck with a gesture that is exactly like a hen laying an egg.

THE CHAMPION LIAR
You will have to say this for old Doc Cook, who is in retirement in a Federal penitentiary: He was an interesting liar.

Commodore Peary's account of the genuine discovery of the North Pole didn't have half the kick of the one that, I suppose, Doc Cook framed up down at the free-lunch end of some Alaska barroom.

Peary spoiled the glory of his achievement by an act of unkindness. Almost within sight of the pole—according to his own account—he forced his faithful negro servant to turn back. He insisted on being alone in the glory of discovering the pole.

THE OLD-TIMERS
It is significant that it was an old-timer who won the contest for the best letter about California.

I think we old-timers love it best. The reason of this is that the newcomers think of Hollywood as Los Angeles. The great California adventure for them is standing next to Mary Pickford in a department store while she is buying the family neckties.

They see too much of California; and they see it too rapidly in their fast-going automobiles. California ought not to be gulped like sherry and egg; it ought to be sipped like fine liqueurs.

CHEERS FOR CRIMINALS
No one can listen to the cheers that went up for Gerald Chapman, the champion criminal—mail robber and convicted murderer—without apprehension.

The explanation cannot be that the public is rotten morally; yet the sympathies of the people in this Connecticut town went to this wretch who has taken arms as a professional criminal against the forces of decency.

The trouble is that crime is picturesque and full of color and action. Respectability is rather drab and monotonous.

That is a very, very dangerous condition. The more color and romantic interest with which we can surround police work and the achievements of the cop the safer this world is going to be.

It is simply hard-headed sagacity to make the cop a picturesque and interesting hero. We cannot afford to have popular sympathy run in the wrong direction. It has a force and a power beyond all human calculation.

GLORIA-LASKY PACT UNSIGNED

Attorney Says Future Plans Are Still Undecided

Marquis-Husband Regarded as "Regular Fellow"

Gloria Swanson still may be grabbed away from Famous Players-Lasky by a rival producer, it was revealed yesterday when Milton Cohen, her attorney, declared she has not signed a new contract with this organization and may not make any decisions as to her future before December when her present contract expires.

Cohen, who has just returned from New York, told of arranging a new two-year contract with Famous Players for Pola Negri, whom he also represents.

Contradicting the general impression that Miss Swanson had already agreed to sign with Lasky's for a weekly salary reputed to reach five figures, Cohen stated: "Miss Swanson's contract does not expire until December. She has had five or six excellent offers and is considering them all."

This announcement yesterday caused gossip to buzz again in Hollywood concerning reports that Warner Brothers and Cecil B. De Mille have been in a spirited bidding contest with Famous-Players for the services of Miss Swanson, who is generally conceded as one of the biggest box-office attractions in the industry today.

Gloria will make her next picture in Los Angeles and will arrive here for the opening of "Madame Sans Gene," the latter part of this month.

This will be the first picture Miss Swanson has made on the Pacific Coast since "Bluebeard's Eighth Wife." At the time she left, it was rumored she would refuse to return to the California studios of Famous-Players for any further motion-picture work.

According to Cohen, however, Gloria is very enthusiastic over returning to Los Angeles and is having her home in Beverly Hills renovated for her and her new marquis-husband.

The marquis is characterized as a "regular fellow" by Cohen, who said that New York already familiarly refers to him as "Hanks."

MAY ADOPT CHILD

In an interview with Gloria in her flower-banked suite at the Ritz-Carlton, Cohen said he was told of the star's plans to petition for the adoption of "Sonny Smith," the 2 1-2-year-old child whom Gloria was allowed to take temporarily from the Children's Home Society of California.

The petition of adoption will be filed as soon as Miss Swanson returns here, Cohen stated.

Pola Negri's new contract with Lasky's is for two years, with four pictures a year, at a sum very much in advance of what she was getting under her former contract, Cohen stated.

He declared Joseph Hergesheimer, author, is now in Mexico collecting material for a story for Pola when she returns to this country from France, and that Michael Arlen, English author of "The Green Hat," will also write a story for the star.

Hollywood Film Work Held Up by Influenza Cases

Several cases of influenza in the Hollywood film colony have interfered with production of several motion pictures.

The following players have been ill, but are now reported to be recovering: Lewis Stone, who was able to work yesterday at the United Studios on the Edwin Carewe production, "The Lady Who Lied;" Belle Bennett, under contract to Fox to play in "East Lynne," and Ronald Colman, Sam Goldwyn player, to whose marital troubles have been added an attack of influenza. He is now said to be up and about.

Robert Vignola, director, also has been ill with influenza. He was taken sick soon after completing direction of "The Marriage Waltz" for Corinne Griffith.

Cameramen, electricians and lesser lights have been dropping out in numbers, due to illness.

POLITICS

THE WATCHMAN

Trend of Political Thought and Action

—BY THE SENTRY ON HIS BEAT—

Councilman Edwin Baker, candidate in the Fourteenth Councilmanic District (Highland Park, Eagle Rock, Garvanza and York Boulevard,) is confining his campaigning to the evening hours, as, he said yesterday, "My days are occupied at the City Hall attending to my duties as a Councilman and doing my part in securing improvements for my district and other sections of the city." Councilman Baker said that he was particularly proud of the success of his efforts in securing a police substation for his district. In the present Council, Councilman Baker is chairman of the Supply Committee and has particularly stressed to the Council its duty to patronize Los Angeles industries in purchasing city equipment. Coming to the Council after serving four terms in the Legislature, Councilman Baker's legislative experience proved of great value in accomplishing results.

"Moo-shay." That's the proper pronouncement of Councilman W. C. Mushet's name. This information was given out yesterday by the Councilman in answer to many inquiries sent to his campaign headquarters in the Hillstreet Theater Building since the recent announcement of his candidacy for City Controller at the primary election May 5. He states further for the enlightenment of the voters that the W. C. is an abbreviation for William Cresswell. Mr. Mushet is conducting one of the most intensive campaigns for any municipal office in the history of Los Angeles and hundreds of volunteer workers are rallying to the support of his candidacy. Councilman Mushet will address the City Club at its meeting next Saturday noon and will tell of the duties of the new position of Controller under the charter which becomes effective July 1.

Former Judge Bledsoe will address the Hotel Men's Association at the Alexandria Hotel at noon today, and this evening will speak at the Hollenbeck Junior High School.

The Chicago Social Club, of which David Lazar is president, has indorsed the candidacy of Councilman Sanborn in the Ninth Councilmanic District.

Allan-for-Council headquarters have been opened in the Second Councilmanic District (Hollywood) at rooms 506-7-8, Guaranty Building, 6331 Hollywood Boulevard, with Fred Leonard as campaign manager. From these headquarters a vigorous compaign for the re-election of Councilman Allan will be made, Mr. Leonard said.

"Business, not politics," is the slogan of Dr. Frederick C. Langdon, candidate in the Eleventh Councilmanic District. His friends who drafted him to become a candidate after he has served five terms in the Council point out that throughout his ten years in the Council he worked solely and successfully for an efficient, business-like administration of the public business.

Former Councilman John Topham, candidate in the Fifth Councilmanic District, was chairman of the Council's Public Works Committee which secured the adoption of the ordinance of intention for the West Jefferson-street storm-drain system.

E. E. Lampton, candidate in the First Councilmanic District (San Fernando Valley,) has already in the campaign addressed the Atwater Improvement Association, Glendale Boulevard Improvement Association, Greater San Fernando Chambers of Commerce and Ventura Boulevard Chamber of Commerce, and declares that before May 5 he will have made speeches in all parts of the district.

Campaign headquarters for the election of City Auditor Myers as Controller have been opened at 419 California Building, with John W. Kamp as chairman of the campaign committee and W. L. Brent as treasurer.

City Clerk Dominguez has ordered 394,000 ballots for the May 5 primaries, as compared with 276,000 ballots ordered for the primaries two years ago.

CHORUS OF 50,000 WILL SING AT COLISEUM

A great chorus of 50,000 voices will be heard at the Los Angeles Coliseum at Exposition Park early Sunday morning when fully that many people will assemble there to take part in the second annual Coliseum Easter sunrise service. This will be one of the largest chorus assemblages on record.

The group singing will be led by Harry Barnhart, internationally famous community song leader who came here from Chicago, and will be accompanied by the Philharmonic Orchestra under the leadership of Walter Henry Rothwell.

The musical standard of the program will be heightened by special symphonic numbers played by the Philharmonic. Dr. Ray Hastings, playing the Aeolian organ in the Philharmonic Auditorium, will be heard over the radio from 4:30 until 5:26 a.m., when the service proper will begin with a trumpet call announcing sunrise.

The Easter message will be delivered by Dr. Carl S. Patton, pastor of the First Congregational Church. Dr. Paul C. Elliott of the First Presbyterian Church will give the benediction, while the invocation will be by Dr. George E. Monkman, pastor of the Vincent Methodist Church.

Niagara Falls will be permanently illuminated with a battery of twenty-four powerful searchlights, which will throw more than 1,250,000,000 candlepower of light upon this spectacular waterfall.

The Paul G. Hoffman Company, starting with $60,000, now has assets of $1,500,000.

Mr. Hoffman's election proceeded announcement by President A. R. Erskine that Studebaker soon will enter a larger field, plans being completed to engage in the manufacture of motor busses. Studebaker will build a specially designed, low wheel-base chassis for the motor-bus trade, Mr. Erskine announced. The company will continue to make all models of passenger cars now being produced.

Under the administration of Mr. Bigge as sales director, the Studebaker Corporation has broken all former sales records. Mr. Hoffman steps in as the building plan is completed which gives the Studebaker plants a capacity of 700 cars daily, with all plants operating at capacity.

Mr. Hoffman's term as vice-president begins June 10.

Child Stealing Charge Against Couple in Court

Legal opportunities to fight the charges against them of stealing and keeping Mildred Trueblood during her supposed runaway absences from the home of her parents, were provided yesterday for Mr. and Mrs. G. H. Mistler of Bell. Mrs. Mistler, against whom a complaint of child stealing has been issued, appeared before Justice H. Parker Wood and her preliminary hearing set for 2 o'clock Thursday.

Mistler, charged with contributing to the delinquency of the girl, who is 14 years of age, and one of the most attractive who has been in juvenile custody for years, is scheduled to face a hearing in the juvenile department of the Superior Court at 10 a.m. Saturday.

The delinquency proceedings pending against the girl have been taken off calendar temporarily until the Mistler cases have been settled.

Deputy Sheriffs Allen and Sweesy added additional evidence yesterday to that already in their possession, they announced, indicating the presence of Mildred in the Mistler home over an extended period. Struck by the coincidence of a reported robbery at the residence of Mrs. E. L. Trueblood, the girl's mother, at 970 Kenwood street, Inglewood, shortly after Mildred's "disappearance" January 2, last, the two deputies yesterday obtained permission of Mr. and Mrs. Mistler, now in jail, to visit their home in Bell.

Upon their arrival there they found, they said, a trunkful of Mildred's clothes, neatly arranged, a few articles of Mrs. Trueblood's clothing and a parrot said to have disappeared from the Trueblood residence. All except Mildred's things were returned to Mrs. Trueblood. The girl's articles are held for evidence.

FREE EASTER CONCERT PLANNED AT VALHALLA

A free Easter Sunday afternoon concert, in which Marjorie Dodge, former Philharmonic soloist; Joseph Diskay, Victor artist; Maud Elliott, Joseph Rosenfelt, violinist, and Marguerite Bitter will take part, has been planned by the management of Valhalla to take place at the new cemetery near Burbank at 2:30 p.m., next Sunday. A feature of the event will be the distribution of Easter eggs to all the children who attend the concert with their parents. The musical event was planned as an Easter tribute and to celebrate the completion of the first unit of the night illumination plan at the eighty-foot marble portals. The lights will be turned on at sundown.

GARBUTT GRANTED NEW STAY

Supreme Court Postpones Execution of Mrs. Hunn's Slayer Second Time

Harry Garbutt, convicted of the murder of Mrs. Dorothy Lee Hunn of Pasadena, won a second stay of execution of his death sentence yesterday when the State Supreme Court on stipulation of counsel deferred consideration of his appeal until the June calendar of the court.

The appeal of Garbutt, convicted of killing Mrs. Hunn, was set for hearing here in January. At that time the high court set the matter over to the present calendar and the date of Garbutt's execution, set for February 13, last, was postponed.

Two local cases of considerable importance were submitted to the court yesterday for decision. One is a test case brought by the Dominguez Land Corporation with which it is sought to compel Corporation Commissioner Daugherty to issue a permit for the distribution of capital assets. While an amended section of the blue sky law gives the commissioner this authority the Attorney-General has advised Mr. Daugherty to refuse to take action on the grounds that the law is unconstitutional.

The court also took under consideration a case to determine whether the city under a recent ruling of the Appellate Court has authority to remove tracks of the Los Angeles Rock and Gravel Company in the Arroyo Seco.

The court is expected to conclude its local session this afternoon with the submission of six cases involving estate matters which have been set for the day's calendar.

preach," he said. "I have continually warned my readers that the best method to prevent bloodshed during the commission of a crime is for the victim to engage the criminal in conversation. I saved $270 by conversation.

"I continued to remonstrate with the criminal—the one who was searching us—not to do anything to frighten Mrs. Dougherty and Mrs. Marx. I talked continuously with him and discovered he was equally as loquacious as I was. I kept up the running conversation with him, a trick which tends to disconcert the criminal and which, as I have so often preached, worked out all right."

Mr. Dougherty, after thoroughly analyzing his experience, concluded last night that he and Mr. Marx might have disarmed one of the bandits, the one nearest to them during the robbery.

"It might have been possible," he said, "but the loquacious criminal kept his finger on the trigger which, with the slightest move on my part, might have been pulled. We decided at the time, as we learned by checking our afterthoughts, that it might have resulted in serious injury or death to some one in our party. Beside, we would still have the second fellow to contend with. We now believe we did the right thing by throwing up our hands and submitting to the robbery, and we are not ashamed of our acts.

"One thing is apropos of this robbery. My observations of police conditions in Los Angeles convince me that the city has grown much more rapidly than it has been possible to increase the police force. The city should not be alarmed at crime conditions here. There is no more crime than in any other city of similar size. The problem that exists is the problem of a city that has not enough police. This city should have 3000 policemen."

ANOTHER RAIN IS BREWING IN NORTH

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

SAN FRANCISCO, April 7.—Another rainstorm is brewing in the North Pacific, the weather bureau announced today, which will descend on California within forty-eight hours. Tomorrow will be cloudy, according to Forecaster George H. Wilson, but it is not likely to rain until Thursday. A low pressure area caused light rains today over the Rocky Mountains and cloudiness throughout the West. Over the eastern portion of the country the weather is fair, and warmer in the central and upper Mississippi Valleys. Moderate temperatures and light westerly winds are expected tomorrow.

County Leading in Applications for Army Camp

Los Angeles county is leading the State in applications for enrollment in the Citizens' Military Training Camps at Del Monte and Fort Winfield Scott, San Francisco, during June, July and August, it was announced here yesterday by Lieut. Col. George H. Chase, county chairman. A progress report received from Col. E. V. Smith, chief of staff, Ninety-first Division, at San Francisco shows that three times as many candidates have made application in Los Angeles county as in any other county in the State.

Col. Chase said that while his committee expects to have Los Angeles county first to fill its quota, the main effort is to provide a representation that will win all honors at the camp. Applications are being received at army headquarters, 625 Detwiler Building.

"A month of health, education and patriotism with all expenses paid is provided by the government at these camps," said Col. Chase today. "Age limits are 17 to 31, but for those who have not attended previous camps or had basic courses before, the age limit is 17 to 24. The Del Monte camp will be held July 21 to August 19, and the Fort Winfield Scott Camp, June 20 to July 19."

TELLER GIVEN PROBATION

Man Who Confessed to Embezzlement Receives First Leniency Here Under New Act of Congress

The first granting of leniency through probation under the act of Congress, effective March 4, last, in Federal courts of Los Angeles district, was received yesterday from United States District Judge James by C. W. Armell, former teller of the First National Bank of Hanford, charged with the embezzlement of $3000.

Armell, the victim of indiscreet business moves by his associates in a dairy venture, is purported to have become panic-stricken and taken the money from the bank on three separate occasions, September 17, 19 and 21, in 1921. He was indicted in 1923, but was not arrested for six weeks. During the interim he has been working on his father's dairy ranch near Goshen.

Judge James granted a stay of execution for one year, with the requirement that Armell report every three months to the justice of the peace at Hanford, after the defendant had pleaded guilty to the accusation.

R. R. Cunningham, vice-president of the bank which Armell is declared to have victimized, took the stand in his former employee's behalf and told the court that if Armell were given probation he could return to the bank and resume his duties as teller. Complete restitution of the stolen funds was made by Armell's father immediately after the indictment had been returned.

my debating work," explained Karl.

This thoroughness also characterized young Kreder's preparation for the National Oratorical Contest. He began work on his oration as soon as the contest opened, reading widely on all phases of the subject before writing his address.

"The thing that impressed itself especially upon my mind in my study of the fundamental law is its flexibility and I made this the principal theme in my oration," he said. "It seems incredible that a document formulated so long ago and by men of the aristocratic class should so well meet the conditions today in a democracy."

He referred also to the benefits he had received from the research work in which he had engaged preparatory to the writing of his address. "It has broadened my understanding of the principles on which this government is founded and has placed the Constitution in an entirely different light. I no longer regard it as a musty old document of merely historic interest, but have come to realize its vitality as the source of the governmental benefits enjoyed by Americans, which the average person seems to take for granted without ever reflecting on their origin."

Kreder's aim is to obtain a gold seal diploma when he graduates from high school, which hinges on his remaining on the honor roll in scholarship during three of the four years of his course. He has already had his name on this roll for two and a half years and hopes to keep it there the rest of the year. He intends to enter Princeton when he completes his high school course, planning to become a lawyer.

Mary Louise Wages, representing Franklin High, has made a specialty of dramatic art during her high-school course. This is her first oratorical contest. She admitted she did not have much hope of winning in the preliminaries "because the other four contestants were boys," but her victory has inspired her to such an extent that she has no fears now of entering the semifinals where she will contend against six boys.

Miss Wages said she had been anticipating the present contest ever since last year, when Don Tyler, the national winner and a Franklin student, brought greater glory to his institution than any former student, thereby inspiring all Franklin students to enter the contest this year. "I began preparing for the contest away back last summer," said Miss Wages, "and have been working on my oration more or less ever since. I feel that it has been the most profitable study in which I have ever engaged."

The Franklin champion expects to enter the Emerson School of Oratory when she completes her high-school work. She will specialize in dramatic art and her ultimate goal is a stage career.

CHARLES CRAIL

Charles Crail, who will represent Los Angeles High at the Group E contest, is the son of Superior Judge Crail. He has distinguished himself for brilliant scholarship ever since he entered high school, becoming a member of the Periclean Society, the school's scholastic honor organization in his freshman year, a distinction theretofore almost unheard of.

Young Crail, in addition to his ability to absorb knowledge from books, is also capable of evolving original ideas. While he was in his sophomore year, it occurred to him that the school's system of selecting yell-leaders wasn't as he thought it should be. It had been the custom that those dignitaries be chosen only from members of the two upper classes. Crail thought everybody should be eligible to the honor and convinced the powers that be that he was right, with the result that the system was changed and Crail became the first member of the two lower classes to attain the place of yell-leader, which he held for three terms. Too, he organized a yell-leading class, the first of its kind in any high school in the United States.

Crail likewise has held several other places of distinction during his high school career. He has taken an active interest in athletics and was a member of the baseball team for two years, was the business manager of "Blue and White," the school newspaper, for a time and later assistant editor of that journal. While holding this job he conceived the idea of changing the paper from a weekly to a daily, which innovation went into effect last year and has continued ever since. Outside of one of the Oakland high schools, Los Angeles High is the only high school west of Chicago publishing a daily paper.

The young man expects to follow in his father's footsteps in the legal profession when he has completed his education. He stated that he believed the work he has done in the oratorical contest will be of great value to him when he takes up the study of law. He comes of stock that helped establish the Constitution, his great-grandfathers on both sides of the family having fought in the Revolution.

HERBERT WENIG

Herbert Wenig, Hollywood High champion, is another intellectual youth, who loves debating and public speaking. He is a member of the school debating team, and also is on the staff of the "Hollywood News," the school newspaper.

"I have found the work of preparing an oration in this contest a great incentive to the study of government," said Wenig. "Not only has the work been intensely interesting, but it has given me a grasp of the meaning of the Constitution that I never had before, though I had read numerous textbooks on that subject before entering the contest."

Wenig devoted much time to preparation before appearing in the district contest. He said he made no attempt to reduce his ideas to writing before he had digested a large number of books dealing with the subject.

"I felt that the best way to proceed would be to lay a substantial groundwork before I tried to express myself on paper," he commented. Like the majority of the youthful orators, the Hollywood contestant expects to become a lawyer.

ROY CANDEE

Another youth of the intellectual type is Roy Candee, who will appear from Polytechnic High at the semifinals. He is one of his school's leading debaters, having won numerous honors in forensic events during his high-school career. He is reported by his teachers to be one of Polytechnic's most thorough students, delighting in studies which tax the powers of his analytical mind. In addition to his activities as a debater, Candee has also taken much interest in the high school's Y.M.C.A. work.

"I want to express my appreciation to The Times for the incentive it has furnished in this contest to study our Constitution, its history and the lives of the great men who have made our nation," he said, in response to a query in regard to his opinion of the contest movement. "During the preparation of my oration I have become firmer than ever before in my loyalty to my country and in the determination to see that the ideals of America are upheld. By no other means could these ideals have been so deeply impressed upon my mind."

BERNARD HARRISON

Bernard Harrison, representing Lincoln High, is the son of Harry Harrison, 3223 Winter street. He entered Lincoln two years ago when his family moved here from Chicago, and during this time he has taken special interest in the school's debating and oratory work. He is an honor student, is president of the Lincoln Latin Club, and intends to study law when he completes his high school course.

"I have been interested in the National Oratorical Contest ever since last year," said Harrison. "I heard Don Tyler's speech and it fired my interest and I made up my mind that if there was another opportunity to enter a contest of this kind I would do so. I owe my success to the training of my teacher, Robert Cariquist.

"The contest has aroused keener interest in public speaking at Lincoln High than anything ever tried there before. Two preliminary try-outs were necessary before the final representative was selected to enter the district contest. Under the principal, Mrs. Ethel Andrus, attention is particularly paid to the study of the Constitution and no student can graduate from Lincoln High until he has passed a special examination on the Constitution. With this background, in a contest dealing purely with the Constitution, intense interest was awakened."

ATTACK CHARGED TO FORMER WATCHMAN

S. C. Stone, former night watchman in the Glen Airy district, was arraigned yesterday before Judge Hahn on charge of attacking Irma Merritt, 14 years of age. He was allowed until the 14th inst., to plead. Stone, who says he is the father of Jack Hoxie, film actor, at one time was questioned in the slaying of Nina and May Martin, but was not able to furnish authorities with information of value.

RUM TRIO FLEE IN BULLET HAIL

Dry Squad in Gun Fight With Redskins and Renegade

Operators of Still Take to Rocks and Make Escape

Sentinel on Hill Warns Pals of Approaching Officers

Reverting to guerilla methods when surprised by Deputy District-Prohibition Agent F. F. Smith and six other deputies, two full-blooded Piute Indians and a renegade white man successfully resisted capture yesterday while operating a huge still in a rocky fastness not far from Kernville, more than 200 miles north of Los Angeles.

With rifles popping, bullets zipping and pinging among the boulders, the trio leaped to safety among the crags, hotly pursued by the seven government officers. So tenaciously did the prohibition men hang to the trail of the three fugitives that it was several hours before the chase was abandoned.

Informed of the activities of the two Indians and their white man leader, Agent Anderson and his armed squad set out for the valley in which the moonshiners were operating. Their determination to rid the mountains of the liquor scourge was only partly compensated, however, by the seizure of the still, which had a capacity of more than 200 gallons, and a number of barrels of corn mash.

As Anderson and his deputies neared the cache they saw a few whisps of smoke arise from a nearby hill — a lookout had sighted them and signaled those at the still to escape.

The Federal agents had abandoned their horses several miles back and they returned 'the fire of the liquor-makers.

Pardon Sought for "Unjustly" Convicted Man

Dist.-Atty. Keyes and Dep. Dist.-Atty. Davis departed yesterday for Sacramento, where they will personally request Gov. Richardson to pardon Sidney Wood from prison. He is serving a term for robbery of a Pacific Electric train on November, 1923, near Valley Junction.

Since Wood was convicted and sentenced, more than a year ago, the District Attorney's office obtained information showing that he could not have been present at the time of the robery and, therefore, had been unjustly convicted.

James A. Hovermale recently was convicted of the robbery and two suspects, Russell Smith and Mark Godfrey were arrested in Napa, Idaho, as the two other bandits. Smith and Godfrey are being held in jail at Boise, awaiting return to Los Angeles.

Olive Henderson on Local Staff of Charities Board

Appointment of Miss Olive Henderson to the local staff of the State Board of Charities and Correction was announced yesterday at a meeting of the southern committee of the board. Miss Henderson has been public-health nurse of Kings county.

During the meeting the board discussed the recent adoption cases which are now awaiting court action as a result of investigations carried on by the State body. The board recommended that in the future more careful consideration be given adoption proceedings by the courts, and that individuals make thorough examinations before answering advertisements where children are offered for adoption.

WIFE ASKS DIVORCE ON SLAPPING PLEA

Charles J. Jones made a masterly but discourteous retort to an observation of hers, Mrs. May Jones said yesterday in a divorce suit she filed. He had slapped her, Mrs. Jones declared. "Only a coward would slap a woman," Mrs. Jones said she remarked. Whereupon Jones, she said, knocked her down.

MINISTER IN TRIBUTE TO VIRGIN MARY

Dr. H. B. Smith Tells Noon Service Congregation of Power of Love

"There stood by the cross of Jesus, His mother," is the most pathetic statement in all literature, according to the opinion expressed yesterday by Dr. Herbert Booth Smith in his sermon at the second of the noon-day services being conducted at the First German Methodist Church under the auspices of the Church Federation.

"Mary, the mother of Jesus, was not of the rampant, suffragette type," said Dr. Smith. "She was more like Mrs. Theodore Roosevelt, who was willing to give out data concerning her famous husband on condition that she be left out of the book. If our Roman friends overemphasize Mary, may it not be that we sometimes underestimate her?

"The Virgin birth is more than a biological miracle, it is a great sociological fact," continued the speaker. "In consenting to be born of a virgin, Jesus gave to womanhood the sanctity it had not known and to motherhood the divinity it deserves. Love is and has ever been the strongest force in the universe, true womanhood is always sacred and motherhood forever divine. Love is stronger than all emotions combined, stronger than any creed, organization or institution, stronger even than justice."

Dr. J. Whitcomb Brougher will be the speaker at the noon service today and Gage Christopher will be the soloist. The public is invited.

BAIL IS FORFEITED IN CASE OF EX-OFFICER

Bail of $1000 in the case of E. B. Elliott, former Maywood police officer, was ordered forfeited yesterday by Judge Keetch when Elliott failed to appear for trial on two charges of embezzlement. Elliott was asserted to have appropriated to his own use $25 in bail money entrusted to him by virtue of his position as a police officer of the suburban municipality.

Man in Speedy Marriage Ruse Given Parole

R. Frank Rowland, a barber, whose asserted speedy courtship of a 17-year-old girl resulted in his arrest on a charge of contributing to the delinquency of a minor, was granted probation of one year yesterday by Judge Archbald of Juvenile Court.

Rowland was said to have met the girl in an employment agency and offered her a job as a companion to his wife. When the girl went to his apartment, according to the probation officer's report, Rowland told her his wife was dead and asked her to marry him. The girl left the house, the report stated, and called her mother. The police were informed in the meantime and Rowland was arrested in his apartment.

According to Probation Officer Bartoo, who investigated, Rowland did not attempt to mistreat the girl in any way. Bartoo said Rowland told him the girl had appealed to him for aid as she was homeless.

Wealthy Indian Wife Objects to Mate's Gunplay

Her husband's custom of shooting holes in the floor every time he became intoxicated tended to make their home uninhabitable, Mrs. Ida Nicholson asserted yesterday in a divorce suit filed against Frank Nicholson. Mrs. Nicholson asks $1000 a month alimony, although, according to her attorney, Wilbert C. Hamilton, she is an Osage Indian with an income of thousands monthly from oil royalties.

The couple were married at Newkirk, Okla., October 5, 1910, and separated the 3rd inst. On January 1, according to the complaint, Nicholson varied his habit by shooting at her sister's feet; on the 3rd inst., he did a complete job of perforating the dining-room floor.

Attorney Hamilton said the alimony request was made in order to force a property settlement.

Child Wife is Held Insane in Slaying of Mate

By a "Times" Staff Correspondent

RIVERSIDE, April 7.—Temporary insanity on the part of Mrs. Alice Mabel Smith, 18 years of age, caused her to slay her husband as he lay asleep in bed and then to end her own life, according to the findings of a Coroner's jury at the inquest here today.

A number of witnesses were heard, including Mr. and Mrs. A. W. Smith, parents of the husband, and several neighbors. Mrs. Sadie Jackson, one of the neighbors, stated that she had heard a shot, apparently coming from the Smith home, at about 7:55 p.m. last night.

About ten minutes later, she said, she heard another shot. It is believed by police that the girl-wife waited about ten minutes after killing her husband before ending her own life.

Girl Lacking Easter Dress is Runaway

Lack of a new Easter dress was the tragedy which sent Katherine Smidt, 12 years of age, for whom police are seeking, out into the world to seek her fortune, it was reported yesterday. She ran away from the Palm Hall School for Girls Sunday at noon, carrying a shit case and 55 cents, and has not been heard from since. Her mother, Mrs. Louise Smidt of the Southland Hotel, is said to be ill because of the child's disappearance.

She is described as five feet tall, ninety-six pounds in weight, with straight light bobbed hair and blue eyes. When she left the school she wore a lavender dress, white collar and cuffs, a tan coat, and two-tone low shoes.

WILL PRESENT PAGEANT

An Easter program and pageant will be presented at the First Methodist Church, Eighth and Hope streets Wednesday night. The pageant, "The Dawning," will be presented under the direction of Mrs. Harold V. Mather, with about eighty characters attired in oriental costume participating.

CROSS PURPOSES

The puzzle fans have their faces all set for the hot-cross bun. It is easily worked.

CAN YOU BEAT IT

These are the days in which the wife hands husband the swatter, shows him the parlor rug and tells him to go beat it.

AN INDORE SPORT

The gossip about the Maharajah of Indore and the beautiful nautch girl would indicate that His Highness has given some enthusiasm to the cultivation of Indore sports—the pursuit of beauty leading all the rest.

POLITICAL GOSSIPS

Political writers are already disputing as to whether Calvin Coolidge will be again a candidate for the Presidency. This may be important and interesting, but it is hardly worth worrying about at this stage of the game.

CHASING RAINBOWS

There is evidence that out Idaho way the Progressives are shuffling the cards with the idea of pressing Bill Borah as the candidate of their group for the Presidency. They expect to make their fight within the party and will avoid the La Follette method. But what will they do with the La Follies? What kind of a dicker can they make and who will set the terms?

THE SILENT SINGER

The death of Jean De Reszke revives memories in the minds of old-timers of a voice that was as rich and well-beloved as that of the more recent Caruso. The De Reszke brothers in their day were the golden exponents of grand opera and commanded the hearty admiration of the musical world. Since the dawn of time few tenor voices have surpassed the silken sweetness of Jean De Reszke's tones.

WORLD HEALERS

The League of Nations is going to publish and broadcast a world health service from its Geneva capital. In this the Rockefeller Foundation and other American agencies of scientific philanthropy will participate—thus forming another of our contacts with the big League. When there is an epidemic the League will assemble all the information possible and marshal the forces best able to cope with it. This is another way of spreading the gospel of peace.

NO SCANDAL ALLOWED

North Carolina does not purpose to be involved in any barbed-wire entanglements over the principles of evolution. A distinguished German scientist and explorer was to deliver a series of lectures upon the intelligence of anthropoid apes, but the university that had made the contract for the professor's appearance now announces a cancellation of the same. Like the dwellers in sunny Tennessee, the citizens of the Carolinas are quick to refute any imputation that there is a tang of orang-outang in the family veins.

THE MONEY MAKERS

A writer calls attention to the theory of a German scientist concerning bees. It is the contention of the Prussian savant that our honey-makers have become specialists. They are on diet. A bee that is started on orange blossoms will fill its face with nothing else. A primrose bee will be a primrose bee all its days. If a worker begins his career by inhaling violets he is supposed to be a violet addict for the rest of his active life. If some rustic toiler takes his initial browse on a red clover bloom he dwells in clover to the end. This, however, is the German theory and may work with German bees. California bees are more elastic in their menu. They are frequently caught flitting from flower to flower after the manner of a first-rate philanderer. In some of our mixed gardens they sample everything.

THE BIG DOINGS

The Golden State was officially admitted into the Union on September 9, 1850. The seventy-fifth anniversary of that historic incident might well be marked by something more than a passing nod. States were not so plentiful in the days when California was young. Florida, Texas, Iowa and Wisconsin came into Uncle Sam's official family during the '40's, but after California had been welcomed there were no callers until Minnesota brushed in in 1858. When California was accepted the Territory was already famous as the land of gold. Today the gold is but an incident. There is more wealth in the glowing products of the orange groves than in the yellow output of the mines. But no section of the world ever made so rich and substantial progress in wealth, industry, science and the arts as has been indicated in the story of California in its seventy-five years under the Star Spangled Banner. Some observance of its diamond jubilee would be fit and proper.

THE REAL RASPUTIN

Publication in Europe of the private letters exchanged between the late Czar Nicholas and his imperial spouse between the years 1914 and 1917 disclose the intimate, mystic influence exercised over the Empress by the Russian Rasputin. In nearly every communication from the Empress he is either named or reference made to him. Now that the immediate passions of the war period are allayed it is possible to get a clearer view of this remarkable personage whose death preceded so closely the fall of the Russian Empire.

Contrary to common report, Rasputin was not a "monk." He never wore clerical garb and did not pretend to be connected with any religious sect. He was a peasant who rose to power and influence by degrees. Many intellectual Russians who were members or frequenters of the Russian court during the ten years preceding the fall of the empire regard him as a Russian patriot, as one actuated by a desire to protect and preserve the fatherland, to prevent the Czar from making entangling alliances with western powers, already decrepit, that would drag Russia into the abyss.

Rasputin was opposed to the Triple Entente. He declaimed and wrote against an alliance that he regarded as contrary alike to the interests and security of Russia. If alliances were necessary to prevent the isolation of Russia, he held that they should be made with Russia's immediate neighbors, not against them. He favored a rapprochement with the Central Powers.

Nothing has ever been adduced to show that he was in the secret pay, however, of these powers. He always lived modestly and unostentatiously. He occupied but a single apartment, which was furnished with almost Spartan simplicity. A Slav, with perhaps some Tartar blood, he possessed all the mysticism and the superstition of his race.

Inexplicable to the western mind is the mystic influence which he exercised over the Empress, who, as a Princess of Hess, had no strain of Slav mysticism in her blood. The Czar never came under Rasputin's influence; and for this there is an apparent reason. His ministers resented the growing influence of this commoner. And it was but natural that the English and French embassies should use all the devious methods of the old diplomacy to counteract an influence that was hostile to the Triple Entente.

Rasputin was not scrupulous. The most charitable construction to be placed on his conduct is that he believed the end justified the means. He used mummery to convince the Czarina that he possessed supernatural powers. He was not honest with his protector. He desired to keep his country out of western entanglements, by fair means or foul. He was a fanatic and was gifted with the fiery oratory of fanaticism.

Appalled by the epochal collapse of the Russian Empire and the misery into which her people have been dragged by the stupid and unscrupulous Bolshevists, Russians in exile are beginning to recall and repeat the admonitions and warnings of Rasputin. They say that all which he foretold concerning the disaster which would come to Russia if she persisted in following supinely the policies of the western nations has come to pass; and they repeat the age-old fallacy that because something happens after something else it happens because of it. Russia followed the lead of the western powers and fell; therefore, if she had not followed that policy, the Czar would still be on the throne and the Russian intelligentsia would not be scattered or dead.

One cannot dispose of that fallacy by a simple denial; for no one can prove what would have been the destiny of Russia if she had cast her lot with Germany and Austria, as Bismarck so devoutly desired.

But this much is certain: the Russian Empire was rotten to the core in 1914. The hour of her doom had struck. It was permitted to her ruler to choose the means of destruction, but not to evade it. Russia was tottering to a fall and no outside influence could have saved her.

The imperial pilot evaded the reef Scylla, only to be overwhelmed in the whirlpool of Charybdis. The timbers of the vessel were too rotten to resist the buffeting of the angry tides.

MUSHET FOR CONTROLLER

The new city charter has created the position of Controller, who, as planned by the charter framers, is to be more than a City Auditor. He is to be watch dog of the city treasury, right-hand man of the Mayor, Director of the Budget, City Council, commissioners and heads of departments, all to the end that the public revenues shall be efficiently and economically handled and conserved.

As the income of the city government is now in excess of $20,000,000 annually, the position of Controller is a most important one. It should be filled by a man who is a certified public accountant, who has served successfully as City Auditor and as chairman of the City Council's Finance Committee. Of the three candidates at the May 5 primaries for this position Councilman W. C. Mushet alone meets these requirements. John S. Myers has made a fairly able City Auditor and, were he seeking re-election this year for an eighth term, The Times might again recommend his selection. Such is not the case.

A Controller is being elected this year to take charge of the city's financial accounts for four years, beginning on July 1, when the new charter becomes effective. If the new charter is to be the success hoped for it the new positions created by that charter must be occupied by the most competent men that can be found in Los Angeles. For Controller, Councilman Mushet alone of the candidates is big enough, courageous enough and equipped in training, experience and fearlessness to fill the office. For courage will be required in the Controller—courage to cry "Halt!" when raids on the people's money are attempted.

The people of Los Angeles should not forget that it was Councilman Mushet who, single-handed in the City Council, fought the secret discount sale of the $13,500,000 municipal bonds and his fight, when carried to the California Supreme Court, resulted in complete victory. The bonds were sold at open public sale, brought par and a premium and the Power Bureau and the taxpayers were enriched $2,500,000. There have been no more secret sales of municipal bonds by the Council.

It was Councilman Mushet who brought about the repeal of the unjust occupational business license tax, which was a burden on the business and professional men and women of Los Angeles. This tax was repealed, and yet so economically did Mr. Mushet handle the city's revenues that there was money enough, during the four years he has been the chairman of the Council's Finance Committee, to increase the police department from 800 men in 1921 to over 2000 men today. And they were needed.

Mr. Mushet's successful administration of the office of City Auditor is well known He will bring to the office of Controller an experience and training possessed by no other man in Los Angeles and he has at all times shown his ceaseless vigilance for the welfare of the people of Los Angeles and the protection of the millions they pay for the support of their city government.

ON REDUCING

The fat folks are trying to get thin and the thin folks are striving for portliness. Nobody seems to be perfectly satisfied with his state. However, one does not hear as much from the thin division of the population as from the thick. The rotund are making most of the noise at this writing.

They do not eat beef and potatoes; they eat calories. They never butcher an egg; they slay a hundred calories. A piece of pie has no existence with them—not even home-made pie—just calories.

It is a fearful age in which we live. All the joy is being taken out of life. You never sit down and enjoy a meal any more, you calculate the calories.

Oh, for the good old days when you could eat with your friends and impunity and enjoy both and a stomachache! Meditate upon a boy with an appetite as large as the State of Texas attacking a few dishes of calories. Can any human's mouth water over calories? Many an old boy is downright glad that he was born in the good old days of fried chicken and mashed potatoes.

If these reduction devotees would only reduce in silence it might add to the general comfort and welfare. But they make it a public matter. They fill the house with it. They fill the papers with it. They stuff the radio with it. They replace the good cheer of the dining-room with it. They discuss it on the street. They reduce in the most unheard-of places. They thrust their statistics upon you without consultation. If you lunch with them you are forced to reduce with them, whether you are in vital need of it or not.

The fat folks once were the life of the party. They dispelled gloom and filled your soul with good humor. If there was no other subject of mirth their very appearance furnished one. Possibly we went too far.

Then they are always weighing themselves. The indicator of the weighing machine is their god. They worship a slight decrease. They go into raptures over the loss of a pound. Even an ounce fires them with enthusiasm.

Why do women insist on reducing more than men?

THE RED PERIL

Efforts to organize groups of the Commune in the ranks of Uncle Sam's Army are the limit of soviet effrontery. If soldiers can be led to take orders from Moscow rather than Washington a few deportations would seem to be in order. Those who admire the soviet program should be consistent and live in Russia.

AERIAL TRAFFIC

If Henry Ford is going into quantity production of his air models and expects to fleck the heavens with his tin sky larks another generation of men will be sandpapering the edges of the clouds in order to get them by.

Just About It
by James J. Montague

THE REST CURE

When my nerves gave away with a snap,
And I lost all my pep and my zest,
An eminent specialist chap
Informed me I needed a rest.
"Get away from all business and worry," said he,
With a chilly professional smile,
"Go down to some desolate spot by the sea
Or out to the country a while."

So I went to a lonely and drear
And sand-bordered place by the shore,
With nothing whatever to hear
But the ocean's monotonous roar,
And nothing to see but a far-stretching beach,
Till one day, in a fit of alarm,
I uttered a piercing and terrified screech —
And fled to a countryside farm.

On the farm I regarded the cows
Incessantly switching their tails,
And meanwhile remaining to browse
On the grass on the hillsides and vales;
And when I'd attentively watched them a week,
I arose with my nerves all a-throb,
Emitted a horrible blood-curdling shriek
And took myself back to my job.

In a month I was peaceful and soothed,
No more was I worried and fussed,
The knots in my nerves had been smoothed—
And I slept the sweet sleep of the just.
Now life seems no trouble at all to endure,
Once more at my cares I can smile,
But I'm sure I'd have had a far speedier cure
If I'd stuck to my job all the while.

VALUE OF ECLIPSES

As a spectacular event the eclipse of January 24 was the finest ever observed, but no discovery has as yet been reported which compares in importance with the discovery made by Sir Norman Lockyer during the eclipse of 1868. In the spectrum of the sun's corona he distinguished lines which could have come from no known element. In other words, he discovered an element—a basic form of matter—in the sun, which had never been found on the earth, and he named the sun element helium. Twenty-seven years later, in 1895, Sir William Ramsey discovered the same element in the earth. It sounds like a scientific detective story.

Helium proved to be, next to hydrogen, the lightest form of matter. It refuses to combine with anything and, therefore, cannot be burned. That is why it is used in balloons and dirigibles. During the war certain Texas gas wells were found rich in helium, cheaply obtainable in sufficient quantities. Government plants were established and advertised as "argon factories" to fool the Germans. When the armistice was signed a consignment of 150,000 cubic feet was on the docks in New York, waiting to be sent to France for use in war balloons. If anything can make airships commercially practical it is helium—a gas discovered during an eclipse of the sun.

MOTHER

Of old, when the high priest entered
The sacred place alone,
Where the glory of God and His brightness
About the altar shone;
On His forehead was holiness written
That Israel might see,
But to the eyes of the priest himself
Invisible to be.

So on my dear mother's forehead
Have many years of grace
Written their message of holiness
Above her lovely face,
While clearly plain to all the world
Does her gentle goodness show,
In lowliest humanity
She only does not know.

Good Head for Business

"A farmer in Missouri," says the LeRoy Reporter, "heard the grand jury was about to indict him for working on Sunday. Instead of attempting to evade the charge he had his four sons summoned as witnesses against him. He was fined $1 and costs, a total of $5, but as the mileage and witness fees of his sons amounted to $10.40 the family cleared $5.40 on the transaction."

RESURRECTION TIME

BY THE FOOTHILL PHILOSOPHER

From various sections of Southern California already [illegible] to come announcements of Easter sunrise services to be [illegible] churches of many demoninations, with elaborate musical [illegible] inspiring sermons which will be heard by thousands of worshipers. Easter sunrise service practically had its beginning in this [illegible] land and has come to be world-renowned as an institution of [illegible] land.

It is good to know that the facts of resurrection and of redemption are not dependent upon the conclusions of philosophic speculators, nor the findings of scientists nor the outcome of the battle between fundamentalists and modernists. On the other hand, the truth of every spiritual law and spiritual doctrine is amply demonstrated on every plane of life, including the realms of nature and human society.

Springtime is resurrection time, redemption time. In the world of nature the sap rises in the trees, green leaves gather on the limbs, buds burst open and blossoms appear. The warm, bright sun, symbol of "the dayspring from on high," sends his angels of light to whisper to the wild flowers of hill and valley, "Awake and sing, ye that dwell in the dust!" Up from the bulb, the seed and the tiny plant spring the "hopeful green stuff," each plant and flower expressing its own peculiar beauty, each in its own form, each bringing with it all the vitality that lay dormant in its dead self, yet adding light, heat, moisture, soil and air to itself in order to express completeness. Forces and substances unseen or apparently repulsive to sight are redeemed to forms of beauty and of power.

Springtime is resurrection time. The insect world is humming hymns of praise, larks and mocking birds serenade the dawn from orange trees and dew-drenched clover fields, the fish leap for joy in the mountain streams and the wild things of forest and hill forget they have a human foe. The hibernating animals emerge from their winter homes, cold-blooded creatures revive, everything "rises from the dead."

Springtime is resurrection time, redemption time. The heart of man becomes more generous, the unsocial man becomes kind, the business world pauses for rest and recreation. New ideas come to the thinker, new ideals to the faithful, and from the chrysalis of prosaic thought springs the butterfly of fancy. The youth dreams of and seeks that other half of himself which God has fashioned for his finding, while the maiden looks for him who shall bring her the fulfillment of her dreams, giving to her the consciousness of her union with all good and making it possible for her to reach out her hand and welcome to a new and blessed experience another soul which needs her mothering.

However, it is, perhaps, in the realm of human society that the facts of resurrection and redemption are best exemplified. To describe fully the various methods in which these miracles are accomplished would require volumes. Let one example suffice. Down on Los Angeles street is a little mission in charge of "Brother" Tom Liddecoat, who for many years—winter, spring and summer—has been administering to the physical, mental and spiritual welfare of men. Giving these "human derelicts" food, a place to sleep, a hearty handshake and the gospel of a redeeming Lord, Tom Liddecoat has succeeded in redeeming thousands of men from lives of darkness and crime to days of joy and usefulness, sending hundreds back to the homes they had deserted, giving them back to society, healed in body, mind and spirit. If this is not "resurrection from the dead," if this is not redemption, by what name shall Tom Liddecoat's work be called?

UNREST AND THE VICAR

BY ALMA WHITAKER

A charming, mild and gentlemanly English vicar sojourned in our midst for a few days last week—on his way home from a tour around the world.

And in an interview he deplored our "modern, feverish unrest" which he found in every avenue of activity.

Particularly was he shocked at the modern craving for change, for pleasure, for entertainment. . . .

Oh, it was a most sane, conservative, reasonable discourse. One can imagine that, if given from his pulpit back in his English county town, it would have discouraged many restless souls from—well, taking a jolly tour around the world, for one thing.

Because, you see, that English vicar must have been a bit restless, too. He must have yearned for a change, pleasure, entertainment, unless, of course, that trip around the world was thrust upon him and he couldn't help himself!

GOOD SPRINGS

We can buy rubber heels to absorb the shocks of our physical journey through life.

But it is the shocks to our confidence, our hopes and ambitions, our faith—our very spirits—that make life's road so rough.

How we stand these shocks depends upon our springs—our spirit springs. If there isn't much "give" to them, and we take our little daily troubles and our larger griefs and disappointments and disillusionments too hard, we are in for a mighty rough ride, for the road is certain to be full of these bumps.

But if we learn to silence the squeaks of complaint, to snub the bumps of bitterness and disappointment, to keep our springs tightened up with good common sense and well lubricated with heart smiles we'll have a pretty comfortable trip through life.

And what's more, we'll have our choice of traveling companions, for people like to ride with folks who have good springs!—[Business Chemistry.

AWARDS $1 IN $20,000 SUIT

Judge Says Acts of Tots no Ground for Calling Father a Thief

Apparent predatory instincts in three children 6 years and under, are not sufficient justification for calling their father a thief, Judge Doran ruled yesterday in awarding $1 damages in the slander suit of C. A. Hunt against Mrs. Alice J. Buck. Hunt had asked for $20,000.

Mrs. Buck declared on the stand she had based her assertion on the taking from a neighbor by one Hunt child, 5 years of age, of a pocketful of eggs and prunes; of the action of a 6-year-old Hunt in taking a lock from a mail box and using it on his dog collar, and on the exploit of a Hunt of 3, in taking a neighbor's watch to play with. When the judgment was awarded counsel for Mrs. Buck, said:

"By a fortunate coincidence your honor, we have a dollar."

UNITARIANS OF SOUTH IN CONFERENCE

Local Pastor Welcomes Delegates; Luncheons and Trips Planned Today

With more than 200 ministerial and lay delegates attending, the southern section of the Pacific Coast Conference of Unitarian Churches opened last night at the First Unitarian Church with an address of welcome by Rev. E. R. Backus, the pastor. Other speakers were William L. Barnard of Boston, vice-president of the Unitarian Laymen's League, who spoke on "Spiritual Navigation," and C. A. Dykstra, secretary of the Los Angeles City Club, whose subject was "Can Democracy Endure?"

Today's program will begin with a business session at 9:30 a.m., followed by an address by Rev. T. C. Abel, pastor of the Hollywood Unitarian Church, and Dr. Edson Reifsnider of Long Beach. At 12:30 p.m. today the Associate Alliance of Southern California will attend a luncheon at the parish diningroom, while the men's luncheon will be given at the same hour at the City Club.

"See Los Angeles before listening to knockers," is the slogan of local Unitarians, who will be hosts to visitors from various parts of the State and from the East on the automobile party throughout the city and vicinity this afternoon.

The meeting this evening at the First Unitarian Church will be in celebration of the 100th anniversary of the American Unitarian Association. Among the speakers will be Rabbi E. F. Magnin of Temple B'nai B'rith, Rev. Lawrence Derfern of Liverpool, Eng., and Prof. A. W. Slaten, president of the conference. The public is invited.

Hospital Need is Told to Wiggins Project Backers

Even when hospitals projected are completed, Los Angeles will be far behind in facilities for the care of sick and injured, declared Dr. E. H. Anthony in a report yesterday to sponsors of the new Frank Wiggins Memorial Hospital. He is vice-president of the new institution.

With the present population of more than 1,000,000 the needs are 5000 beds, he said, whereas there are only 1000 beds now available, including the General Hospital where an average of twenty-seven patients are turned away daily. New institutions proposed or under way, he said, will provide for less than half the number for a city of 1,000,000.

"Local Laughs" Prize Coupon

Saves Cost Of Buying New Curtains

When a master cleaner gives you his figure on cleaning curtains and drapes, balance that cost against the cost of new ones.

"When the sharp-edged grit settles in the arms and back of the furniture, the friction of constant wear rubs it threadbare at those points," according to Helen E. Walton, western textile expert.

Society Girl's Troth is Quiet Affair

Mrs. Godfrey Arthur Fisher

THE marriage of Miss Geraldine Hope Mortimer, daughter of the late C. White Mortimer, and Mrs. Mortimer of South Grand avenue, to Godfrey Arthur Fisher, British Consul was one of the events of March 21, taking place in St. John's Church at 11 o'clock. The wedding was a quiet affair with only immediate relatives and a few close friends attending.

Apache Number Scores Hit for Child Dancers

The staggering wicked Apache dance of the Paris underworld brought blushes to the faces of Greek maids and Satyrs on the ceiling of the Biltmore ballroom and prolonged cheers from 300 members of the Advertising Club when that masterpiece of terpischorean madness was performed yesterday by Vyola Von, 8 years of age, and Lilian Crowl, 11.

The entire program, which was broadcast over KHJ, was put on by Uncle John Daggett and his talented Radio Kiddies, including Dickie Brandon, Richard Headrick, Muriel MacCormack, Dick Winslow, Queen Titania, Mickie McBan, Joyce Coad, Henrietta Poland, Billie Lord, Philippe De Lacy, Jane Hughes, Vondelle Darr, Leonard Tanner and Rosalie Tuso. Music was furnished by Major's Forum Roof Ballroom Orchestra.

The ballroom was beautifully decorated for the occasion and nearly every member of the club entertained a child guest. Irving R. Smith, vice-president of the club, presided. Features of the program were an address by Dr. J. Whitcomb Brougher and the reading of a poem, written in honor of the children, by H. B. Press.

Don Thomas, secretary of the club, announced that the chairman of next Tuesday's meeting would be Lloyd Staggers and that the speaker will be Ralph G. Hamer, whose subject will be "How Window Displays Increase the Value of Advertising."

Wife of Acord Sues to Cancel Separation Pact

Declaring Arthur W. Acord, motion-picture actor, got her to sign a separation agreement under a threat that he would "lie in the gutter before he would support any woman," Mrs. Edna Mae Acord yesterday filed an affidavit in Judge Craig's court asking that the agreement be set aside and that Acord be compelled to pay her alimony of $150 a week. Judge Craig issued an order for Acord to show cause why the relief asked in the affidavit should not be granted. The order was made returnable before Judge Gates the 21st inst. Mrs. Acord now has pending in Superior Court a suit for divorce against Acord in which she charged the actor with cruelty and named Louise Lorraine, an actress, as the "other woman."

ANSWERS TO CORRESPONDENTS

FOOTBALL ASPIRANTS

"Dear Doctor: I have five little boy friends whose greatest ambitions are to be players on the high-school football team, but who are so much underweight and undersized that there isn't a ghost of a chance of realizing those ambitions unless they can improve.

"They have asked me to write and ask you for a list of 'eats' that will help them to grow faster. They say that you know what people should eat to get thin, so you surely will know what is good to make small boys grow.

"If you can help them out you will surely gain their undying gratitude.—Miss P."

Dear Boys: Yes, you bet! I do know just what's good to make small boys grow, and small girls, too.

First thing is to have your mother or guardian take you to a physician and give you a good examination to be sure that you haven't some trouble that is keeping you underweight and undersized. For instance, if you have bad teeth or bad tonsils and adenoids, they would have to be attended to, wouldn't they?

Second, you have to eat a lot of the growth foods. Do you know what they are? You know how fast a little calf grows and what its food is? Of course, I'm not saying you are little calves; no, dear, no; but the same food that is good for them is good for you, and you should have a lot of it. At least four glasses a day, or perhaps more; but you must not take so much that it doesn't leave room for lots of other good things—for instance, a good big dish of oatmeal (have your mother cook it with milk instead of water) with some cream on it, with your breakfasts; lots of whole-wheat bread and butter, one or two eggs a day, some nuts and a small piece of meat and fish if you like these.

Then the vegetables and fruits. Do you like spinach? If you don't you'll learn to, won't you, when I tell you that it has a lot of the footballer's makings? There are a lot of other greens you can have, too—beet tops, lettuce and cabbage. Cabbage, especially raw cabbage with cream dressing—Ummmm!

You like fruit, I know. You should have the amount of a whole cupful every day. It is good to have a piece of fruit after your meals, because it helps to clean the teeth.

You want to gain, so you won't eat any candy or other sweets at all between meals, because they will stuff your appetite so that you won't want your growth foods. That's bad business. But I won't be too stingy—you can have some candy for your dessert if you want too. I'll tell you what you can have between meals—a glass of milk or orange juice or some other fruit.

Have lots of water between meals, too. You may have a little at meals, but not much. Don't use it to wash your food down. You have to chew your food thoroughly to exercise your teeth. You may have to grit 'em when you play football.

Now, about your sleep. You should be in bed by 8:30 or 9 o'clock, boys, every night, because you have to have loads of sleep. No movies for you in the evenings if you are going to do any moving in a football game! If you are very much underweight you had better have a rest period in the afternoon for an hour. Don't tire yourselves too much, because that takes away your appetite.

You have a good soap and hot-water scrub all over every day, don't you? That keeps your skin in fine condition and makes you feel dandy. You can rinse off in cold water if you feel good afterward.

Do write me, boys, and let me know how much you gain?

Tomorrow: Answers to correspondents.

Mr Dear Followers: When sending for material which we offer you, please remember to inclose a stamped, self-addressed envelope bearing your full name and address. The pamphlet on reducing and gaining is the only one for which you must inclose 10 cents in stamps extra. Address your letters to me in care of this paper. Make them as brief as possible. Not over 200 words, and type or write them legibly with ink. Please sign your name as evidence of good faith—we will not use it in any way. Remember it is impossible for me to diagnose for you or to answer you personally. I appreciate very much the beautiful letters you send me and regret it is impossible to give you individual advice. The questions you ask will be answered in the column as soon as possible, if they are of general interest. Don't forget the stamped, self-addressed envelope if you expect me to send you the information I have offered.

GIRL DONS BOY TOGS, RUNS AWAY

Dislikes Idea of Being Toe Dancer; May Become Juvenile Court Ward

June Norris, 16 years of age, did not care for toe dancing, so she told juvenile officials, and to escape a terpsichorean career she ran away from home, cropped her hair close to her head, donned trousers and decided to go through life as a carefree boy.

A petition asking that the girl be declared a ward of the Juvenile Court was filed yesterday with Judge Archbald following her arrest Monday by Motorcycle Officer Leonard, who said he saw her on the street and suspected she was a girl.

The girl told officers, according to the latter, that her mother, Mrs. Gertrude Norris of 4213 Sunset Drive, wanted her to become a toe dancer, and she left home because of her antipathy of such a career.

The petition asked that she be declared a ward of the court on the ground she had been disobedient and was in need of special supervision.

According to juvenile authorities the girl had been living as a boy for more than a week at 2104½ North Broadway.

Film Executive Goes to Arrange for Convention

Herman Wobber, Pacific Coast district manager for Famous Players-Lasky Corporation, departed yesterday for New York City to make final arrangements for the international convention of Paramount's department of distribution to be held in Los Angeles the last of this month.

Prior to his departure Mr. Wobber presided at a number of conferences in Los Angeles assigning various distribution department executives to important duties in connection with the five days' convention. More than 200 delegates will be in attendance.

WOMEN'S WORK, WOMEN'S CLUBS

BY MYRA NYE

Petitions Filed

Friday is the last day that petitions may be filed for offices in the Friday Morning Club. Yesterday the last one to file was Mrs. Charles G. Stivers, competing with Mrs. H. H. Coon for the second vice-presidency. Others are: Mrs. O. P. Clark for president; Mrs. Charles F. Turner, now president of the Women's University Club, first vice-president; Mrs. W. W. Slayden and Mrs. William Kirtley Chambers for recording secretary; Mrs. Charles S. Burnell and Mrs. Carrie S. Green, treasurer. Election will take place the first Friday in June. In the absence of Mrs. John Newton Russell, Jr., who is traveling in Europe, the board of directors has appointed Mrs. Christine H. Hartke to serve in her place as chairman of hospitality.

The pride of the club in its beautiful clubhouse is justified by the recent award of honor from the American Institute of Architects as recognition of merit in design, execution of work in architecture and fine arts, and in appreciation of the sympathetic collaboration of the club through its directors, at the time of building, with the architect and builder.

The memorial redwood tree purchased by the Friday Morning Club has been christened "Caroline L. Osgood," in honor of the president emeritus. At a luncheon given on Wednesday a week ago by Mrs. Osgood, under the famous wisteria vine in Sierra Madre, for past presidents and the board of directors of the club, Mrs. Kreider, in the name of the club, presented Mrs. Osgood with this most appropriate memorial, saying, in part, "This living monument to the eternal and immortal we dedicate to you, our dear friend and president emeritus, as some acknowledgement of your value to us and humanity. To you, who have stood for the meaning, spirit and tradition of the Friday Morning Club, since its earliest beginning, and whose personality has the same ageless and timeless quality represented by this mighty redwood."

Besides Mrs. Kreider, there were present six past presidents of the club: Mrs. Joseph Sartori, Mrs. E. K. Foster, Mrs. O. P. Clark, Mrs. Martha Nelson McCan, Mrs. Russell Judson Watters and Mrs. Andrew Stewart Lobinger.

One of the largest luncheons of the year is planned for the Wednesday matinee of the Friday Morning Club today. Lillian Bell, well-known author and lecturer, and Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Swickard, film stars, will be honor guests and speakers.

Mrs. Jack Smith will conduct a studio tour on Thursday, visiting the studios of Roscoe Shrader and John Rich, in the Hollywood hills.

The French Reading Circle will meet in Studio C on Wednesday, at 2 p.m., and M. Maurice Cohn will read a play, "L'Amour," by Henry Kistemaeckers. Mr. Cohn is a young Parisian actor, now in Hollywood, who played a character part in "The Lady."

"What Shall We Make Our City," will be discussed by two speakers on Friday morning — David R. Faires, vice-chairman and council for the Major Highway Commission, will talk on "Building Streets for Public Safety," and J. B. Lippincott will give a comparison between European and American cities. This program is being presented by Mrs. Martha Nelson McCann. The luncheon speakers will be: Mrs. Dreyfus-Barney, Mrs. Sigismund Pallus and Mr. Harry Barnhart.

Woman's University Club

Jenabee Fazen, a native of Persia, who calls is Iran, the birthplace of the Aryan race, was the speaker at the last session of the Woman's University Club. He speaks also tomorrow night at a Persian dinner in Hollywood.

Formerly a member of the faculty of the University of Teheran, Mr. Fazel is an enthusiast in regard to the Bahia, or peace movement. It is, however, he says, in neither of these capacities, but simply as a lecturer, that he is appearing in this country. But whatever the topic announced, it is safe to predict that he will embody in every lecture a hopeful note of universal peace. "International," "interracial" and "interreligious" are the words oftenest on his lips.

In explaining Zoroastrianism, he said that his people did not worship the sun as is usually supposed. "The sun is a symbol of the invisible light" he said. "If you saw an occidental kissing a golden cross that would not mean that he worships gold."

The day was further made memorable for the club by the presence of two visitors of position and influence: Dr. Edna Carter, head of the physics department of Vassar College and Mrs. Jessie Eldridge Southwick of the Emerson School of Oratory, Boston. Peggy Warren, whistler, gave as a special number, "Waiting for Sunrise" by Fannie Dillon.

East Whittier Club

Mrs. A. S. C. Forbes, president of the California History and Landmarks Club of Los Angeles, is to give an address before the East Whittier Woman's Improvement Club today, amid a setting redolent of the days of romance, the girl California days at the home of the last Mexican Governor of the State, Don Pio Pico.

It will be recalled that for a number of years this historic home, now within the city limits of Whittier, was the property of Whittier, but was later deeded to the State, and has become one of the points of interest to the tourist and the historian.

Mrs. Forbes will tell of the early history of the mansion, a spacious adobe, now fallen mostly into disuse, but with enough of the first structure intact to form the nucleus of historic interest.

The East Whittier Club has extended an invitation to sister clubs, Whittier, Rivera, La Habra and Pio Pico, and the public in general, to attend this open meeting. The ladies will each take a box lunch and the entertaining club will serve hot coffee, chocolate and tea. The address will follow the al fresco luncheon, which is to be served in the spacious patio of the old mansion.

Philanthropy-Civics Club

Members of the Philanthropy and Civics Club are anticipating with pleasure the program arranged by the president for tomorrow. Dr. Rufus Von Kleinsmid, who was to have been the speaker of the afternoon, has been called to San Francisco and Mrs. Lillian B. Goldsmith has arranged for a preview of a photoplay, never before shown in Los Angeles, "The Thoroughbred," starring Macklin Arbuckle. Because of this unusual program, many presidents and officers of clubs in the vicinity will be guests of the Philanthropy and Civics Club.

The physical culture class will meet promptly at 10 o'clock in the ballroom. Mrs. W. W. Glimm, the instructor, has consented to allow women who are not members of the club to join the class, provided they pay a very nominal fee. At 11 o'clock Mrs. Goldsmith will interpret Herman Sudermann's brilliant play, "The Far Away Princess," to the members of the literary section. Because of the unusual event scheduled for the afternoon, members are requested to reserve their luncheon tickets early.

COUNCIL TO ADD TO STAFF

Because after July 1 there will be fifteen Councilmen instead of the present number of nine, each with business to transact, the Council yesterday voted to employ two additional stenographers. The work is at present handled by two stenographers.

WASTE

We have heard of men who married fairies and put them to washtubs. And of the man who bought a race-horse and put it to the plow.

This is the story of a woman who married an artist and turned him into a janitor.

She was a widow of property, including a large stylish apartment-house. He was a big, sensitive, rather jolly fellow who was just beginning to gain recognition for his exquisite little sepia drawings.

But it wasn't even necessary to see his work to know that he was an artist. You felt it in your bones, in his appreciation of the work of others, in his imaginative little remarks, his illuminating understanding, his comprehensive sympathy.

She was smart, both sartorially and commercially. Men would marvel at her shrewd business acumen. Even envy it. We never quite knew how it happened, but somehow we just naturally said, "She married him." Not sarcastically, but rather admiring her good taste—to that extent.

That was—oh, ten years ago, perhaps. And now he is just a janitor for that stylish apartment-house. He always looks vaguely troubled, can't quite understand what has happened to him, where things went wrong.

For, after all, it was the artist that attracted her, the artist she admired, the artist's work she used to gush about. I think we rather looked to see her foster that art, encourage him—even ambitiously exploit him.

Or, perhaps he could never have made much money at it—sensitive artists are rarely good business men. But why should that matter—she had more money enough for both.

And that was probable, the arrogance of it. It must have seemed important. So, as her interests grew, she could resist trying to apply it to them.

At first it was just showing tenants the commandeering him to the monthly accounts, it come to running errands, looking repair work, and a crisis, doing little odd the apartments.

JAIL TERM IS HANDED RED KIRBY

David (Red) Kirby, whose caveman exploits both on and off the screen have made him a familiar figure both to the public and police, drew a ten-day jail term yesterday as an aftermath of his latest set-to with his wife Monday night.

Justice Marchetti imposed sentence on the motion-picture heavy as his wife, Hallie Kirby, began a move to have her husband declared insane and as Sheriff Traeger began an investigation into charges that the screen villain had been brutally beaten by a deputy after his arrest.

It was a sadly battered and profusely battle-scarred Kirby who appeared for trial before Justice Marchetti yesterday afternoon. But he was still pugnacious and, motioning aside all aid, took charge of his own case and acted as his own attorney.

Mrs. Kirby was the principal witness. She stated that her actor-husband, since he had forced her into a reconciliation by kidnaping her while she was on the way to prosecute her divorce suit, had been little, if at all, better behaved than before. They had been having trouble for the past week over a dog he had brought home, she said.

He became abusive Monday night and threatened her, she said. Fearing violence, she fled to her car and drove away, but he leaped upon the running board and forced her to halt. In the ensuing melee, she said, he struck her repeatedly and felled her. She exhibited an eye almost closed to back up her testimony.

Kirby cross-questioned his wife but she denied all his imputations. Justice Marchetti finally halted proceedings and subjected Kirby to a harsh verbal lashing. Then he imposed sentence of 180 days in jail, but later suspended 170 days of the sentence on condition that Kirby keep the peace.

Shortly thereafter Mrs. Kirby appeared at the office of Dep. Dist.-Atty. Joos and asked that a complaint charging her husband with insanity be issued. She stated that she feared he would resort to violence against her and her daughter, Queenie Chamberlin, motion-picture actress, after his release from jail. She was instructed to return within a week when action on her request will be taken, it was stated.

In the meantime Sheriff Traeger also launched a quiz into charges that the prisoner had been subjected to a severe beating by Deputy Sheriff La Fleur after the arrest and after Kirby's hands had been manacled by handcuffs. Several persons who witnessed the arrest stated that Le Fleur struck Kirby in their presence and Kirby himself stated that the deputy had beaten him while they were on the way to the County Jail.

Arrangements Complete for Contest to be Held at Household Show

With many prizes pledged by local merchants and members of his own organization, Jay E. Dutter, southern representative of the California Dairy Council, who is in charge of the super-mothers' contest to be given at the forthcoming Food and Household Show, yesterday announced that all arrangements had been completed.

JAY E. DUTTER

In addition to other prizes, it was decided by the Dairy council yesterday to offer a silver cup to the first prize winner, acclaimed the most perfect physically and mentally. Prizes will be given at conclusion of the show, which runs in Ambassador Auditorium from Saturday until the 19th inst.

Among the entries is Mrs. Irene B. Klett, 1318 North Wilton Place, who registered as the mother of nine living children and the grandmother of six. Her age was given as past 50. Judges soon will pass on the applicants' registration blanks, which have been filed in Dutter's office, 1028 Pacific Finance Building.

Committee on Contact Named by Press Agents

A new committee, to be known as the Producers' Contact Committee, has been named by the Western Association of Motion-Picture Advertisers, as the press agents' association is called. The committee will confer with the Producers' Association on matters in the motion-picture industry considered of interest to the public.

The contact committee has as its chairman Harry D. Wilson, who was president of the association last year. The associate members are George Thomas of the Pickford-Fairbanks Company, Jeff Lazarus of the Grauman Theaters and Ray Coffin of Famous Players-Lasky. Another new committee is the protective committee, which will aid members in collecting debts due for press service. Members of this committee are Tom Reed, Harold Hurley, Harry Brand, Silas Snyder, Barrett Kelsling and Peter Smith.

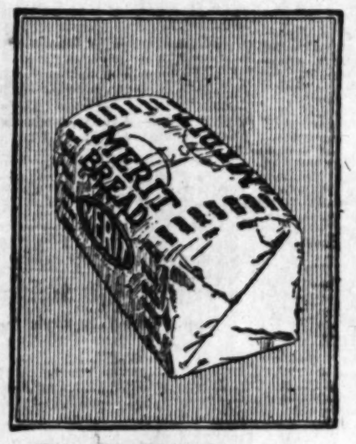
To Best Meet Your Bread Wants



MERIT

THESE three loaves are different in size, shape, quality and price, enabling us to best serve all the people of this great city.

Holsum, the standard size and shape, is the daily choice of 100,000 people. It is a loaf of unsurpassed goodness and genuine milk flavor.

Betsy Ross is the same fine quality as Holsum, but is made in the longer and narrower shape—a loaf preferred by many people.

Merit is a split-top loaf, made of ingredients not so rich as the other two loaves, and it has more of the real natural "wheaty" flavor. The price of Merit is lower than either of the other two brands.

No matter which loaf you select, you are sure to get the maximum of bread quality for the price paid, and uniformly wholesome and nutritious bread.

Your grocer receives these loaves fresh twice daily in order to best serve you.

Court Refuses Lynwood Recall Election Order

Attempts of citizens of Lynwood to secure an order of court to compel trustees of that city to set a date for a special recall election failed yesterday when Presiding Justice Conrey of the Appellate Court denied the petition of Cochran C. Patterson for a writ of mandate.

Refusal to issue the writ was based on the fact that an appeal involving the same question is pending before the Appellate Court.

Lynwood citizens recently secured a writ of mandate in Superior Court on the same issue and from this the trustees appealed.

The proposed election is being sought for the purpose of voting on the proposed recall of Frank M. Dowrey, Charles F. Reed and Lars C. Anderson as trustees of Lynwood.

CHILDREN'S DAY FEATURE OF KHJ

Radio Tots in Program for Advertising Club

Horton and Converse New Patrons of Studio

Several New Artists Are Introduced to Fans

BY CLAIRE MELLONINO

It was spring in all its glory yesterday morning. It was spring in the ballroom of the Biltmore also, and at a round table in the center of the room were seated sixteen children with their beloved Uncle John.

The occasion was children's day at the Los Angeles Advertising Club luncheon featuring the children of KHJ. Among the children present were Billie Lord, Vondelle Dar, Rosalie Tuso, Queen Titania, Jane Hughes, Vyola Von, Lillian Crowl, Joyce Coad, Henrietta Poland, Richard Headrick, Baby Muriel MacCormac, Leonard Tanner and David Durand. Our Dickie Winslow could not be present as he was "on location."

One by one these children of radioland were tossed on the table by Uncle John and recited the poems or told the jokes for which they are famous. Every child wore a costume expressive of its individuality, and over all reigned Queen Titania.

NEW PATRON FOR KHJ

The Advertising Club fathers brought their youngsters, and if they had none of their own they borrowed their next-door neighbor's. Uncle John gave a speech telling radioland that the children's hour at KHJ was the most human and sweetening influence that went forth over the air. The luncheon came to a close with little Sir Richard Headrick offering an impromptu prayer with all the reverent sincerity of a child.

Major and his Forum Roof Ballroom Orchestra interspersed some inspiring dance numbers during the luncheon.

The matinee was presented through the courtesy of the Pacific States Electric Company. Grace Currey, harpiste; Joseph Heindl, 'cellist, and Les Roscoe, pianist, gave an hour of charming music.

The 8 o'clock program brought us a new radio patron. This was Horton & Converse, prescription pharmacists. I wonder how many of my radio family realize what an old-fashioned word "pharmacist" is! In foreign countries and in America to be a pharmacist indicates intelligence of a high order—an intensive knowledge of chemistry, drugs and medicines, which is miles apart from the modern drug store, with its wares ranging from jewelry to Navajo rugs! Horton & Converse have a genuine pharmacy, where drugs may be procured only through a doctor's prescription. This feature, of course, makes Horton & Converse utterly to be depended upon for quality and skill.

MANY NEW FACES

There were many new names on the program last evening. Thad Harvey, tenor; Ruth Bullard, violinist; Cronshaw's Arcade Orchestra; Yvette Mandler, pianiste; Milton Webster Vale, old-time fiddler, accompanied by his daughter, Marguerite Brannon, saxophone; Uncle Remus and Hatch Graham, singer and banjoist, older friends of ours, were also with us.

Thad Harvey's voice was a rare addition. He sang a diversified group of songs ranging from the "Flower Song" from "Carmen" to "The Little Lilac Garden" of Orgood's. He possesses a rich, warm voice, capable of many inflections and moods, and showing the result of very artistic training. Mr. Harvey was accompanied by gifted Ruth Bowes, the wife of Charles Bowes, of whose studio Mr. Harvey is a product.

To add further ingredients to the chemical atmosphere, the well-known firm of E. R. Squibb and Sons sent their representative Burt I. Chose, who revealed a delightful baritone voice in a group of three numbers comprising Huhn's "Invictus," Squire's "In An Old Fashioned Town" and "Requiem," Homer.

Ruth Bullard charmed Radioland with some very exceptional violin playing. Yvette Mandler proved to have a rare talent on the piano.

HATCH RETURNS

Our family delighted last evening in the return of Hatch Graham. Hatch and his little banjo have been on a trip to the East, where he has been spreading the glory of Los Angeles.

Maggie O'Shea of KHJ, with her infectious Irish laughter, Milton Vale's fiddle, which told us of old time husking bees, and Marguerite Bannen, whose handicap of blindness has meant only greater spiritual vision for her instrument, combined to round out an unusual program.

The Children's Hour brought us Louis F. Klein, faithful attendant of Queen Titania and her Sandman, on his magic harmonica and autoharp. Charles Leslie Hill, 4 years of age, did another memory stunt, and Floryane Thompson, soprano, accompanied by Grace Eaton Dow, added her lovely voice to the Bedtime Hour.

From 7:30 to 8:00 Rabbi Dr. Mayer Winkler of the Sinai Congregation gave a Passover sermon.

WIFE SAYS SHE PLAYS SECOND FIDDLE TO DOG

Mrs. Laura H. Leyh played second fiddle to the dog in the home of Robert Luke Leyh, she declared in a suit for divorce, filed yesterday. Leyh knew she didn't like dogs, but nevertheless he introduced one into their home, upon which he deliberately lavished marked attentions, she complained.

Mission Play's Cast to Present Easter Masque

"The First Easter," a masque written by John Steven McGroarty, will be presented in the gardens of the Hotel Huntington, Pasadena, for the fourth consecutive time Easter morning by the actors in the Mission Play. The action of the masque has its setting in the year 1769, when the Franciscan mission fathers came to California, and the celebration of the first Easter in the State is portrayed.

The program will start promptly at 8:45 a.m. with a choral from Bach. The singing of Easter hymns by the assemblage will follow under the leadership of Harry Barnhart and his orchestra. The cast of actors will include William Ellington, John Bergman, Theodore J. Vegar, Miguel Queroz and more than 100 others in the parts of Indians, Spanish soldiers, muleteers and choristers.

'Better to Walk Free Than Ride to Jail'---Judge

"A man would better walk free than ride to jail in an automobile," Judge Summerfield reminded James G. Parrott, film actor, who was before him yesterday on the complaint of his wife, Clara Parrott, that he was in arrears as to alimony due her pending trial of his suit for divorce.

"I had to spend $198 on repairs to my car," was what Parrott considered an explanation of his delinquency. The court thought differently.

"Repairs to your car, nothing," Judge Summerfield exclaimed. "Alimony is your principal trouble right now. Settle up by May 4, or you won't need any car for several days."

Parrott is under orders to pay his wife $25 a week. In his complaint he charged Mrs. Parrott with undue friendliness with one Ray Reece, and in her answer Mrs. Parrott named Hope Harper.

La Golondrina to Open Sunday at Old Mission

The old Mission playhouse at San Gabriel is the hub of activity this week in preparation for the opening of La Golondrina (the Swallow) next Sunday afternoon. It is the second California play by John Steven McGroarty, author of the Mission Play.

In his work to establish an enduring drama for California, Mr. McGroarty has taken his theme for La Golondrina from the past. The romance of Concepcion Arguello, famed beauty, and the Count de Resanof, is a love story which has been told on trails of California for more than a century.

Violet Schram will assume the role of Concepcion Arguello and Richard Sterling that of Nicolai de Resanof, grand chamberlain of the Great White Czar. More than 100 members of the Mission Play will support them as singers and dancers and in character roles.

During the run of La Golondrina performances will be given every afternoon except Monday and on Wednesday and Saturday evenings.

WORSHIPER AT PRAYER IN CHURCH COLLAPSES

While at prayer in St. Vibiana's Cathedral among other Holy Week worshipers yesterday, George Brehe, 60 years of age, of 303 East Fifth street, collapsed, apparently from heart disease. He died on the way to Receiving Hospital.

MAIL THEFT CASE TRIAL POSTPONED

Former Postal Clerk at Anaheim to Come Before Court on 16th Inst.

C. R. Wheeler, former postoffice clerk of Anaheim, will be tried on the 16th inst. Federal District Judge James yesterday ordered the trial of Wheeler on charges of receiving and concealing a share of the loot in a $22,000 mail robbery at Anaheim on December 27, 1923, postponed until that day.

It was pointed out by government counsel that the case, which followed one in which Wheeler was acquitted of joining in the robbery, should be held over until a number of other cases where the defendants are in jail, had been disposed of.

J. R. Abernathy, former superintendent of Anaheim city schools, who was sentenced to a five-year term in the Federal prison at Leavenworth, Kan., is in Los Angeles and will be held in the County Jail until conclusion of the Wheeler trial. He will be a witness for the government.

Abernathy was prosecuted by former Asst. U. S. Atty. Russell Graham, who has been appointed a special prosecutor in the Wheeler case by Atty.-Gen. Sargent. After his conviction, Abernathy made a complete confession of the robbery plot. J. L. Findley, postoffice messenger, from whom the $22,000 was taken, and who testified against Abernathy, also is expected to take the stand against Wheeler.

Board of Public Work Confers on Viaduct Plan

Assistant City Engineer Butler, in charge of bridge construction, conferred yesterday with members of the Board of Public Works in regard to advertising for bids for a short viaduct across the Los Angeles River at Macy street.

The State Railroad Commission has expressed itself in favor of a short viaduct, rather than the projected one with a long approach on the west side. The Public Works Board announced that plans for the short viaduct will be approved within a few days.

Before construction can be begun, a five-party agreement must be signed between the city, county, Union Pacific, Los Angeles Railway and the Santa Fe. The Santa Fe has not yet signed the compact.

ANOTHER MUSICAL

FIRST NATIONAL BUYS 'IRENE' FOR COLLEEN MOORE

By Grace Kingsley

Just because it is all decided that Colleen Moore is to go to Europe next month, don't run away with the idea that little Colleen is forgetting all about her daily tasks in the pictures. Far from it. The fact of the matter is, she is thriftily lining up stories to make into film plays as soon as she returns, which will be around the middle of July.

Chief of these—and you want to sit tight while I make this announcement—is "Irene," that most popular of musical comedies, which ran a year or two in New York, and which has been touring the country every season since. James Montgomery wrote the book, and Messrs. Harry Tierney and Joseph McCarty wrote the music. This music will be used as a score for the picture.

June Mathis will write the picture scenario, and John Francis Dillon will direct.

It seems that "Sally" did so well in New York, where it has been shown, that Colleen felt all heartened up to try to put other musical comedies into the silent drama. Anyhow that is the statement of John McCormick, who, as you have been told time after time, is Miss Moore's husband, and who therefore ought to know.

Miss Moore and Mr. McCormick will sail for Europe from New York on the Majestic on May 2. This will be her first trip out of her native land, and Miss Moore is looking forward with delight to seeing the art treasures, the old castles and such.

"I don't suppose you really should print this," said Miss Moore, "but the fact that what I am looking forward most to seeing is the toy factories of Germany and the model doll-house which the Queen of England has made and has on exhibition."

While Miss Moore isn't going to try to fool the public into thinking she plays with dolls, her fad really is a perfect gem of a doll house, which she has at home in her sun parlor, and which is furnished with most extraordinary silver filigree and other sorts of tiny furniture sets. It is probably the most remarkable thing of the kind in the country, I'm sure.

Miss Moore is working rather gingerly, these days, on account of that injured neck of hers, but she states that "The Prairie Flower" will soon be finished. And even now she is receiving the advice of friends as to what to take abroad and what not to take.

CEVIL DE MILLE IS SIGNING NEW BEAUTY

That fountain of motion-picture stardom, the Ziegfeld Follies, has again spouted forth another candidate for cinema recognition. Cecil B. De Mille today announced that Jocelyn Lee, who deserted the footlights of Broadway only last August, has signed a long-term contract as the newest member of the De Mille stock company.

Jocelyn Lee

It has not yet been decided whether Miss Lee will make her debut in "Hell's Highroad," the first Leatrice Joy starring picture for De Mille, or in the initial Rod La Rocque offering. Like Majel Coleman, another De Mille "find," she has red hair and green eyes. Since leaving the Follies last fall, she has appeared in "Worldly Goods," "The Golden Bed," "Grounds for Divorce" and more recently "The Dressmaker from Paris."

Mary's Leading Man

To be born under a lucky star is better than to be born rich, according to Hugh Allan, who, yesterday signed a contract to play as Mary Pickford's leading man in "Little Annie Rooney."

Hugh could scarcely credit his good luck, for he has been in pictures only six months and it seemed "too good to be true" that in that short time, he had earned a contract coveted by even veterans of the industry.

Just two years ago, he graduated from Freemont High School in Oakland. Then for a time he worked for the Cunard Line in San Francisco and later came to Los Angeles as secretary to Leland Ramsdell, producer of Hollywood Photoplay Productions. Soon he became assistant cameraman and film cutter and finally was offered a bit in a Richard Talmadge film. Small parts that he took in "Sally" and "Declasse" won him a five-year contract with First National. All this he accomplished in a few months.

Hugh Allan's real name is Allan Hughes, but a complication arose on the First National lot because Lloyd Hughes is also under contract to them. So Allan's name was reversed and now he is wondering how much the science of numerology has to do with success for with the change of name he found it just around the corner.

Mary Pickford saw some screen tests of Hugh Allan, who is young and handsome and over six feet tall and so he was signed immediately to play opposite her in "Little Annie Rooney," which is now in production.

"Isn't life wonderful?" grinned Allan, as he went to work yesterday.

Jackie Logan Signs

Another name has been added to the galaxy of prominent players who will work exclusively under the William Fox banner for the next few years. Jacqueline Logan yesterday signed her name on the dotted line of a long-term contract.

Miss Logan will be remembered for a number of clever characterizations while a featured player with the Famous Players-Lasky organization. More recently she has confined her activities to the studios in the East, where she made "Manhattan" and "A Man Must Live," with Richard Dix.

Miss Logan will start work under her new contract within a few weeks in a picture which will be announced later.

Helen Holmes Marries

Helen Holmes has wed again. The heroine of all those wild railway melodramas has become the bride of Lloyd Saunders, rodeo contestant. The wedding took place in Fort Worth a couple of weeks ago, according to our informant.

The couple met at the Live Stock Show in Fort Worth, and were married after a two-weeks' courtship. Miss Holmes was formerly the wife of J. P. McGowan, film director.

King Vidor's New One

Now all the screen writers are going to have a chance to take a whack at Laurence Stallings, who said those mean things about them. He himself has written a picture story, called "The Big Parade," which Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer will produce.

King Vidor is to direct, and John Gilbert and Renee Adoree will have the leading roles, according to Irving G. Thalberg.

The coauthor of "What Price Glory" wrote the story, "The Big Parade," during his recent visit to Los Angeles. It is a tale that has the World War as a background, but it approaches the war from an entirely different, untouched angle. It is said to be full of the bright humor which characterizes "What Price Glory."

Pola Negri to France

Pola Negri has left her home in Posen, Poland, with her mother for a brief visit to Southern France, according to a cablegram received from the Polish star yesterday.

The condition of Miss Negri's mother is said to be much improved. Pola will remain with her mother until she starts back to the United States early in May to continue her long-term contract with Paramount.

In the cablegram from Miss Negri, she says she has just seen the special print of "The Charmer," her newest starring vehicle, which was shipped to her, and expresses great satisfaction at the results obtained by Director Sidney Olcott.

Ben Alexander In It

Little Ben Alexander has again been cast with Mabel Ballin. The two, who worked together a year ago, are now appearing in "The Shining Adventure," a Madeline Brandies production which is being made at the Hollywood Studios with Hugo Ballin as the director. Percy Marmont has the male lead.

Miss Ballin and Ben first appeared together in "The White Heather," in which Miss Ballin was the boy star's mother. In "The Shining Adventure," Ben is the central figure around which the plot of the play revolves.

Now It's Billy

William De Mille, director and playwright, has turned business man. Of course, it's not in the scheme of things for one talented in these lines to admit a weakness for cut-and-dried matters such as assets and liabilities, but Mr. De Mille has admitted his by becoming a shopkeeper.

He has become chief partner with his brother, Cecil De Mille, and Douglas Fairbanks in a sporting-goods store in Pasadena, with Fred B. Alexander, Davis Cup veteran, and Robert Allen, former Pacific Coast junior champion, in the roles of actual managers.

"RIDIN' PRETTY"

Banjo Players and Vaudeville Round Out Bill at Cameo

"Ridin' Pretty," Universal picture now playing at the Cameo Theater, starring William Desmond, tells the story of a cowboy, Sky Parker, personated by Desmond, who has been left a fortune by an uncle with the proviso that he lives for a year in the mansion of the uncle. He brings with him some of his range pals and they have strange adventures—adventures in which dray horses play a part, traffic is obstructed and society women get a thrill.

The drama is supplied by a beautiful young woman and a sleek "lounge lizard" type of man, who conspire to prevent the heir from coming into his inheritance. This plot also supplies the love interest, for Sky falls in love with the fair conspirator and she falls in love with him, much to the chagrin of her fellow-schemer.

Desmond is supported by Ann Forrest, Billy Sullivan, Stanhope Wheatcroft, Frank Rice, Bill Gillis and Tex Young, the latter two genuine cowboys and members of the famous Universal ranch riders.

Gene Metcalf, "the Southern Nightingale," and McWinters and Fox, two clever performers on the banjo, head the vaudeville program followed by a Century comedy and weekly news events.

Laska Winter, who has been ill in bed for the past three weeks suffering with a serious cold, is about again.

New Comedy at Orange Grove Sunday

Mary Boland

Miss Boland has the leading role in "Meet the Wife," a New York comedy success which has to do with the problem of hasty marriages. Wyndham Standing, Richard Tucker and Lois Austin are featured in the play, which opens Sunday night at the Orange Grove Theater.

NEW YORK REBUKED

Richard Travers Asserts That Films Were "Born" in Chicago

Picture production got its first real start in 1898 when George K. Spoor organized the Essanay company with studios in Chicago, according to Travers.

First stars of that company included Bryant Washburn, Henry B. Walthall, Ruth Stonehouse, Nell Craig, Ann Murdoch, Viola Allen, Travers and others now both famous and forgotten.

Lubin, Tannhauser, Kalem, Selig, L-KO, World Film, Biograph and the other pioneer companies all were put on a firm foundation later, Travers declares.

Travers is now playing a leading role in "Lightnin'," which John Ford is directing for Fox.

PIANIST AND ACTOR WILL PLAY TOGETHER

The Marta Oatman School of the Theater will present Paul Leyssac and Dwight Fiske, pianist-composer, in a novelty entertainment Saturday evening, the 18th inst., at 8:30, at the Sum-Toy-Sho Theater, 1510 South Figueroa street. Mr. Leyssac is the noted French-Danish actor, of the Royal Theater, Copenhagen. The most notable roles he has played have been Count de Guiche in "Cyrano de Bergerac" with Walter Hampden; the French Ambassador in "The Czarina," with Doris Keane, and Lafayette in Walter Hampden's production of "George Washington."

Theatrically Speaking

BY HERBERT MOULTON

Pasadena seems to be having a good laugh at its own expense lately. Last week the Community Players poked fun at their fair city's manifold dramatic activities with their third annual Kommunity Kaper, and beginning next Monday they are going to make merry with the little-theater movement by presenting a zestful play called "Expressing Willie," written by Rachel Crothers.

The Pasadena Playhouse is dark this week, but rehearsals of the new play are going ahead under the direction of Gilmor Brown. "Expressing Willie" will open on the 13th inst. for one week.

Meanwhile, construction work is progressing on the new Pasadena Community Playhouse, which promises to be one of the best theaters of its kind in the country. It is planned to open the new house about the middle of May.

The Kommunity Kaper was presented solely for members of the Community Playhouse, who made up four good-sized audiences, and the fun-making drew a number of new members to the organization. It was marked by many satirical skits which called for the largest cast of the season at the Pasadena house.

Glendale Play Popular

Olga Printzlau's play, "Manna," which is being presented at the Glendale Playhouse by the Dobinson Players, is attracting the attention of theatergoers throughout Southern California. Mrs. Dobinson tells me that they are coming in groups from Redlands, Long Beach and way stations—old and young alike—and that they seem to like the play mightily. At any rate, the second week of "Manna" rolls merrily along with filled houses, and from present indications it looks as if the play will remain for a third week.

"Beggar on Horseback" Sunday

Next Saturday night will bring to a close at the Majestic that delightful comedy, "The Alarm Clock," in which Eddie Horton seems to have scored quite a hit.

With the Sunday matinee performance the engagement of the famous comedy fantasy, "Beggar on Horseback," will begin its first run west of Chicago.

This theatrical novelty from the prolific pens of George S. Kaufman and Marc Connelly is one of the outstanding comedy hits of the past two seasons. It is still running in New York, having returned there after a tour of Chicago, Philadelphia, Boston and several other eastern cities.

In "Beggar on Horseback" the authors have given the stage an exceedingly humorous satire on American "big business" and its mannerisms. The play is presented in two parts, consisting of twenty-one scenes, and Thomas Wilkes, the producer, has arranged for one of the most elaborate productions ever given at the Majestic. The cast is headed by Edward Everett Horton and includes thirty-five performers. It will be staged under the direction of Ferdinand Munier, with special settings devised by Dickson Morgan.

"The Door Mat" Coming

The busiest person in all Los Angeles this week is undoubtedly Lillian Albertson and the busiest spot the Playhouse, where rehearsals are going on for "The Door Mat," the new play by Ethel Clifton and Brenda Fowler, which follows "The Dark Angel" on the 20th inst. Miss Albertson is not only staging the new production in her capacity of director of the Playhouse, but she is also rehearsing the leading role, since she will be the star of the piece.

In addition to these two fairly large tasks Miss Albertson is directing every detail of the production and supervising the exploitation campaign, since her husband, Louis O. Macloon, who ordinarily attends to these matters, is in New York. Therefore, for the time being, she is the producing manager and, although the advertisements will read "Louis O. Macloon presents etc., etc.," they could truthfully be changed to "Lillian Albertson presents," since the finished production will be entirely the result of her efforts.

Miss Albertson is highly enthusiastic over the new play, which was written by two local playwrights, and declares that it is the best play that has been submitted to her during the year or more she has been directing the Macloon productions at the Playhouse. Her role is that of a middle-aged wife and mother who is figuratively used as a "door mat" by her husband and three children.

BRAVAS FOR SCHIPA!

Lyric Tenor Again Sings Way Into Hearts of Audience

BY FRANCIS KENDIG

One of the most overwhelming singers who visit our shores once or twice a season gave a program at once brilliant and popular last evening at Philharmonic. Tito Schipa, lyric tenor, a premier of the Chicago Opera, gave the first of his two recitals here before a large and even more than usually demonstrative audience last evening. It was a rather glorious song-fest.

Schipa occupies a singularly warm place in the hearts of Los Angeles concert-goers, and one cannot say undeservedly. It is impossible to listen to his soft, long-spun tones, glowing and rich and warm with the passion of living, and not feel the thrill of a singer who loves to sing. He gives the audience that same feeling which the singer enjoys who creates virile melody sheerly for the joy of it. Schipa sings pretty much because he could not do otherwise, and if he should suddenly become bereft of his voice there wouldn't be very much left of poor Tito!

The program (and space does not permit the tabulating of it in entirety) was one which combined, singularly enough, the Orpheum flavor of popularity and dyed in the wool musicianship. The Spanish and Italian rhythm strongly predominated; their music is so satiated with lilt and sway that anyone who catches its subtle nuances could scarcely do otherwise than win long applause.

Scarlatti, Massenet ("Ah! fuyes, douce image" and "Le Reve,") a French group including Lagorgue, Faure and Debussy, of which "La Mandoline" by the latter was outstanding, occupied the first part of the evening. His rendition of Schumann's "The Walnut Tree" could bring tears for the smooth flowing beauty of it. Something of a novelty was "Bogne d'Amore" arranged by the singer from Liszt's —ill-fated—"Liebestraume." It adapts itself very much to Schipa's lyricism and its value is chiefly in its novelty, because anything in the way of a variant is to be prayed for in this number, which would be lovely were it not played so much—and so poorly.

One ought to devote about a paragraph to Franck's inspired "Panis Angelicus;" the "Vive Navarra" (Larengia-Enchanis,) again brought forth the mood of the Castilian. "La Jota," by the important composer, Falla, is by all means one of his best songs—and one of Schipa's. Encores included "Clavilitos" (Valverde;) "O Sole Mio," "A Laorilla de un Palmer" (Pouce,) and the chausson "Les petites ouseaux," and any number of others.

Schipa is the Italian lyric singer to the core. What he can do with one breath is truly amazing. His color, shading, dynamics, have all received very careful attention. He sings with the fervor of his warm-blooded race, with an inherent trace of Latin culture. One does not get just everything from Schipa—but that is not even to be desired.

A word or two for the brilliant—too brilliant pianist. His accompanying was extraordinary. His solos won him something of an ovation, although he surely did not deserve them so far as musicianship goes. He essayed even such trash as the Vogrich "Caprice;" also a clever arrangement of the Highland Fling (it must have been that.) His own arrangement of "Vive Navarra" (Lasegla)—was one of his best. I should like to hear him—or rather I should not like to hear him, play Bach, unless last evening he was merely running through the things that he knew would bring the most hand-clapping.

Earle Foxe, the Van Bibber of the screen, has taken up ski jumping. The Fox Company, with Director George Marshall, is at Truckee, Nev., shooting comedy snow scenes for the next release of the series.

Long Beach Plan Board in Move for Esthetic

Propose to Place Beauty Above Oil Dollars

Proviso Mode for Drilling in Restricted Zones

By a "Times" Staff Correspondent

LONG BEACH, April 7.—The hectic days of the oil boom are over, so far as Long Beach is concerned. This city refuses to get excited any more over wild tales of billions of dollars taken from the ground. It has made its pile and is returning to the realization that the esthetic things of life are as much to be desired as oil money.

That's why the City Council will be asked by the City Planning Commission to prohibit wildcat drilling in the Los Cerritos section of Long Beach and to permit the development only of such oil resources as the exclusive and wealthy residential section may actually prove to possess.

Action of the City Planning Commission followed a mild splurge of excitement that has been growing here recently in connection with plans of oil companies to lease a goodly share of the district for drilling in the belief that another rich Signal Hill will be discovered.

After a trip of inspection through the Los Cerritos section, the planning commissioners declared themselves as in favor of the issuance of drilling permits in parts of the district where the existence of oil in commercial quantities is most probable. The commission will recommend to the Council that the remainder of the district be reserved and zoned strictly for residential purposes, it announced.

The oil zone can be extended gradually as first operations might reveal oil, it was pointed out by the commissioners who tentatively designated three parcels of Los Cerritos property where oil operations might be carried on as a starter.

Hospital, Then Jail for Man With New Car

[LOCAL CORRESPONDENCE]

ONTARIO, April 7.—After wrecking a motor car which he had purchased only yesterday by propelling it early today into a fence at the intersection of A street and Archibald avenue and fracturing several of his ribs in the act, R. M. Rowan, 43 years of age, a salesman residing in San Bernardino, was this afternoon committed to the County Jail for a term of fifty days.

When Rowan appeared in Judge Holbrook's court smeared with blood from cuts he had sustained as well as the fractured ribs, he entered a plea of guilty to the reckless driving charge. The court pronounced sentence of $50 fine or fifty days in jail. When the driver declared his inability to pay the fine Judge Holbrook announced that he would recommend that he be sent first to the County Hospital for treatment of his injuries.

E. B. Erickson of San Bernardine, who accompanied Rowan and who was arrested on a drunk charge, was later released. Rowan denied that he had been drinking.

OXNARD LEMON SHOW DELAYED UNTIL JUNE

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

OXNARD, April 7.—Because the Valencia show at Anaheim will be held during the same week which was originally scheduled for the California lemon and products show at Oxnard in the latter part of May, the lemon show has been postponed until June. It will be from the 9th to the 14th, inclusive. H. Elmo Labreque, who has been employed by the Oxnard Chamber of Commerce to manage the show, is here today and met with the show committee of the chamber to make further arrangements for the fair. Manager William Ross of the Oxnard Citrus Association said June will be a better month for him, inasmuch as there will be more and better lemons on hand at the local packing-houses for display purposes. Arrangements are now being made with exhibitors and many are planning on exhibiting here. From all indications the first lemon and products show here will be a great success.

MORTGAGES ON LAND GRANTS TO BE AIRED

QUESTION OF VALIDITY IS RAISED AT HEARING IN CAPITAL

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE]

WASHINGTON, April 7.—The validity of any mortgages that might have been issued by the operators of the Northern Pacific Railroad between 1875 and 1882 was questioned today before the Congressional commission investigating land grants to the railroad company and its successor, the Northern Pacific Railway Company.

Representative Raker, Democrat, California, said he had received information from which he believed to be a credible source, that one or more mortgages had been issued during this period by the Northern Pacific Railroad Association in the name of the Northern Pacific Railroad Company.

He requested that the commission inquire into the matter, pointing out that the validity of such mortgages, if any, might be questioned in view of the lapse in time between the foreclosure of the railroad in 1875 and its reorganization as a corporation in 1882.

GUN BATTLE ON DESERT LOOKED FOR

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

SAN BERNARDINO, April 7.—A gun battle between game poachers and officers of the desert is expected with the calling late today by Deputy Sheriff Tom Williams of Yermo, for aid from the Sheriff's office. Officer Williams telephoned that he had been fired on by three men he halted on the desert to search their car for game. He returned the fire, but the three men escaped, he said.

Sheriff Walter A. Shay sent two deputies and Game Warden W. C. Malone to aid Officer Williams.

Officer Williams last week shot and seriously wounded Charles Williams, a negro, in a spectacular gun battle on the desert in which a score of shots were exchanged.

Protest Raised on Plan to Hide Running Water

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

REDLANDS, April 7.—Water is the staff of life in Southern California and because of this the question has arisen here as to whether the esthetic enjoyment of running water must give way to the practical side of conserving it.

The water in question is that in the zanja, the mountain irrigation stream built by the Indians three quarters of a century ago, which brings the waters from the snow peaks of the San Bernardino range to water the orange groves here.

Those who now own the water, the orange growers of the Bryn Mawr section, desire to run at least a portion of the flow through a pipe line—in order to conserve water. It is felt that it is a step toward placing all the water through a covered ditch.

As a result a storm of protest has gone up from property owners whose property borders on the zanja, and most of whom claim they purchased the property to enjoy the rushing, tumbling mountain stream. They do not relish a dry waterway instead of the rippling, rushing, surging stream which is there now.

There will be a thorough discussion of the proposition at a mass meeting to be held in Mentone this week and it is possible that court action will result.

COUNCIL IN MEXICALI IS OUSTED

Gov. Rodriguez Deposes City Officials on Charges of Flagrant Corruption

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

MEXICALI, April 7.—Charging the city government of Mexicali with corruption so flagrant as to justify emergency measures, Territorial Governor Abelardo Rodriguez of the Northern District of Lower California late last night ousted the entire board of fifteen Councilmen and named a special commission of five men to assume charge of the municipal government until the regular election next December.

Gov. Rodrigues's action came a few hours after Municipal Presidente Miguel Vildosola, Jr., and five members of the Council had been arrested on charges of stealing 11,000 pesos from the city treasury.

Federico Palacia, Auditor of the Territorial government, was named chairman of the new commission, with Col. M. Rodriguez Galeana, Dr. Manuel Monter, Alfonso Tovar and Francisco Lamarque as the other four members.

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

Maria Ramirez was fined $15 as a result of her attempt to steal a pair of shoes valued at $2.45 from the Kafeteria Shoe Store.

Both sentences were suspended.

VOTE WINNERS IN DOUBT

[LOCAL CORRESPONDENCE]

POMONA, April 7.—With Schuyler H. Park, prominent local businessman, elected the next mayor of Pomona by a total of 2102 votes, a plurality of 1226 over C. C. Caves, the next highest opponent, and with James T. Dunlap, Frank R. Lindsey, J. E. Adamson and C. B. Afflerbaugh grouped around him as an official family, the question of what salary they are to be paid arises as a real issue to be decided in the near future.

An ordinance becoming effective Monday, the 13th inst., increases the salary of the Mayor to $5000 a year from $2000, and that of the Councilmen from $300 to $900, the City Clerk and City Treasurer from $1800 to $3000; the City Attorney from $1200 to $2400, and the police judge from $900 to $1800.

City Clerk Thomas R. Trotter, who was yesterday re-elected City Clerk for the twelfth time, declared today that upon the advice of the City Attorney, Joseph A. Allard, Jr., he would refuse to audit the warrants under the new salary schedule when presented at the end of the month. Such action will force one or all of the city officials affected to bring suit against Mr. Trotter, leaving the decision as to the legality of the salary-increase ordinance to the courts.

A similar salary-raise ordinance was decisively defeated by popular vote two years ago and the latest ordinance was promulgated through the City Council.

The election yesterday was an upset as a light vote had been anticipated. However, out of a total registration of 8200, 4567 ballots were tallied.

Also, three Councilmen were defeated: J. E. Adamson, who was seeking the Mayoralty; L. R. T. Hoover, seeking re-election from the Third Ward, and Holmes G. Brown, soliciting re-election from the Second Ward. Mr. Adamson, however, will remain as Councilman for the First Ward.

Other successful candidates were City Attorney Joseph A. Allard, Jr.; Assessor, J. F. Evans; police judge, Everett H. Bowen; president, Board of Education, F. R. Hartman; Board of Education, Second Ward, G. D. Palmer, and Board of Education, Fourth Ward, W. R. Coon.

DRIVES AUTO INTO APARTMENT, FLEES

VENICE, April 7.—After crashing his automobile into the side of the Durango Apartments, 511 Speedway, ripping out a section of the structure, an unknown motorist fled from the scene leaving the demolished car where it had crashed. Considerable damage was done to the building according to police records. [LOCAL CORRESPONDENCE]

LONG BEACH VOTES TODAY

Turn-Out of 20,000 Expected; Interest Centers in Pension and Civil Service Proposals

By a "Times" Staff Correspondent

LONG BEACH, April 7.—With no less than thirty-six propositions to be considered and voted upon, electors here will go to the polls tomorrow in force for the Long Beach city charter amendment election, it was predicted today. More than 20,000 voters are expected to turn out, according to conservative estimates.

Chief among the amendments which promise to develop strong contests are the provision for the election of councilmen by wards instead of at large, a proposition to increase greatly the governing powers of the city manager, an amendment providing for the election instead of appointment of the city auditor and an increase in his salary, an amendment creating a disability and pension fund for firemen and policemen, amendments increasing salaries of police judge, city auditor and other officials, a proposition to abolish all civil service regulations as affecting city employees.

Apparently little pre-election interest has been shown in the propositions, with the exception of No. 6, providing for police and firemen's pension funds, and No. 16, which provided for the abolishment of civil service. A tremendous campaign, backed financially by the merchants, banks and business houses of Long Beach, has been waging for several days in the interests of No. 6 and for the defeat of No. 16, which, it is pointed out, would place both the fire and police departments under political boss rule. Friends of the police and fire department predicted freely today that the pension amendment will be carried strongly and that civil service will be retained by the defeat of No. 16.

Some interest is being evinced by voters in Amendment No. 1, providing for the election of councilmen by wards, but no separate campaign has materialized either in favor or against this proposition and the outcome is considered doubtful.

LONG BEACH SOLONS IN CHURCH ROW

By a "Times" Staff Correspondent

LONG BEACH, April 7.—The Long Beach City Council today took another church fight on its hands when it voted to adopt an ordinance that bars the building of churches in zones set aside for public use.

At one of the stormiest sessions ever witnessed in the local chamber, Councilmen, who voted for the ordinance amendment were subjected to boos and cat calls, as well as accusations that their action constituted an intended blow at the Catholic church in Long Beach.

The amendment, opponents declared, was the result of the attempt by a Catholic church organization a year ago to build a church at the corner of Twentieth street and Pasadena avenue. Notice was served on the Council by Attorney Walter Desmond, former postmaster and a leader in Catholic church circles here, that Long Beach Catholics will challenge the Council's action and will take their fight into the courts.

Councilmen voting for the restriction against churches were Clark, Arnold, Evans, Thomas and Beck. Councilmen Condit and Callahan stood out against the amended ordinance in a bitter fight that was lost.

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

SAN BERNARDINO, April 7.—Despondent because her dreams for wealth had faded, Mrs. Alice Sherling Arufelt, a nurse 40 years of age, slashed her throat with a butcher-knife at her home early this morning.

Found by her adopted son, J. F. Clark, she was rushed to a hospital where a blood transfusion will probably be performed tomorrow to save her life. Surgeons stated that she had lost much blood, but they hoped to stay death.

Mrs. Arufelt has been hysterical at times recently, the police were told by her relatives, and appeared despondent. She recently invented a new type cooking utensil, the marketing of which, she believed, would bring her wealth. Later her hopes were blasted by the financial failure of the invention, and she became despondent, the police were told.

If successful, it is stated, its college yell will include the phrase, "raw! raw!" it is declared. "How to live right through diet and exercise," is the title of his address.

FREED FROM CELL, HE RETURNS SAME DAY

By a "Times" Staff Correspondent

PASADENA, April 7.—Steve Olds has the habit. Steve was released from the Pasadena City Jail at 10 o'clock yesterday morning after he had served thirty days for intoxication. But Steve wasn't gone long. At exactly 3:30 p.m. he returned in company of a police officer and the same desk sergeant who made out his release papers went through the task of booking him again on another charge of intoxication. This time Steve will spend ninety days before he enjoys his next spree, Judge Dunham ruled when the offender was hailed into police court this morning.

INTEREST DUE CITY SUBJECT OF SUIT

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE]

NEWPORT BEACH, April 7.—The City Council of Newport Beach today filed suit against City Treasurer Lew H. Wallace and the First National Bank of Newport Beach, seeking to recover $12,829.62 alleged to be interest due on civic funds deposited in the bank from April 20, 1908 and Oct. 4, 1924. The suit is expected to draw the attention of city treasurers, banks and councils in many State centers where the custom has been to pay the treasurer a nominal salary and have the local bank take care of the civic bookkeeping in return for interest on deposits.

CROSS-WORD PUZZLE UP IN COURT

Intricacies of Indoor Sport Put Up to Receiver When Partner in Realty Firm Using Checkered Square to Boost Sales Asks For an Accounting

The intricacies of the crossword puzzle officially were brought before the Superior Court yesterday for consideration when J. D. Gallicott, an enthusiastic follower of the indoor sport, filed suit for an accounting and dissolution of partnership against J. M. Danziger and Marion H. Kohn.

Gallicott asserted he perfected a system for selling real estate via the crossword puzzle route and on February 12, last, entered a copartnership with the defendants for sale of lots in Smiley Park by the use of his system.

He declared the system worked well and that within a short time the business had an income of from $100 to $1000 a day. The defendants were said to have sought to gain control of the business for themselves and to have denied Gallicott permission to examine the accounts and books of the copartnership.

CONDITIONS IN ISLANDS FOUND FINE

Returning Hawaii Visitor Says Pineapple Trade Has Boomed All Business

Business conditions are excellent in the Hawaiian Islands, according to J. H. Plunkett, director of sales of the Pioneer Paper Company of Los Angeles, who returned yesterday from a six weeks' trip to the Islands.

The pineapple industry, Mr. Plunkett states, has enjoyed a banner year from the standpoint of production and consumption. The result, he says, has been a general stimulation of all business in the islands. The tourist trade also is better than ever before.

Mr. Plunkett reports that a 25 per cent increase will be seen in the amount of mulch paper shipped from Los Angeles to the Hawaiian Islands this year. This paper is used for the conservation of temperature and moisture in the pineapple and sugar cane fields.

APPELLATE COURT UPHOLDS CONTRACT

Validity of a contract which E. J. Longyear attempted to rescind for alleged misrepresentations, made by H. S. Wood in connection with a rock crusher in Pacoima Canyon, was upheld by the District Court of Appeal yesterday in affirming a judgment of Superior Court, where Wood received an award of $4500 for unpaid rent under the lease. Although Longyear filed a cross-complaint claiming that because of misrepresentations made by Wood when the contract was signed, he has lost $85,000, the Appelate Court yesterday declared that as Longyear waited fifteen months before attempting to rescind the contract he evidently was not misled by Wood's statements and that the contract could not be broken.

FORMER ANGELENO DIES

Mrs. Rolle M. McDonald, formerly of this city, died March 30 at San Francisco. She was the widow of Rolle M. McDonald and leaves four daughters, Mrs. F. H. Tibbetts, Mrs. C. W. Heard and Miss Grace McDonald of San Francisco and Mrs. Ed Malley of Los Angeles. Her body was cremated at Oakland.

HOPI INDIAN DANCE TO BE TRIP EVENT

Chamber Excursionists to Witness Tribe Ceremony, Also Valley Renaming

The Los Angeles Chamber of Commerce excursion party, which leaves here next Tuesday, will have the pleasure of witnessing the famous Hopi Indian dance, according to Charles P. Bayer, manager of the excursion department of the chamber.

Another of the impressive ceremonies to be seen by the excursionists will be the rechristening of the Salt River Valley in Arizona to Roosevelt Valley. News of the renaming of the valley was contained in a letter from H. B. Watkins, general manager of the Phoenix Chamber of Commerce, which is planning an elaborate entertainment for the visiting excursionists while there. A side excursion to the United Verde copper mines at Clarkadale has also been planned.

The excursionists will leave here the 14th inst., and will return to Los Angeles the 23rd inst., after visiting San Diego, Old Mexico, Arizona, New Mexico, Imperial Valley and San Joaquin Valley.

This is the first time in the history of the chamber, according to Bayer, that two regular excursions have been combined. In the past, the chamber has always operated the Arizona-Imperial Valley and the San Joaquin Valley excursions separately. Through an arrangement with the Santa Fe and Southern Pacific railways, both trips are being made at the same time at only a slight additional cost over either of the trips when made separately.

JURY FIXING INDICTMENT IS RETURNED

Barney Schwarz Accused of Attempt to Tamper in Brokerage Case

Barney Schwarz, former stock broker, was indicted yesterday by the grand jury on a charge of attempted jury fixing. The indictment was returned before Judge Hahn, who will fix a date of arraignment today. The attempt to influence jurors was made, according to the charge, at the second trial of Schwarz and four others for asserted obtaining of money under false pretenses. A woman, former employes of the brokerage firm, it is asserted, approached R. C. Rembke and Charles F. Downing, jurors, and asked them "not to be hard on the boys," as they were "good fellows." At the first trial the jury had disagreed.

The jury found Schwarz, Harry C. Weist, Larry Goldner and Norman Frankfort guilty of the charge and acquitted Arthur Donlin, and this case is now on appeal. Following the reports of Rembke and Downing, Dep. Dist.-Attys. Van Cott and Bonner Richardson made an extensive investigation and yesterday took the two jurors with other witnesses before the grand jury.

The charge against the brokers was that they had induced clients to trade good stock for bad.

Indorsement of Cryer Denied by Carpenter Union

Refuting the claim that the organized carpenters of Los Angeles had indorsed the candidacy of Mayor Cryer, the Los Angeles County District Council of Carpenters issued a statement yesterday to the effect that the council has not as yet indorsed any Mayoralty candidate. The statement, which was authorized at a meeting of the council held last Monday, said:

"The Los Angeles County District Council of Carpenters is the central body for all carpenter unions in this county and officially represents the United Brotherhood of Carpenters and Joiners of America in this county. The existing thirty-two local unions are subordinate to it.

"I have been instructed to communicate the above information to all Los Angeles daily newspapers and set forth the fact that Arthur G. Hawes does not represent the United Brotherhood of Carpenters and Joiners of America, and that the Los Angeles County District Council of Carpenters has not as yet indorsed any Mayoralty candidate."

The council's statement was signed by E. E. Lampton, secretary-treasurer.

Opera and Arts Club Plans for Musical Fete

With a considerably enlarged stage setting permitting more elaborate presentations for future programs, the Los Angeles Opera and Fine Arts Club has launched a well-defined schedule for a development in American music.

Under the direction of Mme. Adam Stetzler, formerly of the Savage Opera Company, a special program for music lovers will be presented at the clubhouse, 927 Menlo avenue, the evening of the 13th inst. Besides the first act from "Martha," the presentation will include excerpts from "Lohengrin."

A permanent orchestration has been perfected under the supervision of Adolph Tandler. The club chorus of twenty-five specially trained voices is making a study of all operas for future presentations. This program is to mark the premiere appearance of the orchestra and the chorus.

Assisting Mrs. J. T. Anderson as hostesses for the evening are Mmes. Mildred Sangerhouse, Edith Lillian Clark, Henry T. Sanger, J. C. Brown and Misses Ella True, Jessica McGregor, Sylvia Harding. Miss Lillian Backstrand will preside at the punch bowl during the social hour, assisted by several members of the Artists' Student League.

MYSTERY OF RADIO VOICE IS UNSOLVED

Wife in Suit for Divorce Denies There is Secrecy in Her Concerts

The mysterious soprano of the radio broadcasting stations is still a mystery, judging by the testimony given yesterday before Judge Summerfield in the divorce suit of Mrs. Ruth Florence McLean against Kenneth G. McLean, a deputy United States marshal.

When the case began a week ago Mrs. McLean declared her husband left her without reason or support and Judge Summerfield had him called to explain.

"She makes more money than I do, Judge," declared McLean. She's the mystery soprano of radio."

"I sing at the radio studios, but there's no mystery about it," said Mrs. McLean. "I sing under my own name."

Judge Summerfield granted her a decree but took under advisement the question of alimony and counsel fee. She asked for $20 a week.

It was pointed out last night that Mrs. McLean is not the mysterious soprano who has been featured by KHJ, The Times' radio.

Death Comes to Widow of Jacob Nauerth

After a long illness, Mrs. Anna Nauerth, widow of Jacob Nauerth, died yesterday at her home, 1615 South St. Andrews Place. She leaves two daughters, Mrs. Earl Sweet and Mrs. William M. Hiatt.

Mrs. Nauerth had been a resident of Los Angeles since 1888. She was a member of Trinity Methodist Episcopal Church, South. She was the youngest of a prominent family from Baden, Germany. Her father, Anton Buck, was one of the leaders associated with Carl Schurz in 1848 in demanding representative government. She was a sister of the late Charles F. Buck of New Orleans, an attorney.

Her husband, the late Jacob Nauerth, was for many years a prominent hardware merchant of this city.

The funeral will be conducted Friday morning at 10:30 from the residence.

SHRINE PARLEY ENDS

Col. Cobb Returns to Bay City After Discussing Convention

Conferences in this city during the last week to discuss plans for the escorting of bands and patrols during the 1926 national Shrine convention to be held here next June were concluded with the return yesterday to San Francisco of Col. George Filmer of the Bay City Islam Temple.

These plans were outlined by Col. Filmer in meetings here with Robert A. Heffner, chairman of the committee on the entertainment of visiting Arab patrols during the conclave, and Laurence Cobb, captain of the Al Malaikah Temple Arab patrol. Col. Filmer is a past potentate of Islam Temple.

The temples to co-operate with Col. Filmer will be bands and patrols of Islam, Aahmes, Oakland; Ben Ali, Sacramento; Al Bahr, San Diego; El Zaribah, Phoenix, and Aloha, Honolulu.

While here, Col Filmer also discussed the general program for the convention with Motley H. Flint, director-general of the executive committee.

How the Joneses Solved their Vacation

There are five in the Jones family. Their vacation, last year, was spent at home because fares and hotel bills for five people for two weeks would have been entirely out of proportion to the Jones income.

This year, however, things are to be different. True, Mr. Jones' salary is the same but wise planning has assured them the longed for trip. Already they have marked each day's camp-site on a well worn road map. Even the Younger Jones is cooing in anticipation of the coming outing.

Why hadn't they bought a car long ago? Think of the fun they've missed! And, besides it was so easy to find the very car they wanted, at the price they could pay, in Times "Automobiles for Sale" columns. Neighbor Smith was right when he said, "The best used car offerings are generally found in The Times."

How "Off-Color" Teeth Now are quickly restored to dazzling whiteness

A NEW method urged widely by leading authorities. Make this remarkable dental test. See what gleaming loveliness is beneath the dingy film that clouds your teeth

DENTAL science now proves that dull, off-color teeth are a folly; that dingy whiteness can be obscured with but little effort. New methods of tooth and gum beauty and protection have been found.

They are quick and lasting. In a few days you can work a transformation in your teeth, can literally change their appearance.

Try a 10-day test is offered you—a test sanctioned of all dental tests. Just use the coupon.

It's only a dingy film

Have your teeth look off color is because you are coated with a film and because you now use foods to encourage that film. That is why, in spite of the care you take, your teeth dull and discolor.

You can't see that film with your eyes, but you can run your tongue across your teeth and you will feel it—a viscous, slimy coating that absorbs discolorations and clouds your teeth.

Remove it and you'll be amazed at the difference. You probably have been told before regarding it.

Film, is charged with most tooth troubles. It clings to teeth, gets into crevices and stays. Germs by the millions breed in it. And they, with tartar, are a chief cause of pyorrhea and gum troubles.

You must constantly combat it. You can't have pretty teeth, unless you do. It is a constant danger in your mouth.

New methods remove it. And Firm the Gums

Now new methods have been found. And embodied in a new type dentifrice called Pepsodent, different in formula, action and effect from any other known method.

Its action is to curdle film and harmlessly to remove it, then to firm the gums—no harsh grit dangerous to enamel.

Most of the sparkling, white teeth you see are due to it. Largely on dental advice, it has changed the teeth cleansing habits of the world.

Results are quick

Make the test. Then note results. Mark the glistening whiteness it brings; the beautiful polish and luster of your teeth. Clip the coupon before you forget.

OFFICE M

KING TO VISIT BOULDER SITE

Senator, on Vacation Here, to Study Problem

Warns Against Paternalism in Government

Discusses Defense Agencies, Arms Conference

United States Senator King of Utah, who is visiting here between sessions of Congress, yesterday stated that he intended to visit the Boulder Dam site before returning to Washington in order that he might obtain information possible as to the feasability and propriety of the Federal government undertaking this enterprise.

"The engineering reports I have examined," Senator King said, "as well as information I have obtained, reveal a diversity of views in the matter."

He stated that as a fundamental proposition he is opposed to the Federal government undertaking enterprises that are legitimately and properly within the domain of private endeavor.

There is also a serious question, he said, as to the right of the government to construct hydro-electric plants and engage in the manufacture, distribution and sale of electricity.

Senator King decried the tendency in this country toward measures and propositions that are either socialistic or paternalistic and declared that the Federal government is usurping the functions, not only of States but of individuals.

"The people should jealously examine every proposition which looks to the extension of the authority of the Federal government," states Senator King. "The people of Los Angeles and California can govern themselves better than bureaucrats armed with Federal authority can govern them."

Senator King, when asked about the Navy and as to its condition and the controversy respecting airplanes and submarines, stated that he hoped to have the opportunity of going to Honolulu to witness the naval maneuvers. He was been a member of the Naval Affairs Committee for many years and is interested in the maintenance of a proper and modern Navy.

Senator King stated that in his opinion too little attention had been paid by the General Naval Board and those responsible for our naval policy to the construction of submarines and the development of aircraft.

THREE-PLAN NAVY

"The naval authorities have been wedded to the capital ship, and we have failed to appreciate the importance of submarines and airplanes and other instrumentalities developed during the World War. As a result we have no fleet submarines and are inadequately supplied with aircraft.

"A modern navy must be a three-plan navy. Provision must be made for seacraft, surface craft and aircraft. The Army has also failed to appreciate the importance of airplanes and the result is that we are lacking in a number of features essential for offensive and defensive warfare both upon land and sea.

"Congress has appropriated annually since the war between $650,000,000 and $800,000,000 for the Army and Navy. In my opinion the results have not been commensurate with the expenditures. The overhead has been too great and bureaucratic methods have resulted in wasted energy and wasted funds.

"I have insisted for several years that we should have greater coordination between the Army and the Navy and particularly with reference to the construction of aircraft. There is much to be said in favor of a unified air service such as exists in England, and such as is being urged by Gen. Mitchell. Undoubtedly, the Army and the Navy should co-operate to a far greater extent than they do in the construction and operation of aircraft.

PROPOSED UNIFICATION

"I offered a bill to create an interdepartmental organization, which would bring under one head the activities of the Army and Navy and the Postoffice, with respect to aircraft, but no action has been taken upon it. In my opinion its passage would be of immense advantage to our country. Our Navy is lacking in aircraft, as I have stated, and fleet submarines. I repeat that the enormous cost of our Army and Navy is entirely too much, and we are not getting sufficient results for the money spent.

"Reforms are needed both in the Army and in the Navy. The frightful cost of naval armaments is an appealing argument in favor of a world conference to bring about a reduction in armaments. Unfortunately, the Washington conference was participated in by but a few nations and dealt only with capital ships. There was no limitation upon aircraft, submarines, light cruisers and other forms of naval craft. We are merely transferring the cost of capital ships to other naval craft, without reducing materially, the burden resting upon the people."

TIME OPPORTUNE

Senator King was asked what the chances were for a world conference to bring about naval disarmament and in reply, said:

"I offered the measure which became a law, directing the President to call a world conference to consider not only naval disarmament, but land disarmament. It is obvious that if the highest results are to be obtained there must be not only naval, but land disarmament.

"I believe most nations are desirous of entering into world agreements to affectuate that result. The League of Nations has a commission appointed to formulate a plan for world disarmament. Most of the nations belonging to the League have indicated a sincere desire to support a policy that will bring disarmament. I think the time is ripe for a world movement to accomplish this result. It would be most unfortunate if the nations of the world were to drift back into the old prewar psychology, and if there should again be alliances and groupings of nations.

"I believe that President Coolidge will use his influence to bring about a world conference. Certainly all Christian nations should desire peace and I am sure the Orient would join with the Occident in the formulation of a broad and comprehensive plan to prevent war and to promote peace."

NEW CLEWS IN HUNT FOR THREE MEN

Parents of Youth Offer $300 Reward; Foul Play is Feared

Working on new clews supplied them yesterday, Detectives Edwards and Jones today hoped to locate at least two of three persons reported missing to the police department during the past few days.

Those missing are Leilani Waldo Shull, 212 South New Hampshire street, who disappeared from the campus of the Southern Branch of the University of California last Wednesday, and whose father thinks he may have been the victim of foul play; Charles Fischler, 20 years of age, 340 West Forty-seventh Place, who disappeared Monday while on duty downtown as a bank messenger, and Hollis T. Himes, 33, 718 West Pioneer Drive, Glendale, who also disappeared Monday while on his way to work in Los Angeles.

A reward of $300 was offered yesterday by the parents of young Shull, Mr. and Mrs. George Shull, to anyone who can supply them with information that will lead them to their son's whereabouts.

At the same time, the mother took occasion to correct inaccuracies in the first description of the missing youth's clothes given the police. When he left home the boy, who is 20 years of age, was wearing regulation brown army shoes, brown puttees, army trousers and shirt bearing the insignia of a first lieutenant of the Reserve Corps, dark-rimmed glasses and an officer's cap. He had on, however, a blue-grey civilian coat.

As she announced the reward, Mrs. Shull, whose condition was said to be serious from worry, declared that she wanted her son to know that if he had left home because of any fancied wrong or infraction, all would be forgiven and forgotten if he would only return or let his parents know that he was well.

WINNERS IN ART EXHIBIT ANNOUNCED

To Mr. Conrad Buff with his painting "Desert Motive" went the Huntington prize, awarded to painters or sculptors who have previously never received a prize in the museum.

These prize-winning paintings and pieces of sculpture as well as 102 other art subjects will remain on display at the museum until April 30.

E. H. Scott of Shipping Line Dies Suddenly

E. H. Scott, 50 years of age, traveling freight agent for the Williams Steamship Company, suffered a fatal heart attack yesterday on a Los Angeles street car near Seventh street and Gladys avenue.

Passengers on the car noticed his plight and summoned the conductor. The car was stopped, and the stricken man taken to the nearby office of Dr. E. W. Wahl. Scott was pronounced dead when the office was reached.

The body was taken to the mortuary of Godeau & Martinoni.

MAN COMMITS SUICIDE BY JUMPING FROM SILO

Secilio Espinosa, 45 years of age, ended his life yesterday by plunging from the roof of a fifty-foot silo on the ranch of J. B. Norton at Lynwood, where he was employed. Deputy Sheriffs Allen and Stensland stated that domestic troubles had prompted the victim to take his life. He was found at the foot of the silo by the ranch foreman in a semi-conscious condition, but died on the way to the General Hospital. Espinosa lived at 1147 Soto street.

CHARLES CRENNA SOUGHT

Aid of police was requested in a telegram from Mary Crenna of Concord, Cal., yesterday in locating Charles Crenna, believed to be in Los Angeles. His mother is dying, the telegram stated, and he is needed at home. Detective Lieutenants Edwards and Jones are conductin a search for Crenna.

VIEW RELICS FROM FIRST LODGE HERE

Pentalpha Lodge Chiefs Find Papers Sealed Up in Corner-stone Years Ago

Officers and members of Masonic lodges from all parts of Los Angeles were present last night at Pentalpha Lodge, No. 262 in the Masonic Temple, Figueroa and Pico streets, when the steel box which was imbedded in the corner-stone of the first Masonic Temple built in Los Angeles thirty years ago was opened.

The first temple was located on the west side of Hill street, between Fourth and Fifth streets, and passed to other uses long ago. Recently it was demolished to make way for the new Pacific Electric terminal building. As one of the oldest lodges in the city Pentalpha Lodge was given the sealed box.

Among those present last night were Dana R. Weller, Past Grand Master of the Grand Lodge of California; Frank S. Templar, Master of Pentalpha Lodge; William S. Johnson, Commander of Los Angeles Commandery No. 9, Knights Templar; Edwin Lupton, Past Master of Pentalpha Lodge, who was Worshipful Master of Pentalpha Lodge at the time the corner-stone of the Masonic Temple was laid on February 22, 1896.

Many interesting Masonic relics and records were found in the box. Among the articles was a copy of the Los Angeles Times of February 22, 1896. The box was immediately resealed in the lodge room where it will be kept.

Talks on Masonic subjects were made by Judge Frank R. Willis, who took part in the ceremonies of the original corner-stone laying, and others.

FEAR MAN IS CAPTIVE OF BANDIT GANG

Relatives of Mechanic Missing Second Time in Week Hint Foul Play

Fear that John W. Schmidt, 33 years of age, an automobile mechanic, may have met with harm by the hands of a supposed bandit gang here who kidnaped him by mistake last week and released him in San Francisco was expressed by police last night, when Schmidt was again reported missing. Schmidt, according to a report by his mother-in-law, left his home at 321 North Union avenue yesterday about 9 a.m. and has not been seen or heard of since.

Because Schmidt gave police a description of his captors of a week ago, it is feared he might have fallen victim to the revenge of the supposed bandit gang. Schmidt's young wife, who is ill, is said to be almost prostrate because of his second mysterious disappearance.

A week ago Schmidt reported to police he was kidnaped and taken in a closed car to San Francisco. After arrival there he was taken to a darkened room and kept captive until his abductors realized he was not the man they wanted, who they said, was a rival bandit. Schmidt said he was taken about fifteen miles from San Francisco and released, from which point he made his way to the city. There he said he was given bus fare to Los Angeles by police.

COUPLE ARRAIGNED ON PRETENSE CHARGES

R. Bers cheid and his wife, Margaret Berscheid, former real estate brokers, were arraigned yesterday in Judge Hahn's court on an indictment containing five counts of forgery and ten of obtaining money under false pretenses. They were allowed until the 14th inst. to enter a plea. It is charged that the Berscheids forged deeds and other documents in real estate transactions running into the thousands.

PASSOVER RITES EXPLAINED

Rabbi Mayer Winkler Tells Significance of Jewish Festival Which Begins Tonight

The significance of the Jewish festival of Passover, which begins tonight and continues through the evening of the 16th inst., was explained last night in a radio sermon by Rabbi Mayer Winkler over Radio KHJ.

The prelude to the festival is the Seder service, which takes place tonight and tomorrow night. On these two nights Jewish families the world over unite around the family festal board, with the father as the master of ceremonies, and conduct the service from a little booklet entitled Hagadah, which contains the story of the Exodus, Psalms and songs of thanksgiving. On this occasion the youngest child is supposed to ask four questions concerning the festival, which the father answers.

On the table is spread matzoth, the bread of affliction, signifying Israel's suffering in Egypt and in exile. The bitter herbs Moror are a reminder of slavery both in physical and spiritual form. According to the Hagadah, every generation must consider itself as if it had been redeemed from Egyptian bondage.

On this night the prophet Elijah, the guardian angel of the Jewish people, is supposed to partake of the hospitality of the Seder service, coming as a herald of universal peace and announcing the restoration of Israel. During the ceremony the door is opened to receive the invisible guest.

"Passover this year is of especial meaning to the Jewish people," declared Rabbi Winkler. "It stands as a monument of a revivified nation and as a milestone on the threshold of the third rejuvenation of the Jewish people. For the first time in 2000 years a ship is sailing the seas with the flag of Zion flying over it and in accordance with the ancient custom a great number of Jews are this year making pilgrimages to the Holy Land, where with the assistance and good will of all nations the Jewish nation is becoming a reality. The new Hebrew university on Mt. Scopus in Jerusalem will exemplify the highest ideals of Judaism and will serve as a cultural center for all Jewry and the cultural world."

On the night of the 16th inst., the Passover service closes with a memorial service to the dead.

Next Sunday afternoon at 2 o'clock Rabbi Winkler will officiate at the corner-stone laying of the new $360,000 Sinai Temple at Fourth and New Hampshire streets.

ONE CITY HALL BID OPENED

Works Board Gets Single Offer for Supervising Work of Construction of New Building

One sealed bid for the architectural work on the proposed new City Hall was submitted yesterday to the Board of Public Works and will be opened at 10 a.m. today. It is believed that the proposal is from John C. Parkinson, John Austin and Albert Martin.

Meanwhile the City Council is waiting for City Attorney Stephens to submit for examination the contract with the firm of Curlett and Beelman to draw plans for the same City Hall.

Undoubtedly, according to observers, the courts eventually will be called upon to decide the question of who is entitled to award the contract, the Council or the Board of Public Works.

The voters, two years ago, authorized a bond issue of $5,000,000 for the construction of the new City Hall. Condemnation proceedings to acquire the site bounded by First street, Main street, new Spring street and Temple street practically have been completed, but the architectural situation has attained an impasse. For drawing the plans and specifications and for supervising the construction the eventually-chosen architect will be entitled to a fee of 6 per cent, or $300,000.

Reginald Denny Faces Charge of Speed Violation

Reginald Denny, film actor, who has sped through many feet of celluloid in racing cars, sometimes steps on the gas in real life, it appeared last night, when he was arrested on a bench warrant charging failure to answer a speed ticket. He put up bail of $30 at the police station and was released.

The warrant did not state the speed, but $30 is usually required as bail when the speed is approximately thirty-five miles an hour.

JURY DISAGREES IN ATTACK CASE TRIAL

A jury in Judge Hahn's court yesterday disagreed, 6 to 6, in the trial of Howard M. Oswald on a statutory charge and a date for retrial will be set Tuesday. Oswald was charged with attempting an attack on a Glendale school girl after inviting her to take an automobile ride. Oswald described himself as a motion-picture extra cameraman.

Twelve Fail in First Tests for Realty License

Lack of familiarity with the State Real-Estate Act under which they intended to do business resulted yesterday in the failure of twelve of a class of twenty-six prospective real-estate brokers to pass an examination given by the State Real-Estate Department here.

The examination was the first to be given by the local department under the new rules which require an applicant to submit to oral questioning before getting a license.

Those who were given licenses are Louise Mallory, A. H. Southworth, George H. Bliss, Emma Morris, W. H. Spicer, J. T. Stewart, Lauren D. Waldorf, W. A. Avery, Frank Herron, F. J. Peck, Ian V. G. Race, Hamilton Foreline, H. Gaume and Louise Gaughan.

TEN ANGELENOS PLAN WORLD CIRCLING TRIP

An around-the-world trip of 31,685 miles, will be made by a party of Angelenos, leaving this city May 5, to be gone about six months, visiting Honolulu, Japan, China, the Philippines, Malay Peninsula, Ceylon and Egypt. On arrival at Marseilles they will proceed by rail through Europe. The globe trotters will sail from Los Angeles on the new S.S. President Polk, under the direction of the D. F. Robertson travel bureau. The party includes the following: Mr. and Mrs. M. C. Melklejohn, Mrs. H. M. Lineman, Mr. and Mrs. Charles E. Reed, Frank Rudolph, Mr. and Mrs. C. H. Padden, Mr. and Mrs. H. K. Pollard and others.

HOME-COMING BANQUET

A home-coming dinner was given in the Ship Cafe on the Venice Pier last night by Mrs. Earl Frazier, who recently returned from Europe. The cafe was elaborately decorated and covers were laid for 180 guests from the Bay District and Los Angeles. An appropriate musical program featured the entertainment.

AQUEDUCT DIRECTORS APPOINTED

R. F. Del Valle and Others to Serve Colorado River Association

By a "Times" Staff Correspondent

PASADENA, April 7.—Directors for the Colorado River Aqueduct Association were appointed today by President Hiram Wadsworth, as follows: R. F. Del Valle, president of the Los Angeles Board of Public Service Commissioners; Frank A. Tetley, of the Board of Public Utilities, Riverside; Parry Mathis, Mayor of Anaheim; William O. Harris, water commissioner of San Bernardino; Bruce Mason, City Attorney of Long Beach, and George H. Thomas, Mayor of Pomona.

The association met last night in Pomona and passed a resolution approving the metropolitan water bill, an enabling act to create district in Southern California to finance the bringing of water from the Colorado River. It was recommended that municipalities and incorporated communities in Southern California indorse the bill.

The City Directors of Pasadena today approved the association's stand and formally indorsed the measure, which is now before the State Legislature.

BARE TABLE WINS WIFE HER DIVORCE

[Illustration on Picture Page]

"And when she got there,
The cupboard was bare—"

Mrs. Clementine Barbe appeared before Judge Walter Gates, in Superior Court yesterday, in the role of a youthful and charming Mother Hubbard. For the state of the Barbe family cupboard was the basis of her suit for divorce from John Barbe, Long Beach pharmacist.

"He just simply abandoned the job of supporting me and our two children. As far as I know, he has a good job and makes a comfortable salary, but I have received mighty little of it," she told the court.

Things finally came to such a pass in 1922 that she abandoned her fruitless frisking of the Barbe cupboard and went back to her parents to live, she said. She married Barbe in Indianapolis in 1915.

Judge Gates took the case under submission, and notified Attorney Arthur C. Fisher, counsel for Mrs. Barbe, a few hours later that he had awarded her a decree.

SON OF RICH MAN GIVES HIMSELF UP

Bostonian Says He Forged Father's Name to Check Three Years Ago

Harry W. Segal, 28 years of age, who says his father is a wealthy lock manufacturer of Boston, last night walked into the detective bureau at Central Police Station and asked to be returned to the Massachusetts city to answer a charge of forging his father's name to a check three years ago.

Since he left home, Segal said, he has been suffering from the pangs of conscience, and now wants to give himself up and take his medicine. Although he said he has traveled around the world, he never has found freedom from the lash of his conscience.

A year ago, he said, he slipped into Boston and inquired of a friend if the charge was still pending against him. The friend, he declared, advised him to leave. Letters sent to his father, inclosing the amount of the check he said he had forged, have been returned to him unopened, he added.

After telling his story to Detective Lieutenant Williamson, Segal was locked up as a fugitive from justice, and telegrams were sent to Boston notifying police and the boy's father of his surrender.

Five-Year-Old Boy Struck by Auto Succumbs

The 5-year-old son of Mrs. Sue Brown of Artesia was knocked down by an automobile in front of the Cypress-street school yesterday afternoon and died shortly after at the Artesia Hospital from injuries he received.

According to Dr. Carlisle L. Ahrens, who performed an operation in an effort to save the child's life, the driver of the automobile brought the injured boy to the hospital. The body was removed to the Thomas L. Miller undertaking parlors at Downey.

SCREEN ACTOR HURT IN AUTO COLLISION

Albert Gran, 50 years of age, a motion-picture actor, narrowly escaped death or serious injury last night when an automobile in which he was riding was struck by another machine and turned over on Highland avenue. Gran suffered cuts and bruises for which he was treated at the Hollywood Athletic Club. He was later taken to his home at 1716 Las Palmas avenue. The chauffeur of the machine in which Gran was riding and the occupants of the other car were uninjured. Gran was in costume, for his part of the Prime Minister in Norma Talmadge's "Graustark" being filmed on the Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer lot, at the time of the accident.

FIFTY HEIRS GET ESTATE INCOME

Nieces, Nephews to Share in Brockman Trust

Earnings of $3,500,000 to be Equally Divided

Holdings Comprise Downtown Business Blocks

The estate of the late John Brockman, Los Angeles capitalist, estimated to total around $3,500,000, will be held in trust by Security Trust and Savings Bank and the income therefrom, amounting to, it is estimated, $100,000 a year now and expected to increase ultimately to $120,000 a year, will be divided among more than fifty nieces and nephews of the deceased.

While officials of the bank, as trustees, are prohibited by law from disclosing the terms of a trust such as Brockman left, the provisions were learned yesterday from authoritative sources, following the mailing of copies of the trust to various of the beneficiaries.

DOWNTOWN BLOCKS

Included in the estate is the John Brockman Building, Seventh street and Grand avenue, on which a fifty-year lease for $42,000 a year will expire in eight more years. At the time of making the lease, the lease value of the building, exclusive of the building itself, was estimated at approximately $2,000,000, it is said.

Another portion of the estate is the building occupied by the J. W. Robinson Company, Seventh street and Grand avenue, which is said to be now leased for $60,000 a year and expected to ultimately bring $72,000 a year.

The rest of the estate consists of about $500,000 in bonds, mostly municipal securities, the Brockman home in Glendale and 100 acres of land north of Glendale.

Under the terms of the trust, it is understood, the furnishings and personal belongings in the home will go to Lois Thompson, Brockman's secretary, and her mother and father, who lived with their benefactor for a number of years. The house itself will be sold and the purchase price added to the trust fund.

HALF-MILLION TAX

Approximately $500,000, it is estimated, will go for inheritance tax, both State and national, and a $10,000 bequest to Dr. H. H. Koons, 1132 Lake street, another beneficiary.

The Security Trust and Savings Bank, it is understood, will continue to act as trustees for thirty more years, at which time disposition of the estate is in the hands of the courts, which may, at discretion, name the bank as trustee for another stated period.

Although some slight variations exist, it was learned, disposition of the benefits of the trust was made about equally among the numerous heirs, who are scattered throughout this country and some of whom are in Germany. Three, however, live in Los Angeles.

With the exception of the pieces enumerated, Brockman disposed of all his other property during his lifetime.

WOMEN ARE CALLED TO AID IN DRIVE

Conference on Plans for Hospitals Campaign Set for This Afternoon

Prominent groups of Los Angeles women, known for their philanthropical activities have been called to meet in conference with Mrs. O. P. Clark and Mrs. Nicholas Milbank of the dual hospital committee in Parlor E at the Alexandria, this afternoon at 2:30 o'clock, to discuss and outline plans whereby they can assist in the combined campaign to raise $2,500,000 for the new Clara Barton Memorial Hospital and the Woman's Hospital for this city.

The conference will take up and formulate organized methods and means of getting the quickest action and results from the city-wide canvass for subscriptions and donations to the proposed nonprofit and nonsectarian institutions, the active drive for which will be started throughout the city May 11, next.

The general organization plans for the big campaign are now actively under way, with headquarters at 523 South Olive street. One of the features of the drive will the the organized speakers' bureau, which is now actively headed by John G. Mott, president of the Los Angeles Bar Association, and assisted by Dr. A. B. Cooke and Dr. H. C. Weaver. Dates will be obtained before clubs, fraternal bodies, guilds, brotherhoods, unions, churches and, in fact, every organization that can be reached.

Witness Asserts Mrs. Thomas was Fight Aggressor

Testimony tending to show that Mrs. E. A. Thomas was the aggressor in an altercation with Mrs. Lora Kelly was given by Mr. and Mrs. W. J. Nelson, in Justice Blake's court yesterday at the trial of Mrs. Kelly on a charge of assault with a deadly weapon. Mrs. Kelly is accused of striking Mrs. Thomas, her sister-in-law, on the head with a pair of pliers.

The witnesses declared that they saw the altercation, which, they said, apparently started after Mrs. Thomas's machine had crowded a car in which Mrs. Kelly was riding, forcing it to stop. They testified they believed Mrs. Thomas instigated the quarrel and that Mrs. Kelly grabbed the pliers from her car when she was getting the worst of the argument.

Announcing the Opening of our New McCall Pattern Department

So Easy to Cut Out

So Simple to Put Together

Everything Printed on the Pattern

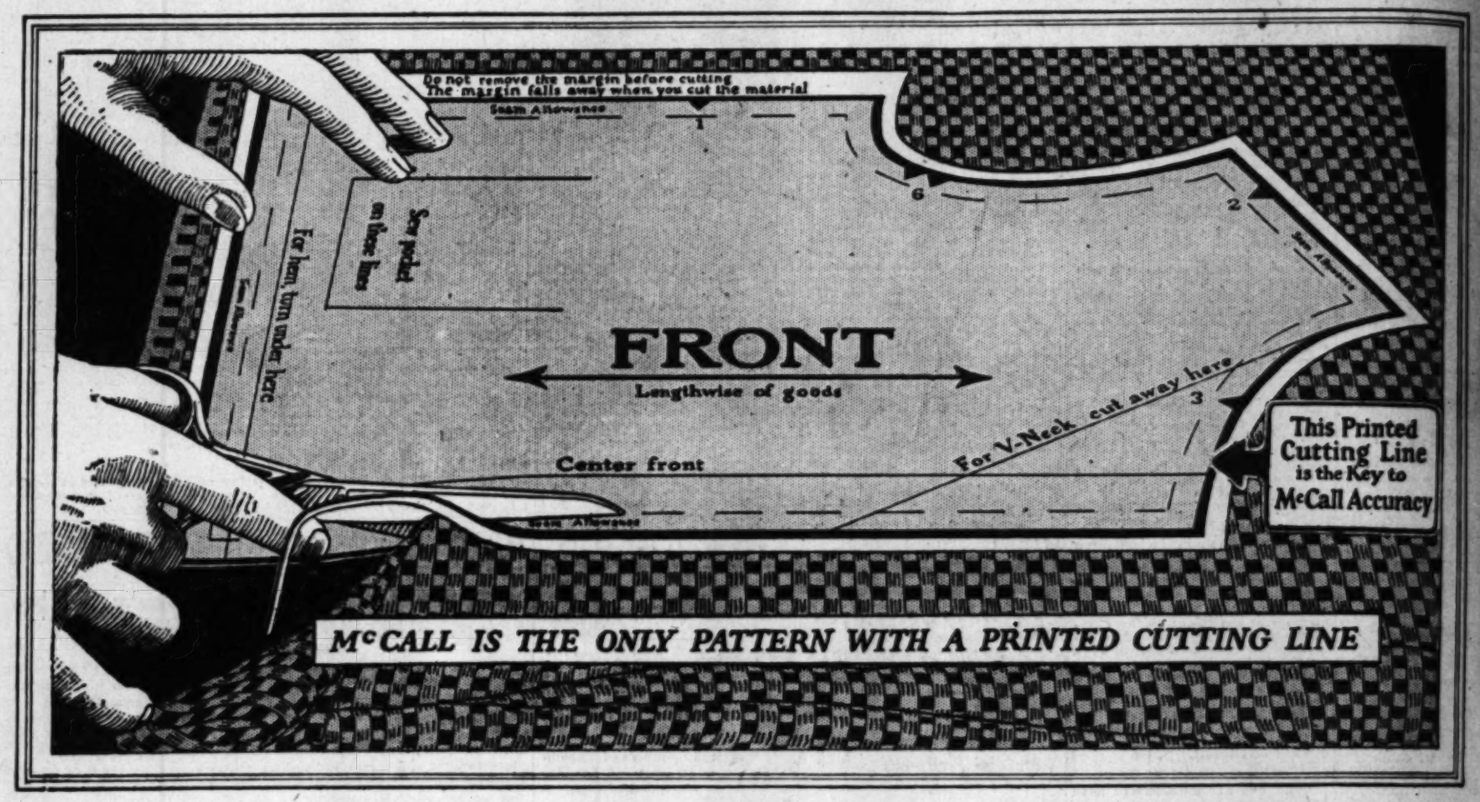
If the 2,000,000 families in which McCall's Magazine is read all lived on a single street—a home every 25 feet—the houses would line both sides of a roadway from Boston to San Diego.



WE believe this new department is going to be of great service to you—it's open now and ready to welcome you. The McCall Printed Pattern is the modern pattern, the pattern that has revolutionized home sewing and now makes it possible for any woman to make clothes at home without the home-made look.

It's a pattern that can reproduce all the charm, all the consummate style of the Paris original from which it was made. Perhaps you'll think you're having better luck when you first use a McCall Printed Pattern. It isn't better luck, it's a better pattern!

Note These Exclusive McCall Features

Only McCall Printed Patterns have a printed cutting line, inside guide lines and a margin of accuracy. All instructions are printed clearly on each piece of the pattern—no puzzling perforations or involved explanatory charts. These special patented features make sewing easy.

Attractive clothes cost very little if you make them yourself. Choose one of the season's charming new styles, buy a McCall Printed Pattern and the material—and then prove to yourself that McCall Printed Patterns are the simplest, most accurate and easiest patterns to use.

STARS AS MOTHERS

Flat and final.

"She is just 4 months old. This is my first picture since she was born, and, oh, it's so hard to stay away from her through the day! They bring her to me at 12, and I hurry home to her again at 4. I wish I could show you her photograph. I usually keep one here, but the other night when I was over for a fitting I ran in and took it home."

"Whom does she look like?" I asked.

"Just like me! Black hair, and, of course, she's going to have the most expressive eyes," with an exaggerated moue. "Her name? Leatrice Joy II. I couldn't make it Junior, but I got as close as I could.

Home Life

"And who looks after the baby while you are here?"

"My mother—and the nurse. I have one of the few remaining mothers who doesn't tag around. You know what I mean—not what they call a 'studio mother.' She thinks I'm wonderful and she—she trusts me. It helps a lot to have somebody that thinks you're great. She made up my name—it's my real one with the family name left off.

"You see, when Dad passed on, the responsibilities came on me. I had the usual little parlor accomplishments, but nothing that brought in any money. My mother was the same type, but happily she wasn't forced out.

"I began to earn as an extra in the East seven years ago. Then we came west and I soon got into leads. Now we're all here together, and so happy, with the baby, and me back at the work I love. And I work hard, with vocal, English and French lessons, in addition to making pictures, nursing my baby—and having olive-oil rubs.

"But I never was so happy in all my life before."

Nothing could be farther removed from the sensuously charming boudoir of beauty of Leatrice Joy's than the stately room breathing restraint and esthetic appreciation into which the butler at Florence Vidor's English manor ushered me for my late afternoon appointment. The intellectual note dominated here over the warmly human, although a fire of eucalyptus logs in the grate deepened the splendor of a jar of yellow roses on an antique table of carved oak.

The moment Miss Vidor entered I saw that she fitted into the room like a jewel in its setting. Here was the patrician of the screen, proclaimed such by every accent and contour. Her manner was as simple and sincere as that of other charming women, and yet she was—different.

Small, straight, perfectly groomed, with a face of warm coloring—wholly natural—and perfect feature control, she conveyed an effect of completeness and finish. She was cordial, but not nervously or carelessly so. The width between her gray-brown eyes beneath delicately arched brows prepared me for the dispassionate mental attitude she revealed as we talked by the twilight fire.

"One little girl, Suzanne, aged 6, is all I have. I am so fortunate in her playmates in this neighborhood. Otherwise, I should not keep up this big house just for the two of us. But my friends plan for the best dancing classes, music teachers and the like, for all our children, so that the same group is always together. This saves me much effort in a busy life, for I know everything is being done with good taste."

"Good taste," I had found Florence Vidor's keynote.

Suzanne came in, a child just shooting out of babyhood, with bobbed, tawny-gold hair and an engaging gap beneath her upper lip when she smiled. She shook hands with me just constrainedly enough to be genuine, but flung her arms around her youthful mother in a frank abandonment of affection.

No, she positively did not want to go into the pictures when she got big. No, she did not want to write, either. Perhaps she might dance, but nothing was definite. She obediently bade us good-bye and went up to her governess when the soft-footed butler drew the curtains against the dusk and brought in the tea service.

"She is a dear child," said Miss Vidor, "and she adores me, but rather puts me on a pedestal. She thinks I'm something quite wonderful, but we have little time for real visiting or companionship."

We chatted on and on, for Miss Vidor was a delightful hostess, with a thoughtful intellectual response for each comment or criticism I brought up on her chosen profession. But with every accent I felt her to be, first, the well-bred woman, and, after that, the actress.

ber-stamp heartless landladies, and with her motherhood pains beginning. Miss Bonner is such a fragile bit of delicate girlhood that the scene is robbed of all offensiveness.

When the neighbors complain of the philanthropical lady's baby farm, and take the matter to court, of course, the young husband and wife meet, and all is sweetness and light; with the old lady allowed to keep the babies. I do think the two Cinderellas are more sinned against than usual, though.

Mary Carr, of course, is endlessly appealing, entirely adorable as the dear old lady taken from the county farm when she inherits the money, and who insists on adopting babies. Kenneth Harlan is a manly hero; Claire Du Brey, in a "haughty sister" role to the downtrodden heroine, is most effective, and the remainder of the cast is admirable.—[Grace Kingsley.

engaging as the heroine. There are some good comedy scenes between Douglas Fairbanks, Jr., and Mary Brian, and young Doug proves that he is an excellent trouper beside. Other principals are well played by George Irving, Guy Oliver, Richard Tucker, Lee Shumway, Jack Byron, John Webb Dillon and Lloyd Whitlock.

"ASK GRANDMA" AMUSING

Hal Roach's "Our Gang" performs in its usual way in "Ask Grandma," their new comedy. Micky Daniels is dressed up in Little Lord Fauntleroy's and told to be "nice" in a rough neighborhood. But grandma doesn't agree with the method mother uses in bringing up Micky and encourages the young hopeful of the household to be a "regular fellow." Which he promptly proceeds to do, to devastating results to certain Ingelnic individuals.

Tea-cup Tete-a-tete With Stella, the Star-Gazer

By GRACE KINGSLEY

Discovered—the ideal marriage, or so Stella thinks. And all because Lillian Rich and her husband act in such a delightfully sensible way.

If skating is a leveller, then Evelyn Brent must be a very clubby sort of person, indeed, judging from appearances. Jack Holt (above) in his Midwick polo team garb.

DON'T you just love to watch them skate, dearie? Skating is such a leveller, isn't it? Oh, I didn't mean to make a pun; still, I did see the aristocratic Claire Windsor take a bit of a tumble on to her aristocratic nose, the other day. What I mean is, the best skater is the one who attracts attention, and it is quite possibly your chauffeur who is carrying off the honors.

"There she is now—Claire. She's with Bert Lytell, of course. Yes, she learned to skate while Bert was up in Truckee making a picture—surprised him when he came back. You see, he is a wonderful skater. I saw her the other night at the rink. She came with mamma, because, of course, she won't accept an invitation to go out with any other man. But she was soon so surrounded by beaux that poor mamma was left rather high and dry.

"However, mamma is something of a charmer herself, and soon had a crowd of friends about her. Yes, dearie, I rather suspect that Claire suspected in her artless Japanese way that there might be beaux there when she arrived, but she couldn't help that, could she?

"Yes, I believe that Claire and Bert expect to be married around Thanksgiving time. He has a nice new home, you know. Yes, and now they have to be separated again, because Claire has to go to Colorado to play in a picture. She says she doesn't relish the idea of supporting a snow plough, either!"

STELLA had settled herself early in the front seat of the box at the skating rink, so that if anybody else came in they would have to sit behind her; but I will say she wore a tiny sport hat that didn't obstruct the view much.

"Oh, and there are that pretty Lillian Rich and her nice husband, Leo Nicholson. They are devoted to each other, but in such a delightfully sensible way one feels that here at last is a lasting romance. Mr. Nicholson was a World War hero in the British aviation service, you see—was decorated by His Majesty, King George of England, for special acts of bravery. He is a business man, and a lot of men admire his wife tremendously, but nobody would dare to take the least advantage, I'm sure, and she goes along calmly on her way, quite unspoiled and with her head entirely unturned by all the masculine admiration."

PATSY RUTH MILLER came over to tell us of the lovely times she had had in her last picture, "Lorraine of the Lions."

"Of course, I couldn't show you my bruised leg and then expect you to pay 50 cents to come and see it in the picture," Patsy grinned in her own vivacious way. "But you can take my word for it that leg is bad. Yes, a lion scratched it and something fell on it and I struck it on the edge of a ladder."

Patsy looked over and caught sight of Sid Grauman.

"Well, if there isn't Sid Grauman still pinch-hitting for the Sutherland Sisters!" she exclaimed. "Well, he's a genius, so he has a right to wear his his hair any way he likes."

Norman Kerry came along just then, and Patsy kidded him. Somebody asked her how she liked working with the lions, and she said: Very much. It was a rest. You see, I began working with Norman Kerry!"

"Well, anyhow," said Norman, "the lions needed a rest after working with Pat! And the alligator, I understand, is just all tuckered out."

Of course, Ed Sedgwick, who directed the picture, had to sit in with the gang when he saw us, and he added his bit of airy persiflage:

"Well," he said, "I called the alligator over and told him to go slow and look out—Patsy Ruth was representing an alligator-skin factory."

WE spied Roscoe Arbuckle over in a box near-by. And Constance Talmadge and a number of others were having a party, too. Constance wasn't skating, though she does skate very nicely. Maybe it was because Buster Collier wasn't around.

Kathleen Key glided by just then. Kathleen has learned to skate since coming back from Rome.

"And you may be sure she didn't have to pay any skating tuition fees, either," said Stella. "Naturally, she had all the tutors anyone could ask for."

JACK HOLT had come over to see the fun in the rink and told us about his last location trip to Del Monte in "Eve's Secret."

"I divided my time between polo and water polo," he explained. "Naturally, there is no use in anyone going to Del Monte unless he can play polo, and the picture demands a few scenes in the water, so you understand that I am sort of the Annette Kellerman of the polo field."

Contrasting Types—Yet Alike

Here, then, I had found three sharply contrasting types, all miracles of worldly success, and yet all unspoiled by cheap egotism: Irene Rich, standing for maturing emotional power; Leatrice Joy, for Gallic and naive allure; Florence Vidor, for exquisite distinctiveness—all loving their children, working for them, and adored by them.

Harry Carr's Page

I TAKE off my hat to Norma Talmadge.

The last few months have seen some of the finest performances of screen history. But I think it is not too much to say that Norma in "The Lady" was the finest of the lot.

It was a superb, sincere, illumined performance. With this picture the lovely Mrs. Schenck sets a difficult mark for any other girl to shoot at.

A Limp Story

The story of "The Lady" wasn't so much. It was one of those old-fashioned sentimental tear-droppers—about the pure music-hall gell who marries the worthless son of a mean aristocrat; and there's a baby; and years after the heart-broken mother meets her soldier son, etc., etc. To tell the truth, it sounds like Bertha M. Clay.

But it doesn't matter. The art that Norma put into it makes it a deathless performance.

Beauty's the Bunk!

Almost every wonderful performance of the year has been distinguished by one singular fact: the star has ruthlessly discarded her beauty for the sake of the picture.

Homely—By Choice

The three outstanding performances seem to be Colleen Moore in "So Big"; Carol Dempster in "Isn't Life Wonderful?" and Norma Talmadge in "The Lady."

Most of the time in "So Big" Colleen appeared as a weazened-up, work-broken old woman; Carol Dempster was a starving Polish peasant girl, bent and thin and haggard, with her hair skinned back into a hickory-nut knot. In the best part of "The Lady" Norma is an elderly woman—proprietor of a tough dance hall.

Good-bye, Cuties!

What's the answer?

The answer is this: that the day of the pretty little cutie in pictures is over.

In the first place, no really big drama was possible with doll-faced little girls. No girl as young as we used to want 'em on the screen could possibly have experienced life; could have lived through drama. All the drama possible was that she stuck her finger coyly in her mouth when she saw the boy; twisted her curls, and in the nineteenth reel he kissed her—or dern near did.

Another thing, it is hard to have reality with a girl who is too beautiful. You don't believe her. You don't believe she is going to have a real marriage, with gas bills, family rows, burnt coffee and "runs" in her new silk stockings.

The Amazed Foreigner

I remember a great foreign director—he was a Swede—coming to America. He looked respectfully around the studios. One question he asked:

"Doesn't anything good ever happen to a homely girl in America?"

Living It Down

The fact is, beauty is at a discount in Hollywood right now.

There was a day when nobody but a very, very pretty girl had a chance to get within a mile of a studio gate. The way things are now, beauty is almost a fatal handicap.

It is so hard to live it down. A very beautiful girl is reasonably certain to get a job of some sort right away; but she is very lucky if she isn't sentenced for life to be a piece of scenery, to be a fashion model, to be one of the guests at the villain's wild party, to be the beauteous young lady in the theater box.

"Kiss Me Again"

Lubitsch showed me his new picture the other day—"Kiss Me Again."

Marie Prevost is going to make a sensation in this. It is comedy of the most adroit, subtle, insinuating artistry.

Lubitsch has made Marie a great actress. Little Clara Bow also emerges. I think this will put her on the map.

Stage Plays

When you come to think of these different girls and the work they are doing, you cannot help but be impressed with the astonishing strides of the past year or so on the screen.

When the Mason Operahouse was opened some weeks ago with "The Seventh Heaven," Mr. John Golden made a speech in which he described Helen Menken as the finest emotional actress on the stage.

If he is correct in his estimate, then the screen has gone far, far ahead of the stage. There are half a dozen actresses on the screen who can ring circles around Helen Menken.

Compared with the new school of screen acting as we have seen it grow during the last year or so, Miss Menken seemed crude and terribly obvious.

Kitchen Thrills

The chief measure of superiority of the screen over the stage, however, seems to be in the stage management.

Everybody who knew anything about stagecraft groaned in their hearts when the curtain went up on the second act of "The Seventh Heaven," and the heroine was discovered fussing with some kettles on the stove, humming a bright little song.

If Noah gave any private theatricals for the benefit of the animals in the ark, the curtain went up on a kitchen scene with the heroine in a long kitchen apron, humming a bright little song as she fussed with the kettles on the stove. Honestly, any movie director who would attempt such a stale, worn-out piece of business would never make a second picture.

Bright Young Men

Some very, very remarkable young men are at this business of directing pictures. Some of them are feeling around for something that nobody has, as yet, found. But one of these days they will find it.

I would like to see what some of these young fellows like Frank Borzage, or King Vidor, or Paul Bern would do with a stage production—assuming that they were allowed free rein to throw overboard all the old mildewed conventions; and didn't have—as a sacred matter of religion—to show the heroine brightly humming a little song as she fussed with the pots and kettles.

I have a very strong feeling that war pictures are coming back.

But it will be a new kind of war picture. As a matter of fact, the men who were in the trenches say that no picture has ever yet shown the war as it really was. All the directors have slavishly followed Griffith's "Hearts of the World"—made by a man who only caught a glimpse of the war.

There are a lot of clever young directors, like Rowland Lee, who went through hell in France, and who are eager to show what they saw.

Rowland Lee

Rowland Lee, however, got more out of the war than any man I ever met who fought in the trenches.

During most of his service he was a lieutenant in an infantry regiment. The Germans felt a deep interest in his command to the extent of shelling the tar out of it, night and day.

Mr. Lee told me one very interesting fact: that, in the fury of war, men literally became primitive. The sense of smell, of sight and hearing increased. Also they gained the prescience of death that Kipling insists all animals have.

Lee said he could always tell from the expression on a man's face that he was about to be killed. The tensity faded out. A calm expression passed over his soul. It was as though he knew that death had found him and was about to beckon.

De Mille's Office

Down at the Ince studio, everybody has been interested to know what Cecil De Mille would do with the old Ince offices.

There was a special significance thereto. Ince and De Mille had one characteristic in common: they simply could not work in unattractive surroundings.

De Mille's office at the Lasky studio looked like a young cathedral. Ince's suite of offices was like a palace. His outer office was done in colonial style with the old marble mantels; his second office was a luxurious den with tiger-skin rugs; the third office was a buffet dining-room fitted up like the cabin of an old Spanish galleon of the days of the Armada.

Everybody wondered if Mr. De Mille would find the arrangement soothing to his soul. He did not. Upon acquiring the studio, he promptly tore the whole thing to pieces.

He has a fondness for big office rooms; wherefore he is throwing two of the Ince offices into one.

Where's Bull?

Personally, I am desolated by the disappearance of our friend, Bull Montana.

The only time I have seen him for a year was when he appeared as a gorilla in "The Lost World." His famous tin ear did not, in that instance, have full scope for expression.

When Bull was a comedy star, he was getting a lot of money and he saved it. Bull lived on $25 per week and lugged the rest of it down to the bank in sacks. As a result, Bull is an heiress and works only as an outlet for his art.

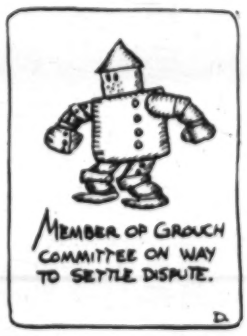
The Grouch Experts

One of the big studios is appointing a "grouch committee."

This committee is to talk to all the stage hands, all the electricians and all the actors; find out what they "have a mad" about, and adjust it if possible.



It has just been discovered that the "juice gang" also has temperamental fits—as well as the actors. And of the two the temperamental electricians can make the most trouble.

The commercial value of loyalty and good feeling has never been rated high enough in the movies.

Betty's New Director

Sidney Olcott is to direct little Betty Bronson in a picture, the scene of which will be laid in New York of the '80s—New York of the tall bicycles, John L. Sullivan and bustles.

It sounds delightful. Olcott has a unique instinct for atmosphere. He has a positive genius for dragging in people off the streets and making them act.

"Salome of the Tenements" was one of those impossible stories that nobody could make real in the plot part; but the atmosphere was absolutely charming.

The Jewish Editor

To my mind, there has been no more sincere, more real acting seen anywhere than by the Jewish denizens of Hester street, whom Olcott used in this picture. The chap who took the part of the Jewish editor must have been a professional actor, of course. But for tenderness and wistfulness, his performance almost stands alone.

This chap was so real that his sorrow left an aching place in your heart.

"THE AIR MAIL"
(Paramount)

The sky is the background for the thrills and melodrama of "The Air Mail." It offers a plot of very timely interest, and is well directed and produced, with the principal characters played by Warner Baxter, Billie Dove and Douglas Fairbanks, Jr.

THE problems of quick transportation via the air route give an up-to-date momentum to the plot of "The Air Mail," and in the making of the feature Irvin Willat, the director, apparently had ample co-operation from the government service. Most of the picture transpires on location, and the airplane scenes are very vivid in character, even those where possibly some of the resources of studio illusion were employed.

The ideal of the air service is set forth in the slogan:

"Nor storm nor wind, nor rain nor night
Can stay the pilot in his flight."

And it is this that makes the underlying motif of the story. Chiefly, this story is concerned with the activities of air pirates, and a scheme to rob the mails.

Early scenes introduce the heroine, and, in a rather hokumish way, indicate how she and her father were taken in on a real estate deal and forced, because of an investment, to reside in an abandoned mining town. In this desolate abode the girl finds her chief source of diversion watching the government airplanes passing overhead during their daily flight, for their route lies right over the abandoned town.

It is during a storm that the hero, a reformed crook, in the government service, makes her acquaintance. He is forced to land to ascertain his whereabouts. The trip was really to have culminated in the robbing of the mails, but because of the example of bravery of another pilot in the flight from San Francisco to Reno, in a terrific snowstorm, the hero, already much altered in character, decides to go straight. His intention is reinforced if anything by the meeting with the girl and her admiration for the heroism of the service.

The picture works up to a very lively climax, laid in the abandoned town. The airplane pirates, and an old associate of the hero, are the principal menace.

In addition, there are a trio of escaped desperadoes of a low order, who inflict themselves on the girl and her father, and later attempt to steal the registered mail.

A parachute jump by the young aide-de-camp of the hero, and an airplane crash in midair, when the hero prevents the pursuit of his young follower by the bandits, are highlights of the finish.

To tell all the other points of the plot in detail would be to take something away from the novelty and zest of the production. The suspense is very keen throughout, and the picture will in all probability meet with the widest sort of popular favor.

The aircraft are really the star of the feature, and have been photographed with great effectiveness in their various maneuvers. Warner Baxter has the most interesting characterization as the reformed crook, and does it very convincingly. Billie Dove is

Heart-Throbbing Drama

"DRUSILLA WITH A MILLION"
(F. B. O.)

It looks as though "Drusilla With a Million" were going to furnish F.B.O. with a million. It is glorified hokum of the most entertaining kind. The story has two sets of Cinderellas, and both find their happiness. In fact, Mary Carr, as the elderly Cinderella, finds a number of Prince Charmings, all split-pint size.

WHICH leads up to the big fresh angle of the story—the place where Mary Carr, as the brand-new heiress of a large fortune, having taken in one baby from her doorstep, counts that day lost in which she doesn't find a crying infant on the front porch, until she has accumulated a big crowd of babies, for all of whom she insists on caring. There is some of the most delightful baby stuff ever put on the screen in some of these sequences.

The story is appealing all the way through, because it is poignant, spontaneous, and brilliantly acted. F. Harmon Weight is the director, and in him F.B.O. has, I think, a great find. He may not have developed any particularly original treatment as yet; but he knows just how to use the old methods most adroitly, and I think he could make the Indian in front of the cigar store act. He has a fine sense of drama that will lead him to the heights.

Priscilla Bonner is making a terrific come-back in this picture. In it, as the little slavey who rescues the millionaire's son from an auto wreck and marries him, only to be persuaded by an adventuress to leave her husband for his own good, and who gives birth to a baby—which baby, of course, finds its way to the philanthropical doorstep—Miss Bonner fulfills all the promise of her earlier days.

Full of quaintly appealing personality, added to classic beauty and a natural gift for acting, Miss Bonner achieves heights in this picture which steal close up on the honors of Mae Marsh and Colleen Moore. Unhappily she has developed a few little flittery mannerisms, but these doubtless will be toned down. She has the essentials for a great film actress. Her real power lies in a still concentration of thought, a peculiarly poignant appeal, and on facial expression. Miss Bonner conveys broken-hearted youth as this has rarely been done.

Corinne's New Home

So her cards might read. But no conventional statement could begin to express the joy Corinne Griffith is experiencing in her new home.

Corinne is essentially a home lover. Coming from the South—where homes represent the bulwark of living—she has imbibed this philosophy. Ever since her marriage of nearly a year ago, she has been planning her abode.

Now it is complete. It has chimney nooks, long shelves for books, all the requirements of a real home. There is even a boudoir which is quite as beautiful as the most enthusiastic fan might wish for Corinne.

Corinne Griffith's domestic affairs have been of more than general interest, for she is one of the few stars to confess to a love of domesticity. Her residence, therefore, is more than an establishment. It is her home, with all that the word implies.

She has spent endless hours planning it. And now it is complete. So Corinne, so often featured as the beautiful aristocrat, is settled in a new environment—that of homemaker.

The business of settling is over now, the rush has subsided, the contractors have departed. The home has emerged complete from her plans. It is a lovely structure of long graceful lines, partaking in style of Old English architecture.

"THE SPANIARD"
(Paramount)

"The Spaniard" will doubtless be well received for its entertainment qualities and colorful character. It co-features Ricardo Cortez and Jetta Goudal and should aid materially in placing Cortez well at the top of the list of the new Latin lovers, at the same time establishing him a close contender for the crown of popularity Valentino has worn so long.

The direction, by Raoul Walsh, cannot lay claim to any great amount of originality or freshness of treatment, and the plot is none too strong or new. Despite these drawbacks, however, the picture is sufficiently diverting to prove exceptional entertainment. The supporting cast, headed by Noah Beery and Emily Fitzroy, adds to the merit of the feature.

AS THE title indicates, the picture is a screen story woven around the life of a central character, a Spaniard. The opening sequence is laid in London, but the play, for the most part, is unreeled in a Spanish setting.

Cortez is particularly well equipped to assume the title role. He possesses both the handsome looks and the dashing manner Don Pedro De Barrego is presumed to have been born with, and his skill in the portrayal of that Castilian gentleman is worthy of commendation.

Miss Goudal is scarcely so fortunate in the matter of casting. She is far from being the ideal type for her part, but her interpretation of the Spanish-English girl, Dolores Annesley, is none the less pleasing. While it does not permit of any excess of acting, still the nature of her role is such to enable her to give an impression of satisfying exoticism.

In the beginning of the picture, Cortez, during a brief visit to London, where he becomes the idol of feminine society, meets his match as a breaker of hearts in Dolores Annesley (Jetta Goudal.) She repulses his ardent wooing and he informs her that she will, sooner or later, marry him. The following day he sails for Spain.

A little later, while on a visit with relatives in Seville, Dolores witnesses a bullfight at which the great matador, Fernandes, is the hero of the hour. At the conclusion of the fight the matador bows beneath Dolores's box, and she recognizes Don Pedro De Barrego, the man who swore that she would some day be his wife.

These shots of the bullfight are the most interesting in the picture. They show actual scenes of a conflict and should be a powerful factor in sustaining interest in the production.

Raoul Walsh has succeeded in making his surroundings more or less realistic, and the atmosphere carries a flavor of trueness. What the story lacks in strength of material is largely made up for by vividness of personalities and general effect of the whole.

From the scene of the fight arena the action is carried to the mountains —to Pedro's castle. Dolores is lured to the castle by an underling of Pedro and after she arrives the Spaniard tells her that he intends to hold her his prisoner until she has learned the meaning of love. She is placed in the custody of a trusted servant.

Dolores attempts to escape, but the watchfulness of the master makes this effort futile. Later, realizing she must use her woman's wit to escape from her captor, she takes advantage of a scene of moonlight and music to persuade Pedro that she has learned to love him. She promises to ride to Seville to marry him the following day.

In the morning they start out. Before Pedro is mounted, Dolores whips her horse to a gallop and dashes out the court yard, riding madly in the direction of Seville. Pedro follows her, in a perilous and exciting chase, until his horse stumbles in a leap over a ruined wall and crashes to the ground in a spectacular fall.

Dolores, riding all day without finding a town, at dusk is decoyed to a bandit's lair. Pedro arrives in the night and effects her rescue in an unusual and thrilling manner. Returning to his castle, he tells her that she is free to leave and puts her on the Seville coach, which passes near his gate. Following her departure, thinking that the coach carries her out of his life, he, too, leaves for the city, to engage in a bullfight the next day. This, despite a gunshot wound received in the flight from the bandits.

The interest drops considerably from the moment the coach drives away. Pedro, in the arena, is flung by the infuriated bull but is not seriously gored. Dolores goes to his home to return the ring he gave her at the castle, and finds him in the arms of another woman. She suddenly realizes her love for him at this, forbids him to kiss the other woman, and finds she is—his sister.

There are certain elements in "The Spaniard" that characterize every Spanish picture. One of the most glaring of these is the sameness of plot, the evident inability of writers and producers to inject into a story situations that are not shopworn by use. In its slightly new garments, however, this circumstance is not so noticeable, or at least not to the extent that it is unduly objectionable.

Cortez's performance is characterized by a decidedly smooth portrayal. Miss Goudal is deserving of praise for work well done, but she is more effective in roles less haughty and less smacking of the aristocrat.

Noah Beery, too, has been obviously miscast, for his part as Pedro's valet does not carry the usual note of conviction that generally makes his characters so genuine. In the role of the servant placed in charge of Dolores, Emily Fitzroy gives a splendid impersonation. Others in the cast, including Mathilde Brundage and Franz De Gardi, give able support.

"The Spaniard" is based upon "Spanish Love," a story by Juanita Savage, and the adaptation was made by J. T. O'Donohoe. Victor Milner photographed the production.—[Whitney Williams.

Romance Far-Flung

Who needs an introduction to this romantic scene—with Douglas Fairbanks, the Spanish gallant of "Don Q," wooing Mary Astor—the impetuous way of Spanish gallants.

The well-known Roman love story of Ben Hur and Esther comes to the screen with Ramon Novarro and May McAvoy (shown above) as the lovers. How gypsy love is won, could be the title of this glimpse of Renee Adoree and Conrad Nagel in "The Exquisite Sinner."

After a period of featuring American life, the pictures took a journey to the South Seas for love interest—and now they have apparently arrived on the continent for an indefinite stay.

The love of the French, the love of the English, and the smouldering fire of Italy have been very much in evidence. The soft-voiced feeling of the Spaniard, accompanied by its drawn-sword atmosphere—or the days of ancient Rome, when love was filled with fear and hazards. It matters not what the century, what the tongue! The films seem to have dealt with them all.

Just now the pictures are filled with the romantic interest of foreign countries. With Douglas Fairbanks playing "Don Q," a tale of Spain, with Mary Astor; "Ben Hur," featuring Ramon Novarro and May McAvoy as his Roman love; the gypsy story of "The Exquisite Sinner," which touches on France, with Renee Adoree and Conrad Nagel; the tale of a Canadian and Indian love, with Anita Stewart and Donald Keith—there are a wide variety of love stories to choose from.

Separated by countries—and often by centuries—yet bound together by the emotion which is common to them all!

Heroes in the Provinces

It has certainly profited Tom Mix to be a hero in the provinces, although his pictures seldom show in the city—for he is commanding a salary which far exceeds almost every other film actor.

A man and his horse are objects of intense admiration to those who prefer their West wild and untamed, and when that man is Fred Thompson and the horse Silver King—there is a double reason for popularity.

"Across the Deadline" is the significant title of a picture in which Leo Maloney (center) is appearing, and he himself presents a romantic figure in the western pictures. Hoot Gibson (shown above) is particularly popular in the numerous western stories he has filmed.

IN THE CITY they are practically unknown!

But in the provinces they are popular heroes—these leading men of the western.

Throughout the country in the smaller towns, where everyday life is too real to be enjoyed on the screen, the wild romance of the western range fires the imagination and thrills the heart.

It is there that the leading men of the westerns have a following which amazes those of the "sophisticate" who prefer psychological drama and seldom see the actors of the western pictures.

To those who follow the films from the city theater the names of Tom Mix, Art Acord, Hoot Gibson, Leo Maloney, Fred Thompson, Jack Hoxie or Harry Carey are merely names. But in the smaller districts they are definite, vital personalities—thrilling heroes! Mix, Gibson and Carey, though, are exceptions, of course, to metropolitan unrenown.

In the provinces the hero complex is not dead. This is evidenced by the sweeping popularity of this fast-riding, quick-on-the-draw group of actors.

It is left for the fans who view their films in the smaller districts to find them out—these heroes of the westerns.

Personal friends and pals to the middle western film fans are Buck Jones and his horse, Silver Buck—for they help to frame the romance of the West to those in the provinces.

SPANISH COLOR AGAIN —

A thrilling moment during the rescue of Dolores (Jetta Goudal,) when Cortez evinces deftness in the art of knife-throwing. (Right) Cortez as Fernandez, idol of all Spain, acknowledging the acclamation of the crowd.

Moonlight in the courtyard of a Spanish castle is a poor time, indeed, for a young woman to remain aloof from the man who loves her. Miss Goudal and Cortez.

Cortez Is Dashing

(Paramount)

"The Spaniard" will doubtless be well received for its entertainment qualities and colorful character. It co-features Ricardo Cortez and Jetta Goudal and should aid materially in placing Cortez well at the top of the list of the new Latin lovers, at the same time establishing him a close contender for the crown of popularity Valentino has worn so long.

The direction, by Raoul Walsh, cannot lay claim to any great amount of originality or freshness of treatment, and the plot is none too strong or new. Despite these drawbacks, however, the picture is sufficiently diverting to prove exceptional entertainment. The supporting cast, headed by Noah Beery and Emily Fitzroy, adds to the merit of the feature.

AS THE title indicates, the picture is a screen story woven around the life of a central character, a Spaniard. The opening sequence is laid in London, but the play, for the most part, is unreeled in a Spanish setting.

Cortez is particularly well equipped to assume the title role. He possesses both the handsome looks and the dashing manner Don Pedro De Barrego is presumed to have been born with, and his skill in the portrayal of that Castilian gentleman is worthy of commendation.

Miss Goudal is scarcely so fortunate in the matter of casting. She is far from being the ideal type for her part, but her interpretation of the Spanish-English girl, Dolores Annesley, is none the less pleasing. While it does not permit of any excess of acting, still the nature of her role is such to enable her to give an impression of satisfying exoticism.

In the beginning of the picture, Cortez, during a brief visit to London, where he becomes the idol of feminine society, meets his match as a breaker of hearts in Dolores Annesley (Jetta Goudal.) She repulses his ardent wooing and he informs her that she will, sooner or later, marry him. The following day he sails for Spain.

A little later, while on a visit with relatives in Seville, Dolores witnesses a bullfight at which the great matador, Fernandes, is the hero of the hour. At the conclusion of the fight the matador bows beneath Dolores's box, and she recognizes Don Pedro De Barrego, the man who swore that she would some day be his wife.

These shots of the bullfight are the most interesting in the picture. They show actual scenes of a conflict and should be a powerful factor in sustaining interest in the production.

Raoul Walsh has succeeded in making his surroundings more or less realistic, and the atmosphere carries a flavor of trueness. What the story lacks in strength of material is largely made up for by vividness of personalities and general effect of the whole.

From the scene of the fight arena the action is carried to the mountains —to Pedro's castle. Dolores is lured to the castle by an underling of Pedro and after she arrives the Spaniard tells her that he intends to hold her his prisoner until she has learned the meaning of love. She is placed in the custody of a trusted servant.

Dolores attempts to escape, but the watchfulness of the master makes this effort futile. Later, realizing she must use her woman's wit to escape from her captor, she takes advantage of a scene of moonlight and music to persuade Pedro that she has learned to love him. She promises to ride to Seville to marry him the following day.

In the morning they start out. Before Pedro is mounted, Dolores whips her horse to a gallop and dashes out the court yard, riding madly in the direction of Seville. Pedro follows her, in a perilous and exciting chase, until his horse stumbles in a leap over a ruined wall and crashes to the ground in a spectacular fall.

Dolores, riding all day without finding a town, at dusk is decoyed to a bandit's lair. Pedro arrives in the night and effects her rescue in an unusual and thrilling manner. Returning to his castle, he tells her that she is free to leave and puts her on the Seville coach, which passes near his gate. Following her departure, thinking that the coach carries her out of his life, he, too, leaves for the city, to engage in a bullfight the next day. This, despite a gunshot wound received in the fight from the bandits.

The interest drops considerably from the moment the coach drives away. Pedro, in the arena, is flung by the infuriated bull but is not seriously gored. Dolores goes to his home to return the ring he gave her at the castle, and finds him in the arms of another woman. She suddenly realizes her love for him at this, forbids him to kiss the other woman, and finds she is—his sister.

There are certain elements in "The Spaniard" that characterize every Spanish picture. One of the most glaring of these is the sameness of plot, the evident inability of writers and producers to inject into a story situations that are not shopworn by use. In its slightly new garments, however, this circumstance is not so noticeable, or at least not to the extent that it is unduly objectionable.

Cortez's performance is characterized by a decidedly smooth portrayal. Miss Goudal is deserving of praise for work well done, but she is more effective in roles less haughty and less smacking of the aristocrat.

Noah Beery, too, has been obviously miscast, for his part as Pedro's valet does not carry the usual note of conviction that generally makes his characters so genuine. In the role of the servant placed in charge of Dolores, Emily Fitzroy gives a splendid impersonation. Others in the cast, including Mathilde Brundage and Franz De Gardi, give able support.

"The Spaniard" is based upon "Spanish Love," a story by Juanita Savage, and the adaptation was made by J. T. O'Donohoe. Victor Milner photographed the production.—[Whitney Williams.

Do Stars Make Good Mothers?

By NEETA MARQUIS

[Note—A true first impression of picture folk is somewhat rare in these days when nearly everyone's vision is colored to some extent by what he or she has read about the stars. Their home life and their family life has been glimpsed in various and oftentimes fantastic ways. The article which is herewith printed is an intimate and personal view of three prominent actresses of the screen, and discloses from an absolutely unbiased and clear point of view the impression that they made upon the writer as mothers rather than as celebrities.—Editor.]

Leatrice Joy says she used to think this business about babies' hands and dimples was overdone, but now she knows that it isn't. As might be surmised from the above photograph of the two Leatrices. Left—Irene Rich in a homey pose with Frances and Jane.

AT THE outset I tried to make it clear to each of the three stars with whom I talked—Irene Rich, Leatrice Joy and Florence Vidor—that they were to me as Aldebaran, Arcturus and Vega—stars twinkling in their respective firmaments, sans personal setting or associations. Then they would understand that in coming to see them, not as picture notables alone, but as mothers of possible future starlets who were now just plain children, I was ideally equipped with a fresh vision unclouded by preconceptions.

"I think it's a good deal for you to know us even by name and our work!" generously exclaimed Miss Rich, as she extended a slender hand and drew me into her dressing-room at Warner Brothers' studio.

My attention centered at once on the slender woman, in severely tailored skirt of neutral tan and gray tones, with the glowing, magnetic eyes and pleasant laugh, whom I asked to talk to me about her most vital human relationship as she waited to be summoned for her next scene.

She clasped her hands closely together as she said, with a happy, apologetic laugh, "I really have the most wonderful youngsters! At first I was not supposed to talk about them—it wasn't good business. But producers and public alike seem to have gained a more normal viewpoint on children, and I love to have people know about mine.

When Florence Vidor does have any time for recreation, she generally spends it reading nursery rhymes to her small daughter.

Irene Rich's Daughters

"There are two—both girls. I had a little boy, but we lost him. The girls and my mother make up my family. We simply couldn't get along without my mother. She's the mother of us all, and I'm, in a way, the daddy, for she looks after the home, while I—bring home the bacon!"

Voice and manner bespoke an absence of either pretense or complaint as she went on to tell how circumstances had forced her into the support of her little group.

"My elder girl, Frances, was 8, and the little one, Jane, just a baby in my arms when I faced the world alone seven years ago. I tried selling real estate for a while, then became an extra in pictures. Before long I had a chance at a few leads, and since then everything has been wonderful. We now have our own lovely home, and the girls are having every advantage in education. This coming July I am taking all of us to Europe for the summer, and shall leave my mother and the girls there for a year while I come back to work. Then I will rejoin them later."

"All in seven years!" I marveled. "It's like a fairy tale!"

"Isn't it?" exclaimed Miss Rich, almost with awe. "We are all so happy together, and I'm just so grateful every day to be able to do everything for them myself! If we only had my little boy now, it would be perfect, for he came in just between the two girls.

"Yes, those are my children," as I turned to the two photographs pinned on the wall—two lovely young heads sunning over with curls.

"Frances is 15 now, and is our practical, efficient one. She's finishing high school this year, and is already entered for Vassar, after she has had a year or two of travel. Jane, 7, is the idealist and the dreamer—the most loving little child, remembering to do all sorts of thoughtful little services for me.

"They both think I'm very wonderful. I do wish you could see them!"

At Home With Miss Rich

Finally it became apparent that without seeing Irene Rich's children I was only half seeing Miss Rich. So it was arranged that our interview be continued at her home that evening, without the daughters knowing the inner reason for my coming.

Then, indeed, I got the intimate mother feeling of a generous, warm-hearted woman. The home, attractive with soft lights, warmth, and radio music, was evidently lived in, in every corner.

When Miss Rich arrived after 6:30, we assembled around the dining table. Our chat was mostly of the coming foreign tour. Jane, brown-eyed and gentle, looked forward to seeing the Strassburg clock. Frances, who has recently taken up art study, anticipated somewhat higher things—she with her clean-cut, intellectual face, crisp voice, and frank, young-boy manner. Both children showed poise and careful upbringing.

"No, I don't want my daughters to go into pictures. That is, I want them first to see many places and people, study, and know the world of books and art. Then I shall feel they have judgment and perspective to bring to a decision about the screen as a profession. I love my own work dearly, and I hope to go on playing bigger and bigger parts; but I can't deny that it demands every bit of me—devours me, leaving time for nothing else—except my family. And I love it for what it lets me do for those I love."

It was beautiful to see how deeply her family appreciate what she is doing for them. Mutual love, admiration and confidence—that was the atmosphere of Irene Rich's home.

Leatrice Joy II

My introduction to Leatrice Joy was a gust of imported perfume which met me at the entrance to her dressing-room. I was received in a pretty room with white enameled woodwork, white wicker furniture, and gay cretonne draperies.

Beneath two powerful electric lights sat Leatrice Joy in lavender kimono, having her hair dressed.

"It isn't as a screen star that I'm calling upon you," I said. "It is as a star who is a mother."

At that she kindled and softened all over.

"Oh, Hattie"—to the dusky wielder of the curling tongs—"you tell her how sweet my baby is!"

"She's the sweetes' baby in dis town—or any otheh town!"

Pre-release Impressions of NEW PICTURES

Crook Melo Is Wiz

"THE UNHOLY THREE"
(Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer)

Nobody who really enjoys a good crook melodrama will want to miss "The Unholy Three." It is entertaining to the highest degree in its novelty and suspense. The cast, headed by Lon Chaney and with Mae Busch playing the leading feminine role, is unusually capable. An additional star is the midget portrayed by Henry Earles.

TOD BROWNING, who directed "The Unholy Three," has long been recognized as exceedingly able and clever in the filming of melodramatic features, by virtue of "Outside the Law" and other films of that character. He has made none for several years, however, that has equalled in intensity and effectiveness this new production that tells of the mischief wrought by a ventriloquist, a midget and a strong man from a dime museum.

The picture gets right into the story. The opening is in the museum. The fat lady, the human skeleton, and various other freaks are successively introduced, and finally the ventriloquist played by Chaney.

His museum activities are only a "cover" for other of a less commendable character. This is brought out when he receives from a girl pal a handful of stolen watches and money. She has been busy during the show picking pockets.

While they are engaged in conversation, trouble breaks out in the museum. The midget picks a fight with some members of the audience. He is getting the worst of it when the strong man comes to his rescue. There is a great hullabaloo and the police are called, but Chaney, the midget and the strong man make their getaway.

During the night the "unholy" trio formulate new plans. These are described on the screen as "uncanny," and they certainly turn out to be of a bizarre character.

Chaney, with his ability for changing and projecting his voice, adopts the disguise of an elderly woman, ostensibly operating a store for birds, chiefly parrots. The midget, for his part, dresses up as a baby, to lend innocence to subsequent proceedings. The strong man appears as himself, and the girl also joins the party.

The scheme that they work is this:

Chaney, as the proprietor of the store, sells the parrots and, thanks to his ventriloquial talents, they are extraordinary talkers. The purchasers take them home in great satisfaction, but discover a few days later that the birds do not speak a word.

When they complain Chaney offers to come to their houses to see what is the matter—and in his skirts and bonnet, and wheeling the baby carriage, in which the midget is comfortably ensconced, he goes forth to remedy the birds' loss of voice. While he is busy making them "talk" once again, the midget sizes up the "lay of the land" so that a robbery may be committed.

All would have worked well with the scheme, of course, if it had not been for the fact that the girl, who is allied with the crooks, falls in love with the clerk in the store. As he is innocent of the mischief committed by the trio, this naturally complicates things. Chaney, too, is in love with the girl.

To tell the plot in detail would be to destroy some of that pleasure which is to be derived from watching the unexpected incidents in the unfoldment. Successively, there is a theft of a necklace, a murder in which neither the ventriloquist nor the girl have any part, an investigation by the police, a false accusation of the clerk in the store, and a final thrill finish when the strong man and the midget are attacked by a huge ape in a mountain cabin, and the girl makes her escape. There is absolutely nothing lacking of excitement and suspense during all these developments, and one of the most skillful scenes in the picture is when the midget conceals the stolen necklace in a toy elephant right under the nose of an investigating detective, and pretends that the rattling noise in this affair is produced by candy contained therein.

Chaney has a truly splendid acting role, and—except for those scenes when he appears in the impersonation of the elderly feminine storekeeper—not one in which he is overburdened with make-up. Very fine, indeed, are the episodes where he shows the intent to sacrifice his happiness for that of the heroine. Chaney's varying shades of expression are indeed remarkable.

Miss Busch also offers proof of her emotional feeling in a very striking way, particularly when, for the sake of her unprepossessing group of associates, she is on the point of relinquishing the man she loves. Her portrayal is very well done throughout.

The midget is quite a source of amusement, and putting him in the garb of the baby and then having him stick a big cigar in his mouth is a touch of capital cleverness. Henry Earles manages to make him a very rebellious, intriguing and mischievous individual.

Matt Moore does well as the very ingenuous clerk, even though the character is very negative. Victor McLaglen has limited opportunities, only, as the strong man, but is acceptable. A lesser role is taken by Mathew Betz.

The picture is from a novel of the same name by C. A. Robbins, and the adaptation was done by Waldemar Young. David Kesson photographed the film.—[Edwin Schallert.

An hour's haul in watches for Mae Busch is more or less productive. Even Chaney is pleased. Right: The evolution of "The Unholy Three" idea —with Chaney, Henry Earles and Victor McLaglen.
